HARRY CARR'S ENCOUNTER WITH THE KAISER; THRILLING EXPERIENCE ON RUSSIAN FRONT.

BY HARRY CARR.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WARSAW, August 21.—When the German Kaiser spoke to his victorious troops on the battle-torn field of Novogeorgievsk, I had the good luck to be there. For two days we had been in Warsaw and at the front waiting for this last barrier of the Czar to fall before the German guns. Early Friday morning news came that the fortress had surrendered, and we hurried out in automobiles. About two miles out from the fortress we came upon a great body of troops assembling. We could see hussars, at least a brigade of infantry, and battery after battery of artillery. Presently a squadron of automobiles dashed up and began disgorging their celebrities. From the first one descended the German Emperor. Behind him came Gen. Von Hindenburg, Gen. Beseler, the hero of Antwerp, Gen. Falkenhayn, Chief of Staff, all in field gray uniforms. A magnificent white charger waited for the Kaiser, but he walked alone to the middlc of the square.

It was a wonderful scene. Directly in front of the Emperor as he talked lay two shattered Russian fortifications, torn to pieces by shells from his monster guns. The sky was black with smoke from Novogeorgievsk, which the Russians burned. Along the road in front of him marched an almost endless line of Russian prisoners going to the rear. Here and there were sullen Japanese officers among them. Directly in front of the Kaiser were his soldiers in soiled, toil-worn gray, that made a background for the brilliancy of his suite.

The Emperor's speech was short and soldier-like. He said that the god of battles had given them another victory, and would be with them to the end. As he talked he sometimes leaned on his cane, and sometimes wielded it in quick decisive gestures. Often between sentences he paused, and you could see his eyes running down the lines of his soldiers. Afterwards I saw him closer, and his eyes seemed to go through me as he glanced my way. The eyes of some great men seem to strike you like a blow—the Kaiser's search you. Presently his speech closed, and several officers were called on to speak to him. Eight or ten men from the ranks then lined up before him and received iron crosses, Gen. Von Hindenburg pinning them on as the Kaiser handed them to him. Then one side of the square fell back, and the Kaiser walked back to his automobile. He stepped with the brisk, swinging step of a business man going to his office; behind him was a soldier carrying the imperial banner. As his automobile moved away an American motion picture man ran up, and, to the horror of the German officers, began taking his picture. The Kaiser laughed and went on smoking a cigarette, saluting the camera man as he passed, thereby saving him from annihilation.

After the review the Kaiser went to see the stricken fortress. We tried to follow, but our auto stuck in the mud. The roads had been made into mush by the artillery and transport wheels, and our auto stuck fast. As we struggled with it a horn tooted peremptorily down the road, and an auto with the imperial banner demanded the way—we were blockading the German Emperor on his return. His chauffeur glared murderously, but the Kaiser leaned out from his car and waved his hand reassuringly at our frantic chauffeur. When the road was finally clear and his auto went whirling past, the Kaiser answered our salutations with a military salute.

COMMENT ON THE SITUATION.

Measuring men and events at the distance of six or seven thousand miles one is almost justified in drawing the inference from official dispatches that the Germans are going right on to Moscow and Petrograd. There is nothing in the reports to merit the belief that the Russians can stop them. London dispatches with reference to the Russian campaign are melancholy and pessimistic. A Berlin dispatch intimates that the war will end with the German capture of the Czar's capital.

The "watchful waiting" policy of the United States toward the anarchy in Mexico sustains itself like a chameleon on air alone. It is still THE policy in spite of rumors and reports to the contrary. Carranza seems also to have adopted it to delay his reply to the Pan-American appeal.

PETROGRAD AND ODESSA OBJECTIVES OF GERMANS.

Debacle in Russia may Soon Lead to the End of the War, According to Observers in Berlin—Retreat of the Czar's Armies Viewed as a Real Catastrophe — Demoralization Sets In.

BY OSWOLD F. SCHUETTE.

[BY WIRELESS AND DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

BERLIN, Aug. 28 (via Sayville, L. I.)—The German occupation of Brest-Litovsk brings the Russian retreat to a catastrophe. Never before in the world's history was an army of 3,000,000 men smashed and a whole kingdom given up as Poland has been to the Germans. It now seems possible to observers here that the Germans will reach Petrograd and Odessa and thus end the great war. What I have seen in the last ten days on the eastern front leads me to believe not only that the Russian army is badly crippled, but that demoralization and disorganization of the whole army has resulted. Such a debacle is indicated by the astonishing rapidity with which mighty fortresses have been evacuated and positions held by large masses of soldiers with munitions, guns and provisions have been given up.

GERMANS CONTINUE CHASE OF RETREATING RUSSIANS.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

PETROGRAD, Aug. 28 (via London, Aug. 29.)—The following official communication was issued by the War Office tonight:

"In the Riga region there is no change. In the direction of Friedrichstadt stubborn fighting continues, the enemy attempting to break through the railway from Kreuzberg and Mitau in the direction of Vilna on the right bank of the Viliya and also between the Viliya and the Niemen. On Thursday and Friday the German offensive was checked by counter-attacks on the middle Niemen and also on the front between the Bobr and Pripet.

"Yesterday our retreat continued with rear-guard fighting, the offensive being concentrated in the direction of Bialystok and along the western border of Beloveska'a and Puszka and also toward Kobrin.

"On the right bank of the Bug on Thursday the enemy started an offensive movement from Vladimir-Volynskyl toward the Orchin, Locachi and Poritsk. On the upper Bug River, the Zlota Lipa and the Dniester on Friday night and today attempted to attack in many sections and especially in the region of Brzezany and also to the west of Podgaitzi, where he got a footing on the left bank of the Zlota Lipa."

BARON AVIATOR INJURED.

While Demonstrating His War Craft to a Peaceful Crowd the Hungarian's Engine Stopped.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

ALLENTOWN (Pa.) Aug. 28. — Lieut. Baron Von Figelmessy, the noted Hungarian aviator, was seriously injured here today while demonstrating the possibilities of the aeroplane in war times. He had ascended about 700 feet and was in the act of dropping bombs on an improvised fort when his engine stopped. Failing to right his engine he tried to volplane to the earth and in an effort to avoid striking a big crowd of spectators he struck an electric light pole within thirty feet of the ground.

INDIAN PRINCE IN WAR ZONE.

SOME WORRY IN NEW YORK ABOUT A MAHARAJAH.

His Friends are Said to be Worried Lest He Fall into the Hands of the Germans—With Him is His Queen a Spanish Beauty, Whom He Married in Madrid.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—Somewhere in the dangerous waters that wash the British Isles the steamship Rotterdam is nearing the Port of Falmouth tonight with an Indian prince aboard, whose chief apprehension is that he may be captured by the Germans and held for ransom. He is Jagatjit Singh Bahadur, Maharajah of Kapurthala, whose rich principality lies in the Punjab of India and, reckoned one of the wealthiest and most powerful of Indian rulers; and he sailed secretly from this port August 21 on his way back to his kingdom after a two months' tour of the United States and Canada.

With the Maharajah are his Queen —the Maharanee—a Spanish beauty, whom he wedded in Madrid five years ago; his secretary, M. Roy, a considerable retinue of servants and an American girl, Miss Maggie Cullen, to whom the Maharanee took a liking while in the West.

The friends of the royal couple are very much afraid that German submarine commanders might hear of the Maharajah's departure from New York and, knowing his great wealth, might lie in wait for the ship, taking him off and hold him for ransom.

Through the agency of the British Consulate here, it was reported arrangements have been made for a British cruiser to meet the Rotterdam off Falmouth and convoy her through the submarine fields of operation to port.

GERMANS ARE FOMENTING REVOLUTION IN INDIA.

Arms Alleged to Have been Shipped from the United States to Secret Ports in Philippines and Dutch East Colonies—British will Rely on Japanese to Suppress Revolt if it Should Arise Suddenly.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON BUREAU OF THE TIMES, Aug. 28.—A revolution in India on a gigantic scale is being fomented by the German government. The details of the German operations show the usual systematic methods of the Berlin War Office. Large quantities of arms and ammunition have been shipped from the United States and China to secret ports in the Philippines and the Dutch East Indies.

A large force of German agents, including German missionaries, has been busy in seditious campaigning among the natives of the great eastern possession of the British crown. Plans have been perfected for the transportation of munitions to points in India where they can be safely landed and distributed among the natives. When the time is ripe the signal for the uprising will be given.

The British government is alive to the German purpose and is exercising the greatest vigilance to effect its failure. Both the United States and The Netherlands have been informed of the efforts being made to use their eastern territories as bases of operations against the colony of a friendly power. British and Japanese warships are sedulously patrolling the waters leading from the Philippines and the Dutch East Indies to India.

The British government entertains no doubt of its ability to suppress any revolt that may take place as a result of German intrigue. Should a formidable movement develop, however, the British government would not find it necessary to modify its plans for the maintenance of a strong force in France and Belgium, as well as on the Gallipoli Peninsula.

The fact is not lost sight of that the treaty of alliance between Britain and Japan contains a provision under which Japanese troops undoubtedly would be dispatched to the great peninsula.

Speculative.

STEEL PRODUCERS HOLD FOR HIGHER PRICES.

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—The week's violent revulsion of speculative sentiment turned wholly on the Arabic case. Official pronouncements from Berlin aroused hopes of concessions to the demands of the United States government that would avoid a rupture of relations. The informal nature of the Berlin assurances and some of the stated conditions, left sufficient doubt of the final settlement to give pause later to the rise.

Steel trade advices showed producers holding for higher prices and indisposed to expand contracts on the way up. Important buying of the railroads is still lacking.

The copper situation indicated vast improvement some of these issues making highest quotations in their history. Undoubtedly the advance in these stocks had its foundation in the higher prices quoted for the refined metal abroad, where futures rose twice to a total of 6¼ pounds sterling to the ton. There was also a decided increase in the demand from domestic consumers whose supplies had run low.

London exchange broke to the new low level of 4.62½, reviving the problem of means to stabilize rates.

Probable effects of the cotton contraband order and possible opening of the Dardanelles affected cotton and wheat markets. This country's strong banking condition gives confidence of every ability to safeguard the marketing of crops and to insure credit facilities for foreign trade.

France is Threatened with Political Upheaval—"Sacred Truce" is Breaking.

Coming Events.

ARMY VS. THE PEOPLE THE ISSUE IN PARIS.

Fears Entertained the Republic Cannot Weather Storms of the War.

Terrible "Committee of Public Safety" may be Re-established if the Socialists and Radicals Ride into Power — Other Alternative of the Situation is Military Absolutism as an Expedient.

BY JOHN L. BALDERSTON.

[SPECIAL FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

PARIS, Aug. 7.—Before the second winter of war has passed France will have undergone a political convulsion. The "sacred truce" by which all parties bound themselves to work together during the war will not last much longer. There are those who believe the republic cannot endure until the end of the conflict. The issue of the army against the people has been raised, and having been raised, it cannot be downed, but must be settled one way or the other.

As events have shaped themselves recently, one of two outcomes of the present conflict, none the less bitter because being fought in the dark, seems probable.

Either the republic will be overthrown by the army, in fact, if not in name, and the reins of absolute power seized by the brilliant Gen. Foch, the intrepid Marquis de Castelnau, or one of the other four war heroes who are credited with the desire to emancipate the army from civilian control. They are Gens. Langle de Cary, Franchet d'Esperey, D'Urbal and De Maud'huy.

Or, if the radicals and Socialists in Parliament have their way, the terrible Committee of Public Safety will be re-established. The chiefs of the army will be powerless before the grim "representatives on mission," civilian representatives of the supreme council who will visit the armies as did the emissaries of the terror, inquire into the conduct of operations, and return to Paris to recommend dismissal or promotions, offensives or retreats, which will be ordered by the committee over the heads of the General Staff. It will be a counterpart of the system under the revolution, excepting that in 1793 when a general did not meet with the approval of the "representatives on mission" he lost his head. In 1915 or 1916 he will lose only his job and his reputation.

And what of Joffre, generalissimo and "savior of France," as he was hailed after his masterly retreat, culminating in the victory of the Marne? Joffre is slated to go. Only a great victory can save him. He will be supplanted as soon as one or the other of the two great contending factions, loosely called the Republicans and the Royalists, gains the upper hand. He is honored and respected and trusted, in a political sense, by both sides, having given proof in France's hour of agony last August of complete devotion to his country by supplanting, right and left, his warmest friends in the army when they showed themselves incapable. From a purely political standpoint, therefore, he seems an ideal commander-in-chief. But Joffre, some of his generals and the great majority of Senators and Deputies now believe, is a second McClellan

MASTER OF STRATEGY.

One often hears this comparison in France from those who have studied the American Civil War. McClellan, like Joffre, was a master of theoretical strategy. McClellan, too, was idolized by his soldiers, who were angry almost to the point of mutiny when Lincoln removed him from command. McClellan was an ideal organizer and drill master, and the Union armies of '63 and '64 owed much to his painstaking work in '61 and '62. Joffre has shown similar genius for whipping his vast hosts into shape. But it is the verdict of history that McClellan was overcautious. He was too sparing of the lives of his men, he always overestimated the strength of his enemy; he suffered from a fatal indecision at critical moments. All these things are charged against Joffre by men who love him and admire him.

Joffre, when the time comes, will not be disgraced. His critics speak of him for the post of Minister of War. The laurels he won at the Marne have not faded, but it is pointed out that France must not forget the disastrous, almost disgraceful collapse of his offensive which opened the war in Alsace, Lorraine and Belgian Luxemburg. And everyone who has had facilities for studying the early campaigns knows that two men saved France from ruin, both of them branded by the Radical party as "royalists" and "unsafe." On was De Castelnau, whose defense of Nancy against great odds prevented the Bavarians from pouring through the gap in the Meuse defenses, joining the army of the Crown Prince as it emerged from the Argonne district, and cutting off all the French eastern armies from their comrades. The other was Gen. Foch, who won the battle of the Marne, while the attention of the world was focussed on the wholly secondary flanking operations against Von Kluck. Von Kluck, attacked in flank, withdrew to the Ourcq and fought a delaying battle while the issue was decided forty miles away in the center of the line, where Foch, on a stormy night, forced apart the Saxon and Wurtemberg armies under Von Buelow and the Duke of Wurtemberg by a wedge formation, and compelled both to retreat. As this action in the center approached the crisis Foch wired this reply to Joffre's dispatch telling him that on his shoulders rested the fate of the battle:

"My left is routed. My right is beaten. I shall attack with my center."

If the battle of the Marne comes to rank in history with Marathon and Waterloo, that dispatch sent off just before Foch with his unbeaten center made his astounding coup may come to rank with Caeser's, "I came, I saw, I conquered," and the few other famous announcements by the victors of victories. Men have won crowns in France for immortal phrases.

Joffre's great winter offensive in Champagne, the spring attack along the heights of the Meuse, the attempt to eliminate the German salient at St. Mihiel, and the recent drive north of Arras, all failed. Some ground was gained in each case, but Joffre rightly or wrongly is blamed for not carrying the attacks through at any cost until his objective was attained. The Arras attack, for instance, was aimed at Lille. Gen. Foch or Gen. De Castelnau, men are whispering, would have taken Lille, and a bloody victory is more to be desired than a check which conserves lives. France is wearying of the system of "nibbling," as Joffre describes his strategy, and the nibbling process seems to be exhausting France more rapidly than Germany.

JOFFRE'S SUCCESSOR.

When Joffre is removed, the man who takes his place will not be a general who, like him, is trusted and respected by the other leaders in the field and by the Radical-Socialist majority in Parliament as well. There is no such man. The leading generals from among whom a choice must be made are Royalists or Republicans. The term "Royalist" as used in Paris today does not mean what it seems to imply. A Royalist general is not necessarily a man who supports a Bourbon or Orleans or Bonaparte pretender; he is one who wants supreme power during the war vested in the military, and hence falls under suspicion of favoring a dictatorship and possibly permanent overthrow of democratic institutions. Probably the real aims of most of these men at present go no further than freeing the army during the war from any sort of civilian interference, official or unofficial.

The Royalist generals are Foch, De Castelnau, Maud'huy, De Cary, d'Urbal and d'Esperey.

The Republican generals are Sarrail and Dubail.

These eight foremost soldiers of France have won their way to the command of armies or groups of armies by merit alone, as shown under fire. All owe their present positions to Joffre, whose sole criterion in making appointments has been ability. It is a mere coincidence that only two generals whose political affiliations are satisfactory to the Radicals have distinguished themselves. But it is a very unfortunate coincidence for Parliament, which dares not trust the two most brilliant candidates for supreme command, Foch and De Castelnau. The latter is a real Royalist, a supporter of the exiled Bourbons.

The "man on horseback" is what the Republicans and Socialists fear. That fear is the explanation of the successful attempt to keep from the people at large the details concerning the exploits of generals in the field, and even their very names when that is possible. The Deputies know their France. The frenzy of popular adulation which went out to Napoleon, which made the French nation vote him Emperor at the polls, with only a few scattered ballots cast in dissent, was no greater than will be accorded to the man who drives the Germans from the sacred soil of the republic. Those who believe that democratic ideals are no less important than victories on the battlefield would not trust Foch or De Castelnau to push away, as Caesar did, a crown offered by the people. Any one of the other four Royalist generals, they contend, could gain appointment as generalissimo only because of the distrust of Foch and De Castelnau, and would act as the tool of an army ring controlled by these two powerful leaders.

IF PARLIAMENT CHOSE.

One of the two Republican generals, Sarrail or Dubail, both of whom have notably distinguished themselves, would accordingly be chosen generalissimo if Joffre resigned tomorrow, provided, which is doubtful, that Parliament did the choosing. Both have political records which inspire confidence that neither would look with sympathy on any projected overthrow of the democracy.

The greatest scandal of the war is convulsing France at present, and these two Republican generals are the cause of it. An inquiry which will dwarf such celebrated postmortems as the Sampson-Schley inquiry is probable after the war, and yet so effective is the French censorship that no French newspaper has yet printed a word about the affair.

Dubail, as Sarrail's superior officer, tried to have Sarrail disgraced for losing ground last month in the Argonne forest. He succeeded in having Sarrail ousted from his command, but Surrail and his partisans, who include most of the Socialist deputies, charge that Dubail wished to remove from his path a dangerous rival for the post of generalissimo. So important have been Sarrail's supporters that the government tried, and tried unsuccessfully, to smooth things over by appointing Sarrail commander of the French army at the Dardanelles, and adopted the course unprecedented in this war of publically announcing the appointment.

The facts about the affair are hard to determine, because of the impossibility of public discussion in the newspapers and the consequent circulation of charges and countercharges which cannot be proven or disproven. It is a fact that Gen. Dubail, who is the commander of the group of three armies on the eastern end of the battle line, recommended to Joffre that Sarrail be dismissed because he failed to take proper precautions against attack. Last month the army of the Crown Prince assailed Sarrail's positions and gained nearly a mile of ground in the Argonne forest, largely because of the use of poison gas. Sarrail is accused of not providing respirators for his men.

Joffre indorsed Dubail's report and forwarded it to War Minister Millerand. Joffre, it is said, made no inquiry into the facts himself, accepting as is usual the recommendations of the general in command of the army group. Millerand laid the charges before the Cabinet, and Sarrail was removed.

Immediately Sarrail came to Paris, and great political activity began at once. Clemenceau and other politicians who have been trying to force Millerand out of office seized on the "martyrdom" of Sarrail and began a new attack. To the government's suggestion that he go to the Dardanelles, Sarrail, it is said, refused to accede unless he was granted enough additional army corps to make the French force at the straits superior in number to the British, and consequently give him supreme command of the enterprise instead of the British general, Sir Ian Hamilton. To this the government replied, the story goes, by unconditionally ordering Sarrail to the Dardanelles, and the aggrieved general will sail this week, taking the place of Gen. Giroud, who was severely wounded.

By this coup, according to Sarrail's friends, Dubail has gotten rid of his one dangerous rival, and now expects to be placed in supreme command when Joffre receives the intimation that his resignation is expected. Dubail owes his position as commander of three armies to his splendid work in the Vosges last autumn, when he defeated German forces greatly superior to his own. Sarrail was the defender of Verdun against the Crown Prince, and saved the fortress by appreciating in time the worthlessness of forts against modern siege guns. He put his army to work digging trenches far in advance of the permanent works, and as a result the Germans have never been able to get within range of the fortifications. Following the retreat of the Crown Prince after the battle of the Marne, Sarrail's army locked horns with him in the Argonne, and there was no material advance by either side until the surprise attack of the Germans last month which resulted in Sarrail's removal.

The fact that all mention of the part taken by the generals in the great battles that have been fought has been forbidden by the authorities has resulted in the great mass of Frenchmen remaining entirely ignorant of Foch's blow at the Marne, De Castelnau's defense of Nancy, Dubail's brilliant campaign in the Vosges and Sarrail's deeds before Verdun. Not even the names of the generals in command of the armies can be printed here.

BRILLIANT DEEDS.

Each of the other principal chieftains of the French hosts has brilliant deeds to his credit. Langle de Cary, during the battle of Marne, commanded the Fourth Army when it made its great stand south of Vitry le Francois against twice its number. D'Esperey co-operated with Sir John French in winning the battle against Von Kluck on the left of the French line. D'Urbal, commanding the Eighth Army, and Maud'huy, at the head of the Tenth Army, did immortal work in standing off the German rush for the sea in October and November, when the eyes of the world were centered on the British stand at Ypres because news was permitted to leak out concerning what was going on there, while the rest of the battlefield was shrouded in silence. Maud'huy stood fast at Arras and defeated the Bavarian army and the army of Gen. Von Buelow. The moment when these forces fell upon him with the aid of the Prussian Guard, on October 26, has been called by an English critic the most critical of the campaign in the west, for if Maud'huy had given way the road to the channel ports and to Paris would have again been opened. The French line remained unbroken, and the situation was saved. D'Urbal with his Eighth Army withstood part of the German plunge against the line of the Yser and the Ypres salient. Had he not been able, on October 30, to get the Ninth Corps into action beside the British, Ypres and with it Calais would have fallen to the Prussians.

How Joffre fired general after general as incapacity and stupidity made themselves manifest during the early days of the war is well known. Hundreds of officers of high rank were removed before the battle of the Marne began. The rise of the men who showed real merit was consequently rapid. Gen. Langle de Cary was over age and on the reserve list when war came, but Joffre put him back in harness and he has brilliantly justified his chief's confidence. Foch, Sarrail and d'Esperey were corps commanders in August and army commanders in September. Now Foch commands the five French armies on the left of the battle line. Most rapid promotion of all was won by Maud'huy and d'Urbal. When war broke out, Maud'huy, a man of 57, was leading a humdrum existence as professor of military history at the French West Point. In three weeks he was promoted from brigadier-general to general of division, then to corps commander, then to army commander. Since then he has been placed in command of a group of armies. D'Urbal made the same dazzling ascent in almost the same space of time, and is only 56 years old and the youngest army commander in the field excepting Gen. Humbert, who has just been given command of the Army of Argonne in place of Gen. Sarrail. Humbert is 50, and began the war as a major.

It will easily be understood from the resume given of the careers of the great soldiers developed by France in a year of war that they are all devoted to Gen. Joffre, who made them all. But everyone, Joffre himself, Royalist general and Republican general, Cabinet Minister and Socialist deputy, is heart and soul for France, and will not permit personal feeling to influence him if he can help it. That the days of Joffre's tenure of the supreme command seem to be numbered is due to the widespread feeling that with all his great qualities he has not the brilliance and determination needed to win great victories at frightful cost.

That Joffre will be supplanted in the immediate future is unlikely. The political situation is too confused at present. Perhaps he will retain command for the rest of the year, but when the time draws near for the spring campaign of 1916, which everyone hopes and expects will result in terrible blows for Germany, a new tenant will occupy General Headquarters. That is the universal expectation in military and political circles. Joffre may silence criticism and bring all France to his feet, but to do that and retain his command he must win victories. No success of greater than merely local importance, nothing that measured by the scale of this war can be called a victory, has been won by France since with the help of the British the drive for the channel ports was met and thrown back.

HINGHAM (Mass.) Aug. 28.—John D. Long, formerly Secretary of the Navy, and former Governor of Massachusetts, died at his home here tonight.

Mr. Long's death was generally unexpected. He returned from a trip to Maine two days ago, suffering from an intestinal trouble with which he had been afflicted for several years. He was ordered to rest by his physician, but reports that his condition was critical were denied.

John D. Long was Secretary of the Navy during the Spanish-American War. It was he who is on record as having dispatched the famous message of April 25, 1898, to Commodore George Dewey, commanding the Asiatic squadron, then awaiting orders at Hongkong. The message read:

"War has commenced between Spain and the United States. Proceed at once to the Philippine Islands. Capture or destroy the Spanish ships. Use the utmost endeavor."

It was on the sixth day after the receipt of these orders that Dewey reported his great victory in the battle of Manila Bay. As to the message which had thus sent the fleet into action, Secretary Long once said:

"My name was at the bottom. Glorious dispatch! I should rather like to have the credit of it. But it was not mine. I directed Chief Crowninshield of the Bureau of Navigation to have such a dispatch made ready. But Crowninshield did not write it. Who prepared it? Some subordinate clerk in his bureau. Who? God only knows. As for me, I should not have used the word 'commenced.' I should have said: 'the war has begun.' Aside from that, it is a mighty good message. I think we can pardon that word. The dispatch came in to me. I took it to the President, saying to him: 'Mr. President, I think this ought to go.' He said: "All right; sign it.'"

Mr. Long was called to head the Navy Department when President McKinley took office in March, 1897, and also served a year in the Cabinet of President Roosevelt.

ACCUSED OF FAVORING SCHLEY.

Rumors of his resignation were frequent during the Sampson-Schley controversy, when Mr. Long was accused of unduly favoring Schley, but he declared he would not resign "under fire" and retained his position until 1902, when he was much affected by the death of his daughter and his own ill health. In accepting his resignation, President Roosevelt wrote:

"It has never been my good fortune to be associated with any public man more single-minded in his devotion to the public interest."

In addition to directing the navy during the war with Spain, the official acts of Secretary Long included the placing of thousands of navy employees under the civil service rules, and the prohibition of the sale of beer on naval vessels.

John Davis Long was born in Buckfield, Me., in 1838, the son of a prosperous business man, but his own predilection was for law, and politics. Settled in Boston after his graduation from Harvard, he served four terms in the State Legislature; was three terms Speaker of the house; was Lieutenant-Governor, and in 1879 defeated Gen. Benjamin F. Butler, the Democratic candidate for Governor, by a plurality of 13,000. He was twice re-elected with large pluralities, and sent to Congress for three terms. There he formed a warm personal regard for William McKinley.

NOMINATAED EDMUNDS.

In 1884 he made a strong speech, nominating Senator George F. Edmunds of Vermont for President in the Republican national convention. He was one of the most polished debaters in Congress, his speeches being noted for their literary excellence, and a dry humor which made him popular as an after-dinner speaker. At leisure at his home in the quaint old town of Hingham, near Boston, he wrote a volume of poems and translated Virgil's "Aeneid. He was a member of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences. A total abstainer from early life, he was also for many years president of the Massachusetts Total Abstinence Society.

Notwithstanding his national prominence as former Secretary of the Navy, among his New England friends he was affectionately known as "Governor" Long to the end of his life.

GERMAN REPORT CALLED INVENTION

LONDON, Thursday, Aug. 26, 12:40 p.m. (delayed by censor.)—A despatch to the Central News from Amsterdam says:

"A semi-official telegram from Berlin states that the British Minister at Bucharest has asked the official newspapers there to declare that the German official report of August 18 was 'invented.' This report referred to an attack by German torpedo boats near Hornsriff lightship off the Jutland coast on August 17, when a small British cruiser and a British destroyer are stated to have been sunk.

"According to further information it is declared the British vessels were surprised by the attack of the German torpedo craft and that the cruiser, which belonged to the Aurora class, sank within four minutes, the destroyer being immediately afterwards struck by a torpedo."

No statement has been issued by the British Admiralty in regard to the declaration in the German Admiralty statement received on August 19 that "a small modern British cruiser" and a torpedo boat destroyer had been sunk off the Jutland coast with torpedoes in an attack by five boats of a German torpedo boat flotilla.

FORT CAPTURED BY BAYONET.

How Teutonic Troops Got into Brest-Litovsk.

Croatian and Cracow Infantry Fight Bravely.

Hand-to-hand Engagement with Slavic Defenders.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

AUSTRO - HUNGARIAN HEADQUARTERS, Aug. 28 (via London) 8:28 p.m.)—The fort of Brest-Litovsk was taken largely with the bayonet, according to details of the Teutonic storming of that stronghold received here. The Croatian and Cracow infantry are said to have distinguished themselves in charges against the southern and western fronts, while the German reserve corps forced its way into the citadel and town from the north.

The Russians had, during the war, erected a new line of works beyond the swamps encircling the fortress three to four kilometers outside the permanent fort girdle, and had fortified it strongly and provided it with ten series of barbed wire entanglements, as well as a broad field of buried mines. The storm began in the afternoon of August 25. The infantry of Gen. Von Arz advanced on both sides of the Biala torrent. They hewed their way with entrenching tools and gun butts through the entanglements, under heavy rifle and machine-gun fire and charged the forts with the bayonets.

The charge was irresistible.

Advancing recklessly they engaged in a desparate hand-to-hand struggle with the stubbornly resisting Russians. The last foot was taken by 11 o'clock at night.

The Russian survivors across the Bug River were destroying the bridges behind them. The Austro-Hungarian forces pursued them vigorously. The Teutonic troops reached the river at 3 o'clock in the morning, where they were obliged to await the arrival of pontoons. The Germans in the meantime, attacking from the north, carried this sector of the fort girdle and, unhampered by the river, stormed the citadel and forced a way into the town.

The Russians fired the city in their retreat. Most of the 51,000 inhabitants left before the siege.

WASHINGTON BUREAU OF THE TIMES, Aug. 28.—The largest output of gold in California in thirty-two years was recorded in 1914, according to an announcement by the United States Geological Survey made public today. The announcement states that the yield of mine gold in California last year was $20,653,496, being an increase of $246,338 over that of 1913, and with the exception of the year 1883, the largest output since 1864, fifty years ago.

The value of the entire mine output of gold, silver, copper, lead and zinc in California in 1914 was $25,-710,645. The mine production of silver in California, it was announced today, was 1,471,869 ounces at $813,-935. A total of seven silver mines were working in the State in 1914, which is more than in a number of years.

A decrease for the year in the production of copper was observed. In 1914 the State mined $30,507,692 pounds, valued at $4,057,523, a decrease of 4,067,315 pounds in quantity and $1,301,604 from the total for 1913. The yield of lead in 1914 was 4,231,923 pounds, valued at $165,825, an increase in quantity of 727,581 pounds and in value of $11,194. Most of the lead was derived from Inyo county, though some came from Shasta, Kern and Placer counties.

The zinc production in 1914 was 339,471 pounds, valued at $19,863.

FRANK L. POLK AS COUNSELOR.

NEW YORKER LANDS PORTFOLIO HELD BY LANSING.

Former Corporation Attorney of the Metropolis is Called to Washington to Take a Position that may Let Him into the Conferences of the President with His Cabinet.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—The selection of Frank L. Polk, corporation counsel of New York City, to be counselor of the State Department was formally announced tonight by Secretary Lansing. The President has tendered the position to Mr. Polk, who has accepted.

Mr. Polk will succeed Mr. Lansing, who became Secretary on the resignation of William Jennings Bryan last June. The counselor's office has been vacant since Mr. Lansing took his place in the Cabinet, and there has been much gossip as to who would fill it. A. Mitchell Palmer of Pennsylvania and Cone Johnson, solicitor of the State Department, have been among those most prominently mentioned, although it is known Mr. Polk's name was suggested by Secretary Lansing early in the discussion.

While John Basset Moore was counselor he acted for the Secretary in all matters in the latter's absence from Washington and the rule continued in effect while Mr. Lansing held the post. Diplomatic callers were referred to the counselor and when matters of pressing importance were pending, such as the correspondence with Germany over the Lusitania case, the counselor was called into conference at Cabinet meetings. While it has not been definitely decided, it is practically certain that the rule will continue in effect after Mr. Polk takes office.

One year ago in July exports were less than imports by more than $5,000,000.

Request for Information as to Progress of Private Negotiations Forwarded to London by the British Embassy—England Accused of Holding up Hides Consigned to this Country.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—A request for information as to the progress of private negotiations for the safe conduct of American shipments from neutral countries was forwarded to London today by the British Embassy. Persistent reports that brokers in London were securing permits for such shipments have led to considerable inquiry by the trade advisers of the State Department, which has failed thus far to secure definite results.

The attention of the British Embassy was called to the situation with a request for information. The Embassy was unable to clear it up and instructions were sent to Ambassador [illegible] at London to inquire into the [illegible]. He was told to point out that the State Department, in its unofficial negotiations, desired to secure the privileges now reported as being accorded to private interests. No reply has yet been received and the British Embassy has taken up the matter directly with the London Foreign Office.

Hundreds of American concerns are interested in the delayed shipments and many of them have notified the department that they understood London interests were securing permits for shipments.

Complaint was made today that Great Britain was holding up consignments of hides bought in England by American tanners and already paid for. The British embargo on hides would force the sale of these shipments in Great Britain at a substantial loss to the American buyers and the State Department has forwarded queries to London.

DOUBLE PANAMA GARRISON ORDER FROM WASHINGTON.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—The Coast artillery force on duty at the Panama Canal will be [illegible] to full strength of twenty-[illegible] companies or about 2000 men, it was learned today, the former policy of maintaining the big crews at half-strength in peace time [illegible] been abandoned.

Originally it was planned to maintain them with fourteen companies under the theory that it was improbable that the defenses at both ends of the waterway would be attacked simultaneously and the canal and railroad made rapid shifting of the forces to the danger point possible. Under the general readjustment plans of the army, full garrisons for the canal defenses have been determined upon.

DOUBLE RANGE FOR BIG GUNS.

THIRTY DEGREE ELEVATION FOR BATTLESHIP CANNON.

Navy Department Taking Note of Lessons of European War will See that Hereafter Important Change is Made in Mounting Fourteen-inch Weapons.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—Main batteries of American battleships hereafter will be given an elevation of 30 degrees, practically doubling the present angle of fire, according to a decision reached by the Navy Department experts, it is said, after close study of all available information on naval engagements of the European war. Wherever possible ships now under construction, and those already commissioned, it is understood, will be similarly fitted.

The effect of the change will be to alter materially the range of the navy's 14-inch guns and also to make gunfire more accurate in rough weather. The guns now have sufficient range to reach anything within the limit of vision at sea, and the added elevation will enable them to hurl shells at objects far beyond the horizon or over hills of considerable size in bombarding land fortifications.

Navy officers have heeded closely information on the battles in the North Sea and off the Falkland Islands in reaching their determination, it is said. Both were fought at almost the extreme range of the biggest guns.

Bion J. Arnold of Chicago Is Pushing Movement to Have Corps Available in Case of War.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

CHICAGO, Aug. 28.—The movement begun in a tentative way last spring to form a reserve corps of engineers to be available in case of war, has assumed definite form, according to an announcement made here today by Bion J. Arnold.

Some time ago the suggestion was taken up by the American Society of Civil Engineers, the American Institute of Mining Engineers, the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, the American Institute of Electrical Engineers and the American Institute of Constructing Engineers.

Each of these organizations appointed committees to further the movement which has now become more closely consolidated by the appointment, just announced, of the chairmen of these committees as members of a joint committee to take charge, in cooperation with the War Department, of the work. The members of the committee are William Barclay Parsons, chairman, New York; Henry S. Drinker, Pennsylvania; William H. Wiley, New York; Bion J. Arnold, Illinois; Ralph D. Morehon, New York.

The European war, according to members of the committee has shown that engineers are needed on a scale hitherto unknown.

MUNSEY QUITS AGAIN.

Magazine Owner Lets Go His Baltimore Interests for Four Million Dollars or Thereabouts.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

BALTIMORE (Md.) Aug. 28.—Announcement was made today of the sale by Frank A. Munsey of the Baltimore News and the Munsey Building to Stuart Olivier, who has been general manager of Mr. Munsey's Baltimore interests. It is understood the transaction involved an amount in the neighborhood of four millions.

The News today publishes a personal statement by Mr. Munsey concerning the sale of his Baltimore interests to Mr. Olivier, in which he said that he bought the Baltimore News with the view to making it one of a chain of newspapers to be owned and operated by one central organization. Theoretically, he said, the idea looked to be sound. "But the newspaper chain in the outworking isn't the same thing it looked to be in analysis," Mr. Munsey continued.

"Ownership management speaks a language that the community understands. It knows its accent, its intonations and characteristics, whereas with the salaried management there is always something akin to the foreign accent that cannot be disguised."

SKIDS OILED FOR REDFIELD.

IMPRESSION PREVALENT HE IS TO LEAVE CABINET.

President Wilson Disappointed at His Conduct of Eastland Inquiry and Shocked at His Collision with Federal Judge Landis—Has Failed to Impress Business Men.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON BUREAU OF THE TIMES, Aug. 28.—There is a growing belief in Washington that Secretary of Commerce Redfield soon will end his career as a member of the President's Cabinet. For some weeks there have been intimations here that President Wilson has been dissatisfied with Mr. Redfield. This dissatisfaction, it is said, was tremendously increased by his manner at the inquiry into the Eastland disaster at Chicago. The Secretary's collision with Federal Judge Landis was a distinct shock to the President.

Secretary Redfield owes his place in the Cabinet to a couple of tariff speeches which he delivered in the Sixty-second Congress while serving as a member from Brooklyn. President Wilson was greatly impressed by these speeches and during the 1912 campaign frequently referred to them or appropriated them in his own talks.

Since he has entered the Cabinet, however, the President has felt that Secretary Redfield has not created a favorable impression in his public speechmaking.

The administration was greatly disappointed when the talks of its business man in the Cabinet apparently failed to impress business men in the country.

WAR'S BURDEN ON BRITAIN.

SEVERE DEFEAT OF RUSSIA AWFUL BLOW TO ALLIES.

Armies in the West Now Look for Full Flood of Deeper Invasion and Germans are Expected to Return in Greater Strength than Ever Before.

BY J. L. GARVIN.
Editor "Pall Mall Gazette."

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

LONDON, Aug. 28.—On Britain must fall more and more the main weight of the war until the recovery of Russia is complete.

I shall say at once in plain idiom that for all the purposes of the next few months the western allies are "in for it" and no mistake. There can be no limited liability for any belligerent in this war.

The accomplished facts now are that the Germans have conquered nearly all of the frontier defenses of Northern Russia and that our allies are exposed to the full flood of a deeper invasion.

The severity of Germany's defeat is proved by their complete withdrawal from the gulf. The Germans will doubtless try to return, but are not likely to find the task less dangerous than before.

Meanwhile, according to the German custom after a check, they are redoubling their military efforts by throwing heavy reinforcements into the Baltic provinces between Riga and Vilna. If they can capture the former city as well as the latter, the naval attempt up the gulf would have better prospects.

This is one of the biggest issues contested in the whole war. The stakes are tremendous.

The Germans' main object is still to break down, by one way or another, the Grand Duke's fighting power and prevent the recovery of his offensive strength and knock Russia out of the war.

BISHOP WILL RECOVER.

WINONA (Minn.) Aug. 28.—Bishop Patrick R. Heffron, shot yesterday through the right lung by Father L. M. Leaches, probably will recover, his physician stated today. Father Leaches, who is believed to be demented, was being held in the County Jail.

FEAR STRANGERS IN MARIETTA, GA.

SUPPOSED DETECTIVES SENT AWAY IN BOX CAR.

Town Whose Citizens Lynched Frank Now Shuns Publicity and if You Have no Business There it is Much Better to Stay Away from the Neighborhood.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

MARIETTA (Ga.) Aug. 28.—Eight men, who did not give satisfactory explanations of their presence here, were rounded up late last night, placed in a boxcar on a freight train and sent away. The car was guarded safely until the train left the town limits.

Since Leo M. Frank was lynched here August 17 several persons, whose business in the town was not known, have been invited to leave. Five men were ordered away yesterday.

These events and the continual receipt of letters threatening various sorts of vengeance for Frank's lynching caused the police officials here to increase the number of officers by fifteen today. The letters are being received from all parts of the country by officials and persons who have given statements on the Frank case to newspapers outside the State. Some of the letters have been turned over to postoffice inspectors at Atlanta.

TEMPEST IN A TEAPOT.

Roosevelt is Still Giving Out "Lengthy Statements" and Bryan is Doing the Same.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

OYSTER BAY (N. Y.) Aug. 28.—Former President Theodore Roosevelt issued another lengthy statement tonight in reply to Secretary of War Garrison in the controversy brought about by Mr. Roosevelt's Plattsburg speech. Col. Roosevelt took issue with the Secretary on the administration's attitude toward Mexico and Haiti. He also called attention to what he called the "unpreparedness" of our fleet, saying in part:

"I point out to him that for nearly two years in 1913 and 1914, the ships of the navy were never exercised in fleet maneuvering, and, as I am reliably informed, were never exercised in fleet and squadron modern gunnery. A moderately intelligent child of 6 knows that the failure for two years to undertake such maneuvers means a literally criminal deterioration in the fleet and cannot possibly mean anything else. No expert knowledge is needed on this point; it is a mere matter of ordinary common sense.

"The very great falling off in the gunnery that was shown by the results last spring and the early part of the summer are directly due to this culpable misconduct in handling our navy; and it represents unpreparedness of the very worse kind, because unpreparedness that takes the shape of letting the weapons that have made ready utterly deteriorate is even worse than failure to provide new weapons."

BRYAN AS A CRITIC.

CHICAGO, Aug. 28.—William Jennings Bryan, on his way to Winona Lake, Ind., stopped long enough in Chicago today to criticise Theodore Roosevelt for his speech at Plattsburg, N. Y. Mr. Bryan said:

"It is said to have been an ancient custom for parents to teach their children the evils of intemperance by taking before them persons in an intoxicated condition," Mr. Bryan said. "It is possible that Mr. Roosevelt is serving a useful purpose in warning the public of the effects which the doctrine of preparedness may have on a man when he gives himself up to it as a regular business."

DAMAGE BY HURRICANE.

Nearly a Million Dollars Loss Caused to the People of Texas by the Recent Storm.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

HOUSTON (Tex.) Aug. 28.—Damage to standing timber of approximately $700,000, loss to mills of $100,000, smaller output on account of enforced idleness of the mills and poor logging conditions is a result of the recent hurricane in Southeastern Texas, according to the Gulf Coast Lumberman today.

It is estimated 140,000,000 feet of standing timber was destroyed and that the idleness of the mills has cut down the output about 45,000,000 feet since the storm.

SUCCESS OF ITALIANS IN THE STRINA VALLEY.

Rome Reports that the Enemy has Suffered Heavy Losses, Leaving in the Hands of the Attackers a Great Quantity of Machine Guns, Ammunition and Sixteen Cases of Bombs—Fire Shooters Also Taken.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

ROME, Aug. 28 (via Paris, Aug. 29, 12:30 a.m.)—The following official statement was given out tonight by the Italian war office:

"Details of our success in the Strina Valley show that the enemy suffered severe losses, leaving in our hands a great quantity of machine guns, ammunition and sixteen cases of bombs. An important force of the enemy at Saccarant and Pozi Alta suffered heavily, some guns being destroyed and those remaining being transferred to other positions outside the defense works from where they still reply to our fire.

"The enemy continued an artillery action against Bargo in the Val Bugana region, doing little damage, and tried to attack in force our positions at Seikofel in the valley of Monte Piano, north of Misurina and Zellankofel, west of Monte Croce, and Carnico, but everywhere were repulsed.

"In the Plezzo zone our artillery operated effectually against the enemy's troops in the Lepenje Valley and against columns on the march along the route of the upper Isonzo, interrupting their advance on Carso. We also effectively bombarded the enemy's skirmishes near Doberdo Lake and on marching columns between Doberdo and Larcottini.

"Among materials taken by us in trenches captured on August 20 at Monte Nero we found two apparatus supposed to be for inflammable liquids."

ARKANSAS LEVEE IS BROKEN AGAIN.

FARM LANDS BADLY FLOODED. PEOPLE ARE GIVEN CHANCE TO ESCAPE.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

LITTLE ROCK (Ark.) Aug. 28.—A new break today in the White River, this time ten miles above Des Arc, flooded another large area of farm lands, but ample warning enabled the inhabitants to reach places of safety with most of their personal possessions, though they suffered heavy losses in crops.

Except for this break, the flood situation improved materially. The break caused the river to fall slightly at Des Arc and its effect was expected to be felt tomorrow upstream, where the river continued to rise today. Newport has begun the task of restoration where the flood brought ruin, and refugees have been supplied with abundant food. However, along the lower White River the number of refugees continues to grow and more than 500 persons were quartered tonight in camps at Georgetown, Devalt's Bluff, Augusta and Clarendon.

There has been no confirmation of loss of life.

Additional delegates from New England were to join the party at Albany. The trains will pass over routes which will enable the bankers to visit Glacier National Park, the Canadian Rockies, Salt Lake, the Panama-Pacific Exposition and the fair at San Diego, Cal.

Government Issues Cook Book Containing Hundred Different Recipes for Preparing Nutritious Bivalve.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—"Oyster, the Food that has not Gone Up," is the title of the government's latest cook book, issued today through the Bureau of Fisheries. It contains one hundred recipes for preparing the bivalves as well as a little of their history written by H. F. Moore, Deputy Commissioner of Fisheries.

"An animal food which practically has not increased in cost for twenty-five years and the production of which has kept pace with the growth of population," Mr. Moore says, "is a present-day anomaly worthy of public attention; especially when its price brings it within the reach of all and its excellence leaves little to be desired. This is the case of the oyster."

BRIDGEPORT STRIKES.

Another One is Impending in the Town Where Ammunition for the Allies is Being Made.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

BRIDGEPORT (Ct.) Aug. 28.—Another strike against the Remington Arms and Ammunition Company was said this afternoon to be impending. The alleged grievance affects the metal polishers and braziers. The claim is that when wages were advanced the metal polishers did not have their adjustment and that when four of their number sought an interview with officers of the company they were locked out. The executive board of the Metal Polishers, Buffers, Platers, Brass and Silver Workers' Union will meet Monday to consider the matter.

T. S. BRICKHOUSE WINS CONTEST.

CHAMPION IN RECEIVING AND SENDING EVENTS.

Telegraphers' Tournament, Open to the World, Brings Out Some Speedy Records in San Francisco. Carnegie Diamond Medal Event Attracts Long List of Entrants.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 28.—T. S. Brickhouse of San Francisco, until recently with the Associated Press, was announced tonight as the winner of both the receiving and sending events of the press contest, held yesterday, as one of the features of the Telegraphers' championship tournament, open to the world, which was concluded here tonight.

The contest called for the sending and receiving of 1500 words of press matter using the Phillips' Code. Brickhouse's time for sending was 27 minutes, 55 and 1-5 seconds, for receiving 31 minutes. A. G. Tebbs, of the International News Service, Los Angeles, was second in the sending event, and C. V. Barfield, of the Associated Press, San Francisco, took second honors as receiver.

In a special contest pitting hand against machine senders, C. V. Barfield, using a vibrating machine, defeated his brother, H. E. Barfield, also of the Associated Press.

The all-round championship event, which carries with it the Carnegie Diamond Medal, began at 3 p.m. today and was not expected to be decided until a late hour tonight.

The tournament was held under the auspices of the Panama-Pacific Exposition and entrants to the various events were present from all parts of the country.

BRIDES PLENTY ON KROONLAND.

ENOUGH RICE WASTED AT PIER TO FEED EIGHT BELGIAN FAMILIES.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK BUREAU OF THE TIMES, Aug. 28.—The Panama-Pacific liner Kroonland carried so many bridal couples when she set out for the Pacific Coast this morning that enough rice was wasted on the pier to have fed eight Belgian families all winter. Such blushing, giggling, kissing and weeping as went on at the gangplank have not been observed around there for months, nor so many bridegrooms looking foolish and trying to make it appear that they were enjoying the send-off their kind friends were giving them.

There were 175 cabin passengers aboard and 150 intermediate. The Kroonland will go by way of the Canal.

Miss Florence Redfield, the 16-year-old daughter of the Secretary of the Interior, is making the trip alone to take in the fair.

ASAMA IS DUE AT SAN FRANCISCO.

DISABLED CRUISER WILL GO HOMEWARD AFTER TAKING ON SUPPLIES.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 28.—The disabled Japanese cruiser Asama, which went ashore near Turtle Bay, Lower California, about February 4, 1915, will arrive here soon, customs officials said today.

The Asama is being convoyed by the Japanese naval repair ship Kwanto Maru, which will be permitted to take on coal enough to carry her to the nearest home port, and necessary supplies.

Authority to enter port and obtain supplies has been granted by the government and instructions given in the case to John O. Davis, Collector of Customs, by the Treasury Department, it was stated today.

Several Japanese vessels have stood by the Asama since last February. It was necessary to raise her and repair the hull.

SIGHT-SEEING AUTO ESCAPES.

TWO WOMEN SLIGHTLY HURT BY JUMPING BEFORE IT IS STOPPED.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 28.—Two women were injured slightly today, when they jumped from a sight-seeing automobile which ran down hill through heavy traffic on Van Ness avenue with no one at the steering wheel. About fifty persons on the car screamed and prepared to jump, but the conductor at the rear of the car ran along the running board and applied the brakes, stopping the car after it had gone a hundred yards.

The brakes on the car were released in some manner while the chauffeur was gone to get water for the radiator.

The injured women are Mrs. Anne Kerban of Indianapolis, Ind., and Mrs. H. T. Rogers of Newell, Iowa. Both suffered severe bruises.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

OAKLAND (Cal.) Aug. 28.—Arthur Puter, 19 years old, son of S. A. D. Puter last Sunday night ran down and killed Mrs. Mary Hogan in an automobile accident. The Coroner's jury placed the responsibility of the death on him. The police refused to prosecute on the manslaughter charge.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 28.—Decision on a motion to quash indictments against several firms and individuals in connection with the alleged violation of neutrality by the steamer Sacramento, was reserved today by Judge Maurice T. The indictments were returned in connection with the alleged furnishing of supplies to German warships off the Chilean coast last year.

AN ORCHARD DEAL.

Los Angeles Man Trades in a Lemon Grove for Fruit Lands in the State of Washington.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

TACOMA, Aug. 28.—James G. Cortelyou of Los Angeles has purchased 1250 acres of orchard lands, partly in bearing, extending three miles along the shore of the Upper Columbia River near Gifford, Okanagon county. The land is valued at $97,000, and personal property, including pumping plant, pipe factory, tools, saw mill and spraying equipment, at $20,000. The land is divided into five-acre tracts. Venders are the Edendale Land Company, composed of T. Waldo Murphy and Laura M. Murphy.

In part payment the Murphys received orange and lemon orchard land near Los Angeles. Mr. Cortelyou will plant more orchards, selling in small tracts. The Murphys will go to Los Angeles. Mr. Cortelyou's land is made accessible by the Great Northern Railway's new branch up the Columbia River from Wenatchee.

Mr. Cortelyou is en route home from Spokane, where the deal was completed. Part of the property in exchange was an extensive lemon grove and orchard lands near Corona. Mr. Cortelyou has been engaged in brokerage of beach properties here since 1895, and this deal, according to Mrs. Cortelyou, will not mean that he will change his residence.

ORIGIN OF "UNREST."

In the Industrial World it is Caused by Low Wages, According to Frank P. Walsh.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

KANSAS CITY (Mo.) Aug. 28.—Low wages was found to be the basic cause of industrial unrest in the report which Frank P. Walsh, chairman of the Federal Commission on Industrial Relations, and the labor members of that body will present to Congress as a result of the commission's two-year investigation into the subject.

The report, embodying the personal findings of Mr. Walsh and concurred in by Commissioners John B. Lennon, James O'Connell and Austin B. Garretson, was made public here today.

"The workers of the nation, through compulsory and oppressive methods, legal and illegal, are denied the full product of their toil," it was declared in the report, and the resulting industrial dissatisfaction was said to have reached "proportions that already menace the social good will and peace of the nation."

Responsibility for the conditions under which they live was placed primarily upon the workers themselves, who, "blind to their collective strength and often times deaf to the cries of their followers, have suffered exploitation and the invasion of their most sacred rights without resistance."

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

VIENNA (via London,) Aug. 28, 10:10 p.m.—The following Austrian war statement was given out here today:

"Russian war theater: Our armies in East Galicia yesterday broke throught the Russian front at several points on the Zlota Lipa River, which the Russians for many weeks have been engaged in fortifying. East of Przemyslany and west of Podhayczyki and Monasterzyska we penetrated the hostile lines. Between Gologury and Brzecany we took Russian positions extending over a front of thirty kilometers.

"Austro-Hungarian regiments stormed the Russian positions between Gologury and Dunajoy and the allied troops took positions near Brazezany. We captured twenty officers and 6000 men. Hostile counter attacks were unsuccessful. The enemy began a retreat along the whole front this morning.

"East of Vladimir-Volynsky southern Russian-Poland) heavy fighting took place. The army of Gen. Von Puhallo threw the enemy back in the direction of Lutsk, whither they are pursuing him. North of Pripet the allies are approaching the town of Korbin from the south and west. Austro-Hungarian forces fighting near Kamieniez-Litovsk drove the enemy from positions north and east of the town.

"Italian war theater: On the coastal front the enemy last night and at daybreak attempted an attack at several points, but was repulsed everywhere, especialy east of Polazzo, San Martino and the Plateau of Doberbo and near our positions north of the bridgehead of Tolmino. In the Flitsch region the fighting continues.

"In the Tyrol the Italians are approaching our positions north of Lugano Valley."

FRENCH RESUME ATTACK ON GERMAN TRENCHES.

"Violently and Efficaciously Bombarded," is Official Report of the Action Undertaken in the Nieuport District to Drive Out the Germans — Artillery Fire at Le Pretre Wood

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

PARIS, Aug. 28, 10:45 p.m.—The following French official statement concerning the progress of hostilities was given out here tonight:

"In the region of Nieuport, Hetsas, to the north of Arras and to the east of the road to Lille, the German trenches have been violently and efficaciously bombarded. A fight in which bombs and mortars were used has taken place in the Quennevieres sector.

"Artillery fighting is reported in the Argonne where our batteries have silenced the enemy's attempts at bombarding at LaFille Morte, at Marie Therese, at St. Hubert and at Four de Paris.

"Artillery fire is reported at La Pretre wood, in the forest of Parroy and in the sectors of La Chapelotte and Launoisse in the Vosges.

"This morning towards 10 o'clock three German aeroplanes started from the region of the Soissons and three from the region of Compiegne, heading for Paris. They were unable to reach their goal and only dropped a few bombs on Nogent-Su-Marne, Montmorency, Montfemeil, Ribecourt and Compiegne, in which city two male nurses and a child were killed. The hostile aeroplanes promptly detected, were shelled at various points and chased by our own airmen. The commander of one of our aerial squadrons chased one of the aeroplanes at a height of nearly 11,000 feet and brought it down to the north of Senlis. The pilot and his machine were incinerated."

TREASURE TRAIN WITH MILLIONS.

BRITISH GOLD CONSIGNMENT ON WAY TO NEW WORK.

Second Large Shipment for this Month Sent from Canada in Special Train Through Maine to Bolster up Credit—Thirty-eight Guards in Charge of Specie.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SPRINGFIELD (Mass.) Aug. 28.—A treasure train containing millions of dollars in gold and securities shipped from London by way of Halifax, N. S., passed through New England tonight on its way to New York. In the six steel express cars containing the second of a series of gold shipments designed to strengthen British credit in the United States thirty-eight armed guards kept watch while a pilot train was sent in front to make sure that the roadbed was safe.

The train entered the United States through Vanceboro, Me., and sped across New England to New York by way of Albany. It was expected to arrive in New York early tomorrow.

GOES VIA MAINE.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

VANCEBORO (Me.) Aug. 28.—The second large shipment this month of gold and securities from London to New York passed through here today on a special train. It was said here that it consisted of bonds to the value of $25,000,000, and $19,000,000 in gold.

The gold and securities are being forwarded to strengthen British credit in this country and to arrest the decline in value of the pound sterling. They were placed on a heavily-guarded train at Halifax, where, it was understood, they had arrived on a British battleship, guarded by a convoy of smaller craft.

After a very brief stop here to permit a change of engines, the train left at 9 o'clock for Bangor and Portland on its way to New York.

Paul was 35 years old and was with the Edison company a number of years. His wife and two children were at the plant with him. He came from Los Angeles two years ago. His brother, M. A. Paul, with the Edison company at Tejon, arrived this afternoon and his parents will arrive tonight from San Luis Obispo.

I CURE PILES
Fistula and all Rectal Diseases
WITHOUT an OPERATION
By MY PAINLESS DISSOLVENT METHOD

For twenty-five years I have been curing diseases of the rectum and lower bowel. During that time my experience as hospital and railroad surgeon as college lecturer and professor, has enabled me to develop a method that is superior to others.

My method is not a "home cure" or a "correspondence treatment," but it is an application of skilled treatments administered under the most rigid antiseptic conditions in my office.

I solicit old, severe and obstinate cases of fistula, prolapsus, fissure and ulceration that have heretofore resisted all treatments employed. If you are a sufferer from rectal trouble I invite you to investigate my method thoroughly by talking or writing to any of my cured patients. If you will call at my office I will be pleased to give you the names and addresses of many well-known Los Angeles people I have cured, whom you may interview in regard to my treatment.

Read what a few well-known Southern California people have to say of my method. Many similar letters are on file in my office.

WELL-KNOWN SANTA MONICA MINISTER CURED.

This is to certify that Dr. C. H. White has cured me of a distressing hemorrhoidal ailment of 25 years' duration. His method of treatment is effective, but not severe. He has the appliances, the knowledge and the skill born of many years of specialization in this fruitful source of physical disease. He accomplishes all his claims in his advertising, and at reasonable expense.

I take pleasure in heartily commending the man and his methods.

WESLEY K. BEANS, Pastor First Methodist Episcopal Church, Santa Monica, Cal.

ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE SUPERINTENDENT CURED.

My Dear Mr. White: I am thankful for the privilege of bearing witness to your ability to treat, without pain, and with success, the delicate and disabling diseases which result from sedentary work. To all who need the services of a skillful, sympathetic and experienced specialist in your line, I heartily commend you. Very sincerely yours,

ERVIN S. CHAPMAN, D.D., LL.D., Superintendent State Anti-Saloon League.

Goodyear Tires Now on 500,000 Cars

There are now two million users of automobile tires.

Figuring four tires yearly to a car, we are now supplying 500,000 cars. That means about two million tires this year.

Goodyear tires are gaining new users faster than ever before in their history.

Tires Not Alike

Goodyears are Fortified tires. They have five exclusive features, each of which combats a major trouble. These and other extras are costing us millions of dollars. They are saving our users ten times as much, perhaps.

Yet note how many users still buy tires without them. They are not opposed to Goodyears, we are sure. But they believe—most of them, probably—that standard tires will average much alike.

Worth Will Tell

But Goodyears outsell any other tire. Every month they are winning armies of new users. And they will win you if you'll let them.

Some may meet with mishap and misuse. But a Fortified tire will, on the average, outlast a tire that isn't. A double-thick tread, like the Goodyear All-Weather, will outlast a thin anti-skid. Extras in size, strength, features and fabric are bound to mean extra service.

We urge you to try the Goodyear tire as we are building it this summer. We have added $500,000 in new extras this year.

These are the best tires built with fabric. Not a single rival approaches them in some important ways. Let them prove how they save trouble, how they save money. Their super-quality has won a half-million users. Give them a chance to win you.

BRITISH CRUISER OFF SANDY HOOK.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—A three-funneled British cruiser appeared at the Sandy Hook lightship today. At the same time a British cruiser of four funnels was sighted fifteen miles southeast of the lightship.

This is the first appearance of regular British cruisers off the New York coast in the past three weeks. During this period, however, an auxiliary cruiser, formerly a Cunard liner, has been patrolling the coast. The auxiliary disappeared several hours before the regular cruisers arrived.

The Big Surprise for Corn Owners. It's Sure, Simple, Safe, Quick.

Listen to the wee story of "Gets-It," the world's greatest corn remedy. It's a short story—only about two feet—"Mary had a little 'Gets-It,' and corns upon her toe; and every time she put on 'Gets-It,' the corn was sure to go." She says now there's no sense in it. Use "Gets-It," applied in 2 seconds. Easy, simple, new way—just painless common sense! Millions are doing it. Never fails. You can wear smaller shoes now. You don't have to limp around any more, or walk on the side of your shoes to try to get away from your corns! You know for sure before you use "Gets-It" that the corn or callus is going away. GERMAN CONFAB ON ARABIC CASE.

Chancellor and Von Tirpitz Confer with Kaiser.

No Word from Submarine has Yet Reached Berlin.

British Newspaper Declares Diver may be Sunk.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

BERLIN, Aug. 28 (via London, Aug. 29.)—Dr. Von Bethmann-Hollweg, the German Imperial Chancellor, and Admiral Von Tirpitz, Minister of Marine, who left here on Wednesday evening to join the Emperor, are still at eastern headquarters, where the Arabic case and the submarine policy have probably been the considered subjects.

No word has reached Berlin concerning the conference and no developments of any sort have occurred in the case here since the Chancellor's declaration of policy given in a statement to the Associated Press last Wednesday. Admiral Von Mueller, chief of the private marine cabinet and the Emperor's direct personal adviser on naval affairs, also is with the Emperor. The admiral's influence, it is known, is thrown with that of Dr. Von Bethmann-Hollweg and Foreign Minister Von Jagow against complications with the United States and so, the opinion is held here, there is no reason to change the hopeful view of the situation expressed after the Chancellor's statement.

The exact wording of instructions issued to naval commanders has not been divulged and higher officials when questioned avoid an answer, but it is stated that they certainly include the direction to attack no passenger steamers without adequate warning. Whether this applies to freighters cannot be learned.

No report on the sinking of the Arabic has yet been received, none of the submarines which might possibly have been involved having returned to port.

MAYBE SUBMARINE IS SUNK.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LONDON, Aug. 28.—The Daily News in an editorial today hazards the suggestion that the submarine which sank the steamship Arabic has itself since been sunk and therefore Germany's disavowal of the action of the underwater boat commander becomes comparatively easy.

VON BERNSTORFF AWAITS ORDERS.

LOOKS FOR SPEEDY END OF ARABIC CONTROVERSY.

Even if no Report is Received from Submarine Which Sank the Liner Ambassador is Confident Campaign will be Modified to Suit United States.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—Count von Bernstorff, the German Ambassador, will leave Washington tomorrow for New York to await instructions from his government which he confidently expects will lead to negotiations that will bring a speedy and wholly satisfactory conclusion to the entire controversy between the United States and Germany over the question of submarine warfare. Unless the situation in Berlin changes before the dispatches are sent, the Ambassador believes he will be given authority to reopen informal discussions with Secretary Lansing to the end that a note may be framed by the German government entirely satisfactory to the United States.

So far as the State Department is concerned, formal presentation of the Arabic case to Germany awaited receipt from Ambassador Gerard at Berlin of the German Admiralty report on the destruction of the ship. Dispatches from Berlin tonight said the report might be made any day or might be delayed a fortnight. The last of the German submarines operating south of Ireland will not return to port before that time.

BERLIN IS ANXIOUS.

In German circles here it is believed firmly that the Berlin government is anxious to bring to a quick and friendly termination the whole discussion over the submarine campaign. The visit of Count von Bernstorff to Washington, acting on instructions from Berlin, is viewed as conclusive proof that the Liberal element of the German government has triumphed and that every effort will be made to meet the views of President Wilson as expressed in an interview with the Ambassador soon after the Lusitania was destroyed.

It was positively stated today that whatever the German Admiralty report might be on the Arabic case, the Berlin government would give assurances that its submarine commanders had received explicit instructions that no passenger ships be attacked without warning. This was in accordance with suggestions sent to Berlin by Count von Bernstorff immediately after his interview with President Wilson.

POLICY OF GERMANY.

Even should the submarine commander attempt to justify his action or should no report ever be received from a German commander as to the Arabic, it is believed the German government will seek to make it clear that, as a national policy, the warfare against passenger ships has been suspended. Already offers of reparation for American lives lost with the ship have been taken informally, and Ambassador Bernstorff feels that, barring adjustment of minor details, the friction between the two countries is at an end.

Out of the relaxing tension of the situation a new hope for peace in Europe has sprung. German observers here have noted that there is a group in each country which sees possibilities of American mediation behind the peaceful adjustment of the American-German dispute. With one concession won from the belligerents by diplomatic means—the security of the lives of neutrals on the high seas—it is thought possible that other proposals may follow with restoration of peace as their object. The ascendancy of the Liberal element in Germany, it is said, lends color to that view so far as Germany is concerned.

For the first time since their daughter, Louise Foster, eloped in June with Thomas O'Sullivan, chief secretary to Joseph Tumulty, secretary to President Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. Jasper Lynch recently appeared in public at a dinner given for Mr. and Mrs. O'Sullivan at Spring Lake, N. J. A report was circulated that the dinner was in celebration of the forgiveness of the eloping couple by the parents of the bride after a delay of over two months since the wedding. This was denied by the mother of the bride, who said no forgiveness was necessary. Mrs. Thomas O'Sullivan is heiress to $2,000,000 from her grandfather.

TOKIO, Aug. 28.—The arsenals in Tokio and Osaka are showing a sudden activity, thousands of workingmen being now engaged in day and night work. Arrangements have been made for manufacturing ammunition on a war-time basis. The products are to be sent to Russia. Reports that Russia has asked for Japanese troops are unfounded. In official circles it is asserted that the sending of troops to Europe is considered out of the question.

HEAVY SUBMARINE LOSS IS DENIED BY GERMANY.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

BERLIN, Aug. 28 (via London, Aug. 29.)—German naval officers say that the statement made in an American publication that Germany has lost fifty submarines is ridiculous, as also is the statement credited to British sources, placing the number at thirty-eight. The navy men do not deny that the British have had successes against the submarines, but say they have been nothing like such figures. Several successes announced by the British Admiralty are declared to be unfounded. For example the Admiralty stated that the British report of the destruction of a German submarine off the Belgian coast by a bomb thrown by an aviator, is untrue. Upon receipt of the announcement that this submarine had been lost, the Admiralty queried a coast station at telephone, it is said, and received the report of the commander of the submarine in question. It was stated that the aviator did drop a bomb, but that the submarine was untouched and got away from the aeroplane by diving.

GERMAN AIRSHIP CROSSES HOLLAND.

[BY WIRELESS AND A. P.]

BERLIN, Aug. 28 (via Sayville.)—The Overseas News Agency today gave out the following:

"The German government has informed the Dutch government that on August 23 a German airship, driven from its course by contrary winds, flew over Dutch territory. As soon as the commander noticed that he was on the wrong course he changed the direction of the airship. Strict instructions have been given to commanders of airships to avoid flying over neutral territory.

"Organizations of German railway employees with 584,000 members, have collected $525,000 for the support of families of members of these organizations who are at the front.

"Private reports reaching Berlin state the rapid succession of German victories has caused depression all over Russia, especially at Petrograd, where there is much uneasiness.

"Messages received here from Berne, say that the Swiss General Staff declares Eugene Gilbert, the French aviator, who escaped from Switzerland after being interned, had not taken back his promise to make no effort to escape. On the contrary he broke his parole when he fled."

FINAL TRAINING FOR CANADIANS.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

OTTAWA (Ont.) Aug. 28.—Twelve Canadian battalions of infantry are to be placed in England for final training, according to an announcement made here today by the military authorities. The troops will be regarded as reinforcements to be called for service in France or Flanders as required.

The twelve battalions have been selected from all parts of Canada and are the best-trained corps in the division. They contain about 15,000 foot soldiers. This draft will bring the number of men Canada has sent to England to 100,000.

TURKISH HEADQUARTERS ON THE GALLIPOLI PENINSULA, Tuesday, Aug. 24 (via London, Aug. 28, 1:45 p.m.)—After inspecting the Turkish front in the new area of hostitilities near Salt Lake, where the British landed troops this month, the Associated Press correspondent has visited Seddul-Bahr at the tip of the peninsula on the other end of the line. Conditions at Seddul-Bahr have remained virtually unchanged since the correspondent's last previous visit in June.

In the interval the Turks have greatly improved their earthworks and bettered their positions in many respects, especially by posting artillery in advantageous positions across the straits on the Anatolian shore.

According to information from a trustworthy source, the losses of the allies in the attack simultaneous with the Anafarta landing were very heavy. About 5000 men were killed.

Since August 21 the action of the allies has been confined to weak artillery fire. Enver Pasha, the Turkish Minister of War, is here with his staff.

BITTER FIGHT IN SAGEBRUSH.

Nevada may Elect Republican to Succeed Pittman.

Strange Political Mix-up is Stirring up Miners.

Several Candidates Active; Money Used Freely.

BY JOHN WEST.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

RENO (Nev.) Aug. 26.—Nevada expects to elect a Republican United States Senator to succeed the Hon. Key Pittman, Democrat. Behind it all is one of the strangest, most fascinating political stories ever conceived and the Sagebrush State is to see one of the bitterest campaigns in its history. Already the generals are mustering their forces and the majority of forty by which Senator Francis G. Newlands, Democrat, was elected last year and the majority of eighty-nine votes by which Key Pittman wedged his way into the United States Senate in 1912, is to be reversed and a Republican will be sent to Washington from Nevada to occupy a seat in the upper house of Congress.

When United States Senator George S. Nixon, Republican, partner of George Wingfield, millionaire mine owner and banker of Nevada, died in 1912, the then Gov. Tasker L. Oddie offered the toga to Wingfield, who, for some reason known only to himself, refused it. W. A. Massie of Reno, a former Supreme Court justice of the State, was appointed to fill the vacancy, which, under the law, would be filled at the Presidential election of 1912.

Massie became the Republican candidate to succeed himself and Key Pittman of Tonopah, who had been decisively defeated by Senator Nixon in the campaign of 1910, became the Democratic candidate.

PITTMAN SPENDS MONEY.

There followed a bitter, personal, spiteful political campaign. Pittman spent a vast sum of money which he had but a few months before acquired through the phenomenal rise in Tonopah-Merger stock of which he held something like 350,000 shares. He spent thousands of dollars in establishing a daily newspaper at Tonopah, his home city, purchased another in Ely from former Gov. Denver S. Dickinson, now warden of the Nevada State penitentiary at Carson, and in assisting others in various parts of the State.

Pittman's publicity was one of the marvels of the campaign. Senator Massie with limited means, made a personal canvass throughout the State. Behind him were the Wingfield interests, powerful and wealthy, and it was hinted that before the campaign was concluded the money bags would be opened.

Then a strange thing happened. Suddenly as if the earth had vomited them, there appeared in Reno and other parts of Nevada, a swarm of Burns's detectives under the leadership of "Doc" Mundell, then in charge of the Pacific Coast agency of the bureau. It was publicly given out that these detectives had been shadowing the Massie politicians for weeks and at the first sign of money being spread by any of the interests behind Massie's campaign, arrests would follow.

CLOSE RESULT.

Pittman's money had paid for the detectives and when the votes were counted three days later, Pittman was elected by eighty-nine votes, a close shave but sufficient to put him in the United States Senate.

Last year when Senator Newlands's term of office expired he was opposed for re-election by Sam Platt of Carson, Republican, former United States District Attorney and owner of a Carson newspaper. There ensued another hard-fought campaign and when the smoke of battle cleared away Senator Newlands had been returned to office by a bare majority of forty votes, one-half Pittman's majority of eighty-nine. Nevada, long a Democratic stronghold, was weakening.

Just before the close of the Newlands campaign Senator Pittman engaged in a street brawl, during which he approached Supreme Court Justice Patrick McCarren, Democrat, and struck him in the face, knocking the cigar from his mouth. The jurist offered no resistance. McCarren, however, keenly felt the insult and the aftermath has just made itself evident for McCarren has announced himself a candidate in opposition to Pittman for the Democratic nomination for United States Senator in 1916. It will be necessary for McCarren to resign from the Supreme bench to which he was elected by the largest majority accorded any man on the Democratic ticket in 1912.

CARRER OF M'CARREN.

McCarren was born in Nevada, educated there, and has always lived in the State. He is a wonderful campaigner. When he ran for Supreme Justice against former Congressman George S. Bartlett, he toured the extensive State of Nevada by automobile at least five times, met virtually every voter in the State, penetrated into the remote sections and mining camps and became acquainted with the great mass of the people. In the face of bitter newspaper opposition, he carried the State overwhelmingly.

Because of McCarren's popularity and his known political strength with the rank and file of the voters, it is suspected that this is one of the reasons why the primary system in Nevada has been dropped and the politicians have gone back to the old-style convention methods, where bosses can swing control as in the days gone by. Pittman, with Senator Newlands's aid, is in control of the Democratic machine in Nevada. With Pittman and Newlands in Washington the faithful workers in the ranks of the Democratic party have been taken care of with Federal jobs.

A. B. GRAY FIGURES.

Little A. B. Gray, who was head of the publicity department of the Democratic State Central Committee in the campaign of 1912, although but five feet four, became United States Marshal for Nevada; Billy Woodburn, strong in Reno and Washoe county politics and former District Attorney in that county, became United States District Attorney; Fred White, who went the limit for both Pittman and Newlands, was given the Reno postoffice; J. B. O'Sullivan, who sang the praises of the Senators through his magnificent baritone voice at political meetings, although a bank clerk, was made United States Surveyor; Ray Baker, Pittman's campaign manager, was made secretary to the United States Ambassador at Petrograd, and a number of other more or less important appointments were made to strengthen the Democratic organization in the State.

Everything went along without a hitch in the ranks of Nevada's Democracy until McCarren shied his hat into the ring. The fences which had been so carefully erected by the organization went down as before a storm, and, with the breach in the Democratic party, Sam Platt, Republican, defeated by Senator Newlands by forty votes, started planning his campaign, the first open move being the purchase of an afternoon newspaper in Reno at a figure said to be close to $35,000. Platt already owns a newspaper in Carson.

GIVES PLATT ADVANTAGE.

The acquisition of the newspaper in Reno will give Platt tremendous advantage, as both Pittman and McCarren are not particularly friendly with the proprietor of the Democratic Reno newspaper. This strained relationship goes so far as to absolutely forbid the mention of McCarren's name in the paper in any manner, and Pittman's standing is none too good.

So, with a majority of forty to eliminate, the Republican party in Nevada will make a supreme effort to take advantage of the split in the Democratic ranks, overcome the slight lead by which the Democratic Senatorial candidates have won election, and return a plurality for their candidate for United States Senator.

The battle has already begun, and will see its termination at the polls in November, 1916. The preliminary work is going ahead in all the camps; newspapers are being acquired, and Nevada has entered upon a period of political activity over a year in advance of the election, which promises to rival in bitterness and aggressiveness any campaign in its history.

THE POLITICAL WATCHTOWER

Eastern political writers and politicians who dabble into the big national sport of speculating on presidents and presidential possibilities are combing Coast papers for some public utterance of Senator Burton and other presidential possibilities who have visited the fairs or who are on their way. Because whatever these big men say now may easily be construed by others to have some reflection upon 1916 politics.

Senator Burton of Ohio, who looms as a possibility for the Republican nomination, talked a great deal while he was here. He talked to Republicans, Democrats and that now extinct race of politicians known as "Progressives." But he said very little to any of them. Unlike the effervescing gentleman from Oyster Bay, Senator Burton did not talk of himself. Neither did he talk disparagingly of others, but he bubbled with facts about the war, showed a remarkable knowledge of our South American trade, talked freely of the Mexican situation and dilated somewhat upon the excellence of our two expositions.

But nary a word of the political situation that will crack wide open along about next June, when the Republicans will nominate a candidate to run against President Wilson. Nor have any of the other public men, mentioned from time to time, been eager to look into the future and disengage a guess or so for the benefit of the sweltering voters. Senator Borah of Idaho is expected soon and he will be haunted by writers and politicians for some word that might indicate whether he regards himself as a presidential possibility.

Folks in the East say that Senator Borah's Idaho home is too far West. Out here in California there is a well-founded suspicion that there isn't any such thing as being too far West, so long as one remains inside the three-mile limit. In fact, San Francisco is adding further demonstration to that theory by inviting the Republican National Committee to call the 1916 convention to assemble in the Bay City.

While Republican leaders in the East are watching the reception with which the general public meets a discussion of each presidential possibility, the Democrats are consumed with a burning terror. They fear that the "Progressives" will not propose a candidate next year. There aren't enough Democrats to elect a president in a two-sided fight, and they are anxious to see a duplication of the tragedy of 1912.

My own impression is that the "Progressives" are returning in droves to the G.O.P. They are not registering their shame, but are quietly making up their minds. In California the only virtue in the proposed nonpartisan law lies in its ability to cloak the return of the wanderers to the party of their original choice.

Dave Evans confessed that he lied to the District Attorney and the Board of Supervisors because he was afraid The Times would attack him for betting.

The comfortable assurance has come that Dave is no longer on the county pay roll. But he is always hungry for a position of power and did not release his grip without a struggle. This is the same Dave Evans who—

Was threatened with disbarment by the Supreme Court of the State of Utah.

Came to Los Angeles and burst forth into a full-blown reformer.

Thrust himself on the board of charter freeholders and engineered all the convenient and elastic civil service rules.

Urged Mr. Doty to come out from Wisconsin and take a civil service examination for examiner, hinting that Doty would be allowed to win.

Bet money on Gov. Johnson last fall; denied the charge when accused of the unlawful act; later admitted the charge when caught with the goods and still later confessed that he lied in the first place to avoid publicity.

Carried on a system of juggling civil service records in favor of his friends and friends' friends.

Made a partisan fight against Registrar McAleer, reversing his attitude several times, and tried to lure McAleer into an examination with honeyed words and veiled promises, the examination to be stacked against the registrar.

And now he carries on his partisan fight against McAleer by appearing as attorney against him.

If there is sufficient cause for action in the admission of perjury or in the shameful record on the Civil Service Commission, the facts, contained in accessible public record, are commended to the serious consideration of the bar association.

A few weeks ago when efforts were being made to gather 46,000 signatures to the referendum petition against the Johnson nonpartisan law, there issued from Sacramento a crafty warning to the effect that if the people signed the referendum they would discover, to their sorrow, that the cost of election would be doubled. The professional politicians who hold their jobs by virtue of political activity made the bald statement that two sets of ballots would have to be printed and two sets of election officials employed.

Of course, this was a misstatement of fact, purposely made to scare away signers from the referendum. The sample ballot is now out and Secretary of State Jordan shows that he doesn't share the view of the "reformers" by doubling the cost of an election. The nine constitutional amendments submitted by the Legislature follow, in order on the ballot, the two referendum petitions against the nonpartisan law. They are all on one ballot, all to be handled by one set of election officials and all to be voted for at the cost of one and not at the cost of two elections.

The sample ballot is twenty-four inches long, six inches wide and contains room for eighteen propositions. The election is to be held October 26 and shortly each voter will receive a sample ballot. The voters who desire to eliminate political parties from future elections in California, thereby oiling the wheels of the Johnson machine and perpetuating the present gang in power, could do no more effective work than to vote for the two first propositions on the ballot.

The appointment of a successor to Lynn Helm as referee in bankruptcy has stirred a big fuss among the Democrats. The appointment lies in the hands of the two Federal judges and a rumor has been passed around that they have agreed to name Minor Moore. Other Democrats have expressed a willingness to hold this job and still others are making a hot fight for it. It wouldn't surprise me if the contest developed into one of those strange, nation-wide affairs like the subterranean campaign for a Federal judgeship.

JAPANESE WED AS WESTERNERS.

ONLY LANGUAGE OF CEREMONY IS THAT OF NIPPON.

Important Families of Local Oriental Colony United at Beautiful Hollywood Home of Bride's Parents—Groom Takes Her Name. Reception with Native Customs.

When a certain expert archer made his insistent call upon dainty little Miss Maybelle Teruko Kojima and drew his taut bow with perfect aim upon Shuzo Fukuzawa he found them both imbued with American ideals, American customs and usages, despite their nativity in Japan.

The result was a Japanese wedding night before last at the home of the bride's parents, in the most approved American fashion—with the exception that the ceremony itself was in the Japanese language, and that the groom takes the name of the bride's family instead of the bride submerging her family name in that of her husband.

This unusual procedure is in accordance with a custom among the high-class families of Japan. When there are no sons in the family, the men who woo and win the daughters take their family name and become, in effect, adopted sons of the household, helping to perpetuate the family name and prestige.

The wedding of these Japanese young people, with all the American accessories, took place at the beautiful home of Mr. and Mrs. Kango Kojima, parents of the bride, No. 1631 Edgement street, Hollywood. Engraved invitations in the English language had been issued and more than fifty guests assembled, among them numerous Americans.

To the strains of the Lohengrin "Wedding March," played on a piano and flute, the bridal procession moved to its place under a floral bell of green and white, in the center of the reception-room. First came the ring-bearer, little Sachi Kojima, youngest sister of the bride, carrying the golden circlet in the cup of a calla. Then followed the four bridesmaids, gowned in delicate pink. They were Miss Bessie Iverson, an American girl who is a close friend of the bride, and three sisters of the bride—Misses Taeko, Yaeko, and Kazu Kojima; the bride, with her father; then the maid of honor, Miss Florence Kojima; the bride, with her father; then the mother.

As they proceeded to the place appointed for the ceremony, the bridegroom, accompanied by his best man, D. Kiyohara, appeared from his room and met the party at the improvised altar.

The wedding ceremony of the Presbyterian church, with the ring ritual, was used by Rev. F. Hata, a Japanese Presbyterian minister, a graduate of Wabash University, with post-graduate work at Princeton, and who was converted to Christianity twenty-eight years ago in Japan. That all Japanese guests might have a full understanding of the ceremony the marriage service was read in their native language. At the close "A Perfect Day" was played.

The bride wore a white brocaded chiffon gown with long train. It was trimmed with dainty lace and garnitured with pearls. A long rope of pearls was also worn, and the long white tulle veil was caught up with clusters of orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley. Her mother wore a beautiful purple crepe de chine gown trimmed in deep black lace. The group assembled beneath the marriage bell presented one of the prettiest wedding pictures seen in Los Angeles for many a day.

The home was elaborately decorated, the reception rooms being in green and white, while the other rooms were in green and pink. After the ceremony there was a reception and refreshments were served, in charge of Mrs. Emma Berlin, a close friend of the Kojima family, who helped carry out the ideals of an American wedding.

The bride cut the wedding cake, according to American custom, and she distributed tiny boxes of it to the guests. Then the couple departed for their honeymoon in San Francisco. The bride's going-away dress was blue silk.

Autos were awaiting to convey the party to the railway station, and even here the American customs were in vogue. There was a showering of rice; old shoes were cast after the couple, and the vehicle was decorated with ribbons and placards announcing "We're Just Married," etc.

After two weeks in San Francisco the couple will return to Los Angeles, and for some time will reside at the home of the bride's parents. Soon after their return an elaborate reception will be given in the Japanese district of the city, where all the usages will be Japanese.

Both parties to the marriage represent important families in the Japanese colony. The bride's father, Kango Kojima, is the manager of the large cotton plantation interests of Madokoro Brother and Sato, in the Imperial Valley. He brought his family to America from Tokio ten years ago. He is a lawyer by profession, and at one time was Mayor or "Kucho," of that part of Tokio known as Ushigome. The family consists of six daughters, all of whom have received the highest opportunities for schooling in Japan and America. The bride is a graduate of the Tokio University. One of the daughters is studying to become an artist; another proposes to become a physician, and still another will enter the University of Southern California next year to take a course in pharmacy.

The bridegroom, who now becomes a son of the Kojima household and hereafter will bear its name, is an official of the Asia Company, the largest oriental importing firm of Japan, with extensive connections on this coast.

OFFICER SETS PRISONER FREE.

DEMANDS REWARD AND IN DEFAULT LETS IMPERLIAL MAN ESCAPE.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

EL CENTRO, Aug. 28.—Threats to release Edgar Byrd who shot and nearly killed Deputy Marshal Acrey of Holtville nearly a year ago, were carried out by the Chief of Police of Webb City, Mo., last Tuesday. Deputy Sheriff Cummings who left to get the fugitive arrived yesterday only to find that the prisoner had been released.

At the time of Byrd's arrest telegrams were interchanged between Sheriff Applestill and the Chief of Police in which the latter stated that he understood a reward was outstanding for Byrd's arrest and that unless the money was forthcoming the prisoner would be released.

Sheriff Applestill immediately placed the case before the Governor of Missouri and received assurance that the State executive had instructed the Missouri Chief of Police to deliver Byrd into the hands of the sheriff of Carthage county.

A later telegram from the Webb City Chief of Police received by Sheriff Applestill contained threats to release Byrd Tuesday, Aug. 24, unless a reward of $100 was paid, the official carrying out his declaration four days before an officer from here arrived for the prisoner.

The facts will be placed before Gov. Johnson and the Governor of Missouri, Sheriff Applestill said yesterday.

Was Operated Upon.

[London Telegraph:] "Of what complaint," asked the insurance agent "did your father die?"

INTERLOCKING PLANT ORDERED.

CROSSING AT RIVERSIDE TO BE MADE SAFE—INFANT IS CRUSHED.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

RIVERSIDE, Aug. 28.—The Pacific Electric has received peremptory orders from the State Railroad Commission to install at once an interlocking plant and tower at the junction of its Magnolia-avenue line with the Salt Lake Railway Company's tracks.

At a hearing several months ago the commission gave its permission for the erection of a tower instead of requiring the construction of a costly under-grade crossing, as was first intended.

The City Council has authorized the signing of a deed conveying a parcel of land to the Pacific Electric as a site for the proposed tower.

CRUSHED TO DEATH.

The 2-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Lane of West Riverside was crushed to death this morning under the wheels of a heavily-loaded wagon on the Lane ranch.

After filling the wagon with fertilizer, the grandfather of the child, John S. Lane, went into the house for a moment. On his return he did not notice that the child had climbed up on one of the wheels, which passed over the body when the team was started, causing instant death.

BORN IN RIVERSIDE.

Miss Esther G. Richmond, who met her death in an automobile accident on Wilshire boulevard in Los Angeles last night, was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank G. Richmond of this city. She was born here twenty years ago last May and was educated in the local schools.

Recently she had been in the employ of the Home Telephone Company, working on both the local and the San Bernardino exchanges. The body will be brought here for burial.

Man Who Eloped With Her Placed In Jail While Wronged Husband Prosecutes.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

BRAWLEY, Aug. 28.—Mrs. Lynda Lincoln, 16-year-old bride of John Lincoln is home tonight in the custody of her parents, while John Foster, the man with whom she is alleged to have eloped six days ago, is in the County Jail charged with contributing to her delinquency.

Singularly enough the husband has hunted for the man who is alleged to have stolen his wife, not with the idea of wreaking summary vengeance but instead to serve a warrant of arrest.

Foster and the girl disappeared last Sunday afternoon and although police in the valley towns have been looking for them it was not until yesterday that the girl was found at Imperial.

Preventing Race Suicide.

[Topeka State-Journal:] Race suicide, at any rate, is unknown in Germany. Every seventh son born in prominent German families in which the preceding six sons are alive, becomes a "godchild" of the Kaiser. And he now has no less than 12,000 such godchildren. No statistics are available, but the probabilities are that seventh sons in native American families are almost as scarce as hen's teeth.

A Dainty "Rabbit."

The Philadelphia Telegraph says that some time ago an automobile party was touring the back countries when hunger seized the crowd. Having a kit with them, they decided to make a Welsh rabbit, instead of going to a local hostelry. To this end, a trip was made to the corner grocery for raw materials.

"We want a couple of pounds of cheese and some large square crackers for a Welsh rabbit," said the purchaser, after entering the store.

"Got the cheese all right," answered the grocery man, "but none o' them big square crackers. How 'bout some little ones?"

"They won't do," answered the purchaser. "We must have the large ones."

"S'pose ye must, if ye say so," thoughtfully commented the grocery man, "but it strikes me that rabbit of yourn is purty derned partic'ler 'bout his eatin'."

DOZEN FOREST FIRES ARE BURNING IN OREGON.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

PORTLAND (Or.) Aug. 28.—In almost every direction from Portland, for a radius of from ten to one hundred miles, more than a dozen forest fires are burning and with the intense heat today and increasing breezes tonight the fires are threatening to become more serious than at any time this year. Three fires of alarming proportions are spreading in the eastern part of Clackamas county along the timber belt of the Cascade Mountain range south from the Columbia River.

These fires, like several of the others, were started from lightning during a thunderstorm a few days ago. The most serious blaze is near Sandy, Or., and Cherryville, Or. Hundreds of men are now engaged in the work of fire fighting and 2000 to 5000 acres affected. Shell Rock Mountain, Bonnie's Butte and other communities in Clackamas Lake are the most seriously hit so far. The fires radiating from Mount Hood, sixty miles east of Portland, were worse today than at any time.

Reports from LaGrande, Or., say the fire which broke yesterday at Hilgard, Or., is getting beyond control and a call has been sent for additional men. The blaze now is only two miles from the Oregon-Washington Railway and Navigation Company's tracks at Glover, Or.

In the fires near Sandy, Or. four families who were hemmed in were apparently saved tonight when the wind changed and the flames were checked.

C. C. Cravath, the center fielder of the Philadelphia National League team, may surpass "Buck" Freeman's record of twenty-five home runs for a season.

CHINA CHANGES FAMILY CUSTOM.

Old-fashioned Ideas Rapidly Becoming Obsolete.

Father Absolutely the Head; His Will Only Law.

None but Emperor Admitted to be His Superior.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

PEKING, July 10.—The Peking Gazette gives the following interesting description of family life in China, commenting that these conditions are fast changing as a result of the absorption of foreign ideas:

"The Chinese family in its old-fashioned organism is a small kingdom with the head of the family as the king and ruler of all under his roof. Except for the law of the country, his words are law. In certain cases the word of the family chief is even greater than the law of the country. The absolute power of control and punishment of the father over his sons and daughters, the latter before their marriage and the former even after their marriage, is universal throughout the land. A proverb says: 'If a king wishes his subject to die, he must die; if a father wishes his son to be destroyed, he must be destroyed.' Such is the severity of the family law. A typical case of this sort came under the notice of the writer some ten years ago even in such a modern city as Shanghai.

"A certain Li family had only one son between two brothers, and natually he was considered the pearl of the house. At the age of 16 the boy was sent to a mission school to study and in due course he decided to become a Christian. This was strongly opposed by the whole family, especially the grandfather. But at first they smiled at the carefully-advanced hint by the boy, believing that he would never dare to make such a change. They were mistaken, for the boy not long after announced that he had applied for baptism at the mission, but made it plain to his parents that unless their consent was secured he could not be baptized. This so aroused his parents that they shut him up in a small room and for fear that he would escape took every particle of decent clothing from him and clothed him in old rags. Undaunted, the boy crept though a window and interviewed the missionary, who, of course, counseled him to be patient and told him to return home to be an 'obedient son.' The boy took the advice, but not until he had secured a lot of Christian literature, which he said he would read and distribute among his relatives at his native place, to which his parents had threatened to send him if he refused to give up his new faith. Finally the boy was sent to his country home in Ningpo to receive disciplinary lessons to counteract the Christian doctrine. The boy promised to write after his arrival at his native place, but no word has come since. Although no one will ever know what sort of lessons the boy received at the hands of his family elders, it could not have been easy; for it was the custom of the Ningpo elders even to bury people alive for crimes unpunishable by state law. This, of course, was an exceptional case, but such exceptions were not by any means rare.

"On the other hand it must not be imagined that the sons and daughters of a family live under anything like conditions of slavery; for if the father feels it his duty to look after every detail of his family affairs and sees to it that every member of the house obeys his words, the sons and daughters feel equally duty bound to please and obey his instructions without any feeling of discontent or painful effort.

"The plain principle of living between father and son is, therefore, this: The father should see to the needs of his family, sons, daughters and all, direct what they should do and how they should act, decide how they should be trained and taught, whom to marry or wed, what professions, if sons, to adopt, see that they are obedient and happy, and decide what to do in case of disobedience or insubordination. For the son, as well as the daughter, it is a duty to be obedient and good-humored under all circumstances, and do what he or she can to make the parents as well as the whole family happy; the son is not to decide anything without the previous consent of the father or other elderly member of the household, and, as Confucius has said, is 'not to go too far away from home while his father is still living; and if he does, to give the name of the locality to which he journeys.' The sacrifice of self is absolutely necessary for a dutiful son. Confucius says: 'While the father is living, look at his ambition; when his father is dead, look at his deeds.' As to the duty of a son after his father's death, the sage says: 'A man may be called filial if he does not depart from the principle his late father has laid down for three years (after the death of the latter.)

"The principles summarized above can be accepted as typical of a truly Chinese home, although in middle and lower social life it is modified to some extent. The modification, however, is due more to peculiar conditions of life than to lack of principle; for it is obvious that when every member of the house has to do the best he can in the struggle for a living there is very little room for elaborate application of Confucian principles. One principle, however, is universal; that is, the father is supreme in his house and the son must yield unswerving obedience."

SOIREE DANSANTE FOR BELGIAN FUND

The Committee on Arrangements reports the great interest has been aroused in the "Soiree Dansante" to be held on Saturday evening, September 25, at Blanchard Hall, No. 233 South Broadway, for the benefit of the Belgian war relief fund. The first part will include classic dances characteristic of the allied nations. The second part will be a grand ball. The grand march will be played by the orchestra of the allies. Belgian trumpeters and French tambourins will be heard. After the march the Servian national dance, "Kolo," will be executed by Serbs in native costume. Music characteristic of the allied countries will be rendered.

The Marowijne.

Failure to locate the steamship Marowijne of the United Fruit Line Company, which left Belize, British Honduras, with twenty-eight passengers and a crew of sixty-five persons, seems to indicate that the steamship foundered in the hurricane that swept the Gulf of Mexico. A number of passengers bound for Los Angeles, Cal., are said to have been on board. Among the passengers aboard the steamship was Commander J. H. Holen, U.S.N., who was in command of the gunboat Annapolis, in Mexican waters. Several ships sent out by the United Fruit Line Company failed to locate the ship anywhere along the coast and nothing was found that might indicate the fate of the ship.

BIG DEMAND FOR OFFICERS.

YOUNGSTERS ELEVATED TO COMMANDS IN AUSTRALIA.

Great Amount of Extra Work Thrown on Duntroon, Which is the West Point of the Antipodes and Modeled After the Military Academy on the Hudson.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

SYDNEY (Australia) Aug. 1.—On account of the dearth of officers for the 100,000 troops which Australia expects to maintain at the front, youngsters at Duntroon, the West Point of Australia, are being comissioned for commands. This Australian school for military training has been established but a few years, modeled to a certain extent upon the lines of the famous institution on the Hudson, and the era of activity through which it is now passing is not altogether unlike the era through which West Point passed during the Civil War. In the present European struggle the school has lost its founder, Maj.-Gen. Sir William T. Bridges, who was fatally wounded by a Turkish sniper, and whose body is to be removed from Alexandria to Canberra, the site of the new Australian Federal capital. In addition to this loss, eleven officers from the Duntroon school have been killed at the Dardanelles and twenty-one have been wounded.

Normally Duntroon turns out forty officers each year, but this number proved too small in the stress of war. To meet the acute demand for competent officers the four years curriculum has had to be readjusted. When the war broke out there were at the academy twenty-seven Australians and eight New Zealanders who were within five months of graduation. These youths were graduated forthwith and in December last, thirty-six others were graduated. A further batch of cadets are leaving for the front this month—making a total of 105.

But not satisfied with this rate of production, Col. Parnell, the commandant of the college, arranged with the Minister of Defense, Senator Pearce, to take in thirty-five young volunteer officers selected for service at the front. These men came up from the various States of the commonwealth and were given two months training of a highly intensive and specialized character for the arm in which they were to serve. At the end of June the thirty-five went to join the expeditionary force at the Dardanelles and with them went thirty-four cadets, who had been specially graduated.

The accession of youths who must be fitted for command in a hurry threw a great amount of extra work upon the Duntroon faculty, and lectures and demonstrations had to be given day and night to accomplish the purpose in view—turning out about 400 regularly and specially fitted officers in a year—but it was being done. Then the War Office cabled that all the imperial officers on the faculty must return at once and thus the college will be crippled for the time being. These officers will be replaced by wounded officers from England, who have been rendered incapable of further campaigning, but are quite competent to act as instructors. Until they arrive the reduced teaching staff is carrying on the ordinary curriculum with the eighty-four cadets who are yet at the institution.

"FATHER OF VENTURA."

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

VENTURA, Aug. 28.—William Dewey Hobson, known as "The Father of Ventura County," died here this morning at the Anacapa Hotel, where he had long made his home. He was 86 years old and may be said to have passed of old age as he had known little sickness in his lifetime. Mr. Hobson came to California from Indiana in 1849, crossing the plains. He mined for gold and lived the first years in the State about Sacramento. Later, in 1850 he became a cattle buyer for northern people and came to Ventura county in 1856 on a cattle-buying expedition and when the county boasted of but one house, (an adobe where now is Santa Paula,) besides the old Mission church here. Two years after this visit, Mr. Hobson, who had married at Sacramento, came back to this section and settled here and ever since has made his home here.

BEATEN AND ROBBED.

Thomas Lawson of Venice was beaten upon the head and robbed last night at Brooklyn avenue and Anderson street by an affable stranger, who first asked what time it was and then proceeded to find out by taking Mr. Lawson's watch and $30. The $30, he remarked, was to be used in passing the time. The rap on the head was thrown in for good measure. Mr. Lawson was on his way home after an evening spent with friends.

DOWNS JAILS DEPUTY.

F. H. Hansen, a deputy constable, lost a fast one-round bout with Patrolman Filby at Sixth and Main street late last night. The policeman accosted the deputy constable, whose conduct, it is alleged, attracted attention. The swift mix-up followed and the uniformed officer emerged in complete control of the situation. Hansen was locked in the City Jail, charged with disorderly conduct.

BRITISH LOOK TOWARD FUTURE.

SCHOOLS WILL BEGIN WORK OF RECONSTRUCTION.

Lord Haldane Appeals to Teachers to Consider Problems Which Must Arise and Emphasizes Importance of Education as a Factor in the Nation's Welfare.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

LONDON, Aug. 10.—Already it is time for the schools of Great Britain to begin the work of reconstruction which must necessarily occupy the whole attention of the European world for a generation after the close of the war, writes Lord Haldane in an appeal to the school teachers of the country, published in the current issue of the Teachers' World. He writes:

"I appeal to teachers to consider deeply the problems of the present and the future, seeking to know how best they may help their country in the period of stress which will follow the declaration of peace.

"The proper training of the body is no less important than the equipment of mental power.

"I am impressed by the small extent to which people realize the importance of education as a factor in the nation's welfare. This attitude is not confined to any one class, and prevails among members of the House of Lords in common with every other section of the community. The remedy is to remove education from the realms of the abstract, and to regard it as a complex of problems, difficult, it may be, in themselves, but still capable of being solved.

"The war will impose severe restrains on expenditure, but even within the limits of necessary frugality we can do much to establish a system of national education which will have beneficial results on the citizens of the future. Based on sound principles such a system will be capable of expansion and development as increased funds become available. Teachers can prepare the way by training their pupils in a right regard for knowledge, and by helping to set before the public a well-ordered and soundly-based plan of education, simple in its outlines and arresting in its appeal. They may, in short, enlist forthwith in the army of the future the national force which must be mobilized in readiness for the day when victory shall have been won in the fields of warfare."

Dunkirk.

CHAOTIC STATE OF HILL SIXTY.

LINES WITHIN SIX YARDS OF EACH OTHER.

Trenches Twist and Wind in Remarkable Manner and in Stagnant Pool Lie Number of Bodies Which Cannot be Reached for Purpose of Burial.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

DUNKIRK (France) Aug. 10.—The present position at Hill 60, which the British military authorities recently admitted had lapsed back into German possession, is peculiar and of great interest.

The hill is really nothing but a knoll of gently-rising ground that forms the end of the Klein-Zillebeke ridge. The German trenches run in a double tier along the crest and upper slope, while the British trenches form an irregular line along the edge of the lower slope. The Germans are at the top of the hill, while the British are a little way up the side of it.

The whole face of the hill presents a picture of the wildest confusion. Everywhere are huge craters, the result of mine explosions on the night of the British attack. Torn and gaping sandbags are scattered in profusion, broken rifles, odds and ends of equipment of all kinds, smashed barb-wire and a mass of other debris lie in bewildering variety down the hillside, the whole half hidden in the long grass that has sprung up between the trenches.

The trenches twist and wind in a remarkable manner. At one point there is an old communication trench running from the British lines straight into the heart of the German position, and down this two barricades have been erected, one on the English side and one on the German side, where the opposing forces come within six yards of each other. Between the rival barricades there stretches a short patch of ground shut in on either hand by the crumbling walls of the old trench.

At one spot a railway bridge spans the British position, and in the cutting beneath it a large pool of stagnant water has collected. Beyond it stretches the railway line, the rails torn and twisted, and partly covered with the weeds growing between the ties. The line is under direct fire from the German lines, and to cross it in the open would mean certain death from snipers in the opposite trench forty yards away. In the pool below the bridge a score or more of bodies have been lying for some weeks, and no man dares approach to bring them out for burial.

BALTIC COAST IS DESOLATED.

Terrible Distress in Wake of Advancing Army.

Germans Monopolize Supply of Bread at Libau.

Discrimination Against Jews Denied by Russians.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

LONDON, Aug. 10.—The desolation along the Northern Baltic from Memel to Libau and as far north as the Gulf of Riga, overrun by the German forces from the land side and bombarded by the German fleet from the sea side, are vividly described in Warsaw papers received here. They state that a trip from Memel to Libau shows the terrible distress left in the wake of the advancing army. Entire villages of several hundred houses, like Kunikiski, are totally burned, having suffered most from the fire of the ships. One of the most noted shore resorts, Pologna, was bombarded and sixty of its principle summer villas destroyed. The palace of Count Felix Tyszkiewicz, whose family has intermarried in America, escaped destruction, but the chapel of the palace was partly destroyed. The hotels and casino and most of the villas stretching along the sea front were burned, and portions of the hotel remaining were later used as barracks for Gen. Von Buelow's cavalry forces. Many were killed, including a number of children, during the occupation of Pologna.

MONOPOLY OF BREAD.

At Libau a monopoly of the bread supply was established under German military direction, all flour being taken by them except two kilos allowed to each inhabitant. Among the many arrested were two orthodox Russian pastors, who were accused of praying to be saved from the invaders, but were released on the plea that their prayers were against invaders of all nationalities. The fortifications of Libau, particularly on the sea front, were strengthened by large forces of men. The visit to Libau of Prince Henry, brother of the Kaiser, for a conference with Field Marshal Von Hindenburg, was the occasion of much ceremony, and prolonged discussion between the Prince and the commander of the military forces in the north, presumably on the campaign which soon after developed northward to Riga and then in a great circle southward around Warsaw.

Outside of Lubin, the surrounding country is devastated and abandoned. This is specially true of the districts of Kalvaria and Mariamper, the grain fields, usually richly productive, being unsown and in places blackened from fires. The districts of Suwalki and Kowno have similarly suffered. Many incidents are given of bandits who have made their appearance in the country districts, owing to the distress and complete prostration of the civil organization, and committed widespread depredations.

The Warsaw Kourier prints a statement from Petrograd giving official reply to attacks on the Central Committee of Warsaw, charging that they discriminate against Jews, not giving them a fair share of the emergency food supplies from the committee warehouses, and limiting the distributions to the afternoons. The reply states that the committee keeps the warehouses open from 8 a.m. until 6 p.m. daily, and makes distributions without any distinction of nationality or religion. The only restriction is against applicants who seek to get supplies for the purpose of speculation, and the reply says there are unfortunately many Jews in this class. The warehouses, it is explained, are meant only to meet the daily needs of the poorer people. As evidence of their impartiality it is cited that from May 31 to June 4, out of a total of 97,877 people thus assisted, 66,860 were Christians and 31,017, or 31 per cent., were Jews. The reply maintains this is a sufficient answer to charges of discrimination against the Jews. Also, it is pointed out that the Jews have a number of their own relief organizations.

A report is given of an address at Cracow by Dr. Lydlowsky on the destruction of many art treasures and historic manuments during the campaign in West Galicia. Many of the fine old paintings in the churches of that locality, as well as the churches themselves and their richly-carved altars, have disappeared before the passing armies.

BULGAR POSITION IS MADE CLEAR.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

SOFIA (Bulgaria) Aug. 2[illegible] (via London, 1:18 p.m.)—An inspired statement appearing in a publication controlled by the government contains the announcement that if conditions affecting Bulgaria should be modified by the granting of Bulgaria's territorial demands to such an extent as to call for intervention in the war the government will convoke Parliament immediately.

This statement was elicited by the action of the opposition in Parliament, which has been responsible for the publication of statements condemning the attitude of the government as contrary to the interests of the country. The immediate convocation of Parliament was demanded by the opposition.

In making its reply, the government publication explains it is the intention of the Cabinet to adhere to its policy of neutrality except in the event that the rights "niched from Bulgaria," under the treaty of Bucharest, after the second Balkan war, are restored.

"But, should conditions be so modified as to demand intervention," the statement concludes, "the government will immediately summon Parliament."

YEOMEN HOLD PICNIC.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

REDONDO BEACH, Aug. 28.—An indoor baseball game played on the strand here this afternoon, with women at the bat, women holding down the bases and women as captains of the teams, was a feature of the annual picnic of the Brotherhood of American Yeomen. In the evening the [illegible] Knights of the Karnival mingled with the crowd in a mardi gras street dance. Mrs. R. W. [illegible] was captain of the winning team. A similar game was played between the men of the brotherhood. A programme of sports was held during the afternoon and this led up to a pie-eating contest, a tug of war and prize waltzing at the pavilion. It was estimated that about 1000 attended the picnic.

Human Service.

NEW HOSPITAL OPENS DOORS.

Methodist Women Dedicate Unusual Institution.

"Non-staff" Feature One of the Novelties.

Science and Machinery Make Hands Unnecessary.

The first "open shop" hospital in Southern California, and a completely equipped institution, will be thrown open to the public this week, when the Methodist Hospital at Twenty-ninth and Hope streets holds its dedicatory services.

The hospital, just finished at a cost of [illegible], is a monument to the industry, activity and charity of the Methodist women of Southern California. It is to be dedicated to human service as a lasting testimonial to the triumphant work of the Woman's Home Missionary Society of this conference.

And the Methodist Hospital, an imposing five-story edifice with a double basement, will come to be distinguished for that which it lacks as much as for the new and unusual features which it possesses.

It will have no medical staff. This means that any patient may have his own physician and that any physician who is a graduate of any recognized medical school may send patients to that hospital. In other words, it is to be an "open shop," where no favorites are played and where a flat rate for service is to be charged rich and poor alike. Upon this theory of service, the "nonstaff" institution opens auspiciously.

Take a baby, for instance, crowing its first welcome to the world from a cot on the obstetrical floor of the new hospital. That baby is taken from its mother to the nursery where a miraculous process takes the infant through a bath. Water, that is more like a warm rain, falls upon the babe as it is sent skidding across a marble slab toward an electric drying stove, and from the dryer into a steel cage, where it rests until time to go back to mother. Human hands hardly touch the body; the process of treatment is mechanical.

LAST WORD.

Mrs. Frederick Fischer of St. Andrews boulevard outfitted the nursery and all the babies that will come into the world on the fourth floor of the new hospital will be indebted to her for treatment that spells the last word in obstetrical research and modern nursing.

While the baby is being cared for the mother will be taught everything in the care of the child that will be necessary for her to know when she returns to her home with the new member of the family.

The hospital stands on the site of the famous home of Ex-Mayor Hazard. The new building, fronting on Hope street, has accommodations for more than 200 patients. There is a double basement, with a laundry, lecture-room and kitchen in one, and five upper stories, each one having a solarium, a diet kitchen and utility-room.

The king of old who had a flunky taste his grog as insurance against an unwelcome hemlock has nothing on the modern Methodist. Miss Edna Burt, a registered dietitian, inspects every morsel of food before it goes to the patient.

The first floor has the offices, reception-rooms and men's surgical ward, on the second floor is the men's medical and on the third the women's medical wards. In construction both floors are alike.

The fourth floor boasts an obstetrical ward, delivery room, nursery, private rooms, and the fifth floor reaches the acme of medical and surgical science in the very completeness of the equipment in every department. There are three main surgeries, a surgery for eye, ear, nose and throat operations, an anesthetizing room, sterilizing rooms, dressing rooms, nurses' work room and any number of other rooms bristling with nickeled appliances that make mere hands seem unnecessary, for nearly everything can be done by pressing a button or lever with the knee or foot.

The operating rooms are done in a soft gray, which is an innovation, for most surgeries are painted a glaring white. In one stands a dressing sterilizer that resembles a bank vault, while in another operating room rises a double tank of hot and cold sterilized water with two instrument sterilizers and a basin operated with foot levers. This appliance, made especially for the new hospital, won honors at the San Francisco exposition and only recently was brought to Los Angeles to be ready for opening week.

EFFICIENT.

Surgeons' dressing and scrub rooms are so numerous and so complete that about all a doctor has to do is stand on a mat, get a needle bath, a shampoo and an alcohol rub without turning a hand.

Thirty girls went into training at the hospital yesterday, and during the coming week the first class, numbering three nurses, will be graduated. The board of directors and faculty announce that next Thursday physicians and nurses may inspect the new institution and on the following day the Methodists will be entertained. Twenty of them have furnished rooms and wards in the hospital. Graduating exercises will be held on the grounds Friday evening. The following day the hospital will be opened to receive patients. Next Sunday dedicatory exercises will be conducted by Bishop Edwin H. Hughes.

Miss Charlotte Armstrong, R.N., a graduate of Wesley Hospital in Chicago, is the superintendent and dean of the hospital faculty. She has been superintendent of the institution for four years and has directed all the work of installing the equipment, planning the arrangement of rooms and ordering supplies.

The faculty consists also of Miss Minnie Wilson, assistant superintendent; Miss Eva S. Bornheim, instructor of nurses; Miss Anna Larson, instructor in charge of operating floor; Miss Gertrude O'Neill, in charge of men's surgical floor; Miss Marguerite Hostetter, in charge of obstetrical floor; Miss Erma Tauber, night superintendent.

It is to be a suffragette hospital, with nothing like a mere man in sight unless he needs treatment. The faculty consists of graduate registered nurses.

FORT WAYNE PICNIC.

An all-day picnic for former residents of Fort Wayne, Ind., will be held at Hollenbeck Park next Wednesday. Several speeches and music are included in the programme.

BEFRIENDS DEFENDER.

Girl Provides Counsel and Seeks Bail for Pugilist Who Trounced Two Insulters.

Miss Jean Dare tried to show her appreciation of heroism yesterday when she provided counsel and sought to raise bail for John Tenbrook, a prize fighter. Tenbrook whipped two men who are alleged to have insulted Miss Dare.

Later he was arrested by Detective Fitzgerald for the alleged theft of laundry from the room of George Lauman, No. 414½ North Hill street.

The detective testified before Justice Forbes yesterday that Tenbrook had confessed. The pugilist was bound over to the Superior Court.

Attorney Hahn, who defended him at the instigation of Miss Dare, said a fund will be raised for his bail and defense.

SHOOTS DOLLARS FOR A PASTIME.

TEXAS GIRL WINS ADMIRATION OF PASADENA FOLKS.

Product of Stylish Finishing School Handles Revolver with Rare Skill and Rides and "Ropes" Like a Cowboy—Gun-play Causes Incipient Panic at Fashionable Hotel.

A new way of getting rid of one's money has been introduced to Pasadenans by Miss Dorothy Eckhardt, of Taylor, Tex., who has become the envy of all the guests at the Maryland Hotel because of her feats in marksmanship. Miss Eckhardt can puncture silver dollars with a 32-caliber revolver as fast as the coins can be thrown into the air.

Miss Eckhardt, who is the daughter of Robert J. Eckhardt, banker and one of the biggest ranchmen of Texas, first attained notoriety in Pasadena when she shot a dollar through the window of one of the hotel bedrooms, startling the occupant. She tried to repeat the feat and the frightened guest appealed to the management for help.

Acting Manager Moore bribed the crack shot into submission with a five-pound box of candy.

Since which time Miss Eckhardt has removed her shooting gallery from the hotel grounds to the outskirts of the city, taking her admirers with her.

Although she completed her education at a fashionable New York finishing school and learned all that could be learned there, she is prouder of her shooting and riding and her ability to rope and brand a steer than of all her drawing-room accomplishments.

The Texas girl is now 21 years of age and has been riding ever since she was old enough to sit on a horse. She was under 10 when she roped and branded her first steer on her father's ranch of several hundred thousand acres. All her life her greatest delight has been to mount her horse at daybreak and ride in the round-ups until 9 o'clock at night.

WHITESIDE COUNTY.

Dr. Samuel Eliot

Of Boston, president of the American Unitarian Association, who will be a visitor in Los Angeles this week and speak Wednesday night at the First Unitarian Church. He is the son of former President Eliot of Harvard University.

UNITARIANS ARE CITY'S GUESTS.

DR. ELIOT OF BOSTON LEADS A MEETING HERE NEXT WEDNESDAY.

Members of the First Unitarian Church at No. 925 South Flower street are welcoming a host of fellow-workers from the East—delegates to the recent General Unitarian Conference in San Francisco — who are on the way home. Former President Taft was president of the conference.

The visitors will participate in several interesting gatherings next Wednesday. At 2 p.m. a meeting of the Woman's Alliance will be held at the church. "The Church's Need of Co-operative Effort" and "The Meeting House on the Hill" will be two of the subjects discussed. Among the speakers will be Mrs. Davis of New York City, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Peterson of the southern circuit, Mrs. Lowell of the Finance Committee, and Mrs. Gilson, the treasurer.

At 8 o'clock p.m. on the same day a platform meeting will be held under the auspices of the American Unitarian Association, the president being Dr. Samuel Eliot of Boston, son of former President Eliot of Harvard University. The devotional service will be conducted by Rev. Harry Lutz, pastor of the Channing Religious Society of Newton, Mass. The speakers will be Rev. T. R. Sturtevant of Taunton, Mass.; Rev. Minot Simons of Cleveland, and Rev. Dr. Paul Revere Frothingham of the Arlington-street Church, Boston, one of the oldest and probably the largest church in the Unitarian body. Both Rev. Mr. Simons and Rev. Mr. Frothingham have served many years on the board of preachers of Harvard University, and the latter was this year honored by Harvard with the honorary degree of Doctor of Divinity in recognition of his services as a preacher and as member of the board of overseers of the university. The public is invited to the meetings.

TO SEND BAND TO EXPOSITION.

LOS ANGELES WOMEN WILL HELP WITH THEATER BOX PARTY.

A number of Los Angeles women, headed by Mrs. Sebastian, met yesterday and arranged for a box party to be given at the Burbank Friday evening. The proceeds of the party will go toward defraying the expenses of the Municipal Band, which will be sent to San Francisco for the Admission Day celebration at the exposition September 8.

Box seats for the theater party will be sold at auction by Miss Grace Jarvis and Mayor Sebastian at the Alexandria lobby, Wednesday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

The committee named yesterday to complete arrangements for the party includes Mrs. C. E. Sebastian, Mrs. J. W. Summerfield, Mrs. A. D. Houghton, Mrs. Thomas White, Mrs. H. L. Zuckerman, Mrs. R. W. Richardson and Mrs. Friedman. This committee will be assisted by others to be named by the Native Daughters.

The committee also decided to arrange for a baseball game between teams made up of movie actors to be played at the ball park some time this week and Mayor Sebastian was appointed to arrange for the services of Charlie Chaplin to umpire the game.

RAISING WATER LEVEL BY WEIR.

RECEIVER SAYS IMPERIAL'S FULL DEMAND CAN NOW BE MET.

Each recurring year presents a great problem in the matter of diverting the needed quantity of water from the Colorado River into the canal system built by the California Development Company, now under the control of Receiver W. H. Holabird.

The first effort in 1910 was in the shape of a trestle strong enough to carry a heavily-loaded railway train. A convenient mountain of rock made this scheme possible, but very expensive. Rock was dropped until the crest of the weir showed above the surface of the water, increasing the elevation so that sufficient water was diverted into the canal to meet the pressing demands. The total cost of this weir approximated $50,000. It entirely obstructed navigation and the next year, 1911, the receiver was compelled to remove this trestle by order of the engineering chief of the War Department at Washington.

After the removal of the trestle, which was accomplished by shooting off the piling with dynamite, the ties, plates and sills having been previously removed, the rock still remained as much a menace to navigation as though the trestle still existed. This rock weir the receiver was peremptorily ordered to remove under penalty of being shown in contempt of the United States government, with the severe penalties attached thereto.

The removal of this rock weir was accomplished by the receiver directing his engineers to take the hydraulic, or suction dredger El Centro into the stream and working along the lower side of the weir, pumping out, or making a basin into which by gravity the rock was forced. The entire weir was buried in this manner, with the exception of one small area about 100 feet from the California shore on the lower side of the intake canal. This was sufficiently prominent to catch drift wood and has been nominated the "Brush Island" ever since that period.

The discharge into the canal during the months of August and September, 1912 and 1913, was not equal to the demands of Imperial Valley. In 1914 the discharge was materially increased by a rather ingenious, but successful, method proposed by J. C. Allison, chief engineer for Receiver Holabird. This was by building a sand weir when the river reached a state of discharge of about 7000 cubic second feet. The width at the point where the weir was constructed was about 900 feet and the location was that of the original stone weir and trestle heretofore referred to. Brush and piling made of the native trees, willow and cottonwood, of from four to five inches in diameter, were driven into the sand and the dredger placed on the upper side kept constantly discharging the material picked up from the bottom of the river, which fortunately contained a very large percentage of coarse gravel.

The experiment of 1914 was only successful in a measure, because when the weir was about completed and had shown its crest above the water's surface almost to the California shore, a freshet came down, due to excessive rain in Arizona, which quickly washed away the structure. Again the weir was built by the same means and again washed away. By that time the demand for water had diminished and the discharge into the canal by normal means and the keeping open of the intake by constant dredging day and night, made it unnecessary to again build the weir.

This year, 1915, the demand for water has been very great. For instance, during July, 1915, the total deliveries to Imperial Valley were 137,000 net acre feet, compared with 134,000 in 1914, 109,000 in 1913, 83,000 in 1912, 66,000 in 1911 and 42,000 in 1910. These figures show the constant increase in delivery and also illustrate the constant and rapidly-increasing demand for water.

This method of raising the water level and increasing the discharge into the canal is only practicable, as has been before stated, when the river discharge is about 7000 feet, or less. The work of building the weir has been going on now for about ten days. On the 26th inst. the weir was completed to Brush Island, and about 100 feet of open channel only remained to tie up with the California bank. Through this 100-foot opening about 3000 cubic second feet of water was moving very swiftly and had cut the channel to a depth of about twelve feet and, being exceedingly careful to build structures that would go out with the first freshet, that the receiver might not be found again guilty of contempt in obstructing navigation, the last 100-foot closure is taking much longer time than a corresponding width had taken before reaching Brush Island.

The elevation of the water at the mouth of the intake canal with the weir in its present condition is greatly increased. The construction of the weir has greatly aided in maintaining a free channel in the intake canal and has made the dredging of that canal unnecessary, the scouring effect having brought the floor of the intake canal down to the elevation of the sill of the stony gate at Hanlon heading.

The cost of this work, including the operation of the dredger El Centro and all of the labor incident thereto, is approximately $200 per day. The total time occupied in building the weir until the brush island was reached, was days. The total cost was less than one-fourth the trestle of 1910.

A telegram from Mr. Allison yesterday states that the remaining channel of the river is seventy-five feet wide. The water is backing up as far as Yuma, so the water is rising slowly.

This story of this important work is given because it is, as far as the writer can learn, rather unique in method of diversion and very economical as compared with the original plan proposed and carried into effect by C. K. Clarke, at that time chief engineer for the receiver, and reflects great credit upon the genius of Mr. J. C. Allison, the present chief engineer for the receiver.

The reader must not forget that the Colorado River is one of the most remarkable streams in the world, discharging at times as high as 160,000 cubic second feet and again as low a discharge as 3500 cubic second feet, with fluctuations very great in quantity, to overcome at any time, the crest of the flood discharge being about the 24th day of June of each year, other floods being the result of freak storms in Arizona. The writer believes the full demands for water in Imperial Valley will now be met.

W. H. HOLABIRD,
Receiver of the California Development Company.

STRUCK BY MOTORCYCLE.

Tottering under the weight of 84 years, Mrs. Maria Deosia staggered in front of a motorcycle at North Main and Arcadia streets late yesterday afternoon and was hurled to the curb. She was removed to the Receiving Hospital, where Surgeon Hiller discovered she had sustained a broken ankle and other injuries. L. B. Herdman of Altadena was driving the motorcycle and he reported to the police that the woman started across the street, but turned back and stepped before his machine.

WOMAN BITTEN BY DOG.

Bitten by a vicious dog, Mrs. Rosa Kraemer of Fullerton, who came here to visit some friends in Florencita Park, was taken to the Receiving Hospital late yesterday afternoon. She was searching for her friends when the dog leaped over a fence and bit her arm.

The Offense of Kissing.

[Milwaukee Dispatch to Baltimore Star:] Do not kiss your girl.

You are a criminal if you do. So is your girl.

You and the girl are both liable to arrest. The punishment is fine or imprisonment.

The other night James Brown went to visit Blanche Davis. They sat in the parlor and left the window shade up. They "spooned," it is charged. There was a little kissing.

Then Patrolmen Sikorski and Engel came along. They peeked through the window. They arrested the couple.

In District Court Brown and Miss Davis were each fined $5 and costs. If they do not pay the fine they will go to the house of correction—for kissing.

Chinese Were Ahead.

[Atchison Globe.] The Chinese claim that they bred and domesticated hogs 4000 years before the Christian era, but in all that time the manners of the hogs have not improved much.

Russia's Financial Stringency.

The suppression by the Russian government of vodka drinking is costing that country $26,000,000 a month in excise revenue, but with the increased savings of the peasant class deposited in the banks and subject to investment in government bonds, the net deficit for the year is computed at $84,000,000.

There are other serious deficiencies in Russian ordinary revenues, due to the war, the Council of Ministers reports. The indirect taxes of the empire, as measured by the January returns, have fallen nearly $12,000,000 a month, and the customs taxes are off to the extent of almost $2,000,000 a month. The royalties have fallen from $47,900,000 a month to $9,650,000, and the revenues from State properties have declined $1,000,000 a month.

These deficiencies foot up at the present rate about $640,000,000 a year, and there is practically nothing to offset them except an increase of $16,000,000 a year in the tax on trade and industry.

The situation is so pressing that Russia is raising $230,000,000 a month by special taxes to meet her war expenses.

During the first five months of the war Russia's exports of her own products and industries fell off $334,000,000.

DIVIDEND DAY IS APPROACHING.

JUMBO EXTENSION TO MAKE A LARGE DISBURSEMENT SHORTLY.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

GOLDFIELD, Aug. 26.—Stockholders of the Jumbo Extension Mining of record August 1 will receive within the next two weeks checks for the dividend of 7½ cents a share declared by the directors following the annual meeting of the company at Phoenix, Ariz., July 19. The disbursement will aggregate $116,250. This will bring the total amount paid to stockholders up to $338,305.80, representing the four dividends declared by the company.

The present management is to be complimented upon the fact that of the four dividends three have been declared during its tenure of office, which dates back about nineteen months. Prior to that time but one dividend was distributed, namely, on July 15, 1911, out of the proceeds of the sale of the Vinegarone fraction to the Goldfield Consolidated Mines Company.

The excellent physical condition of the mine is reflected by recently-issued official statements as to earnings. The net realization from June operations amounted to $55,856.37, while for July, according to the preliminary estimate of Vice-President J. K. Turner, the total will be $60,000. These figures make it apparent, to use the vernacular of the street, that the Jumbo Extension is "some mine." All developments of late in the property have been of a character tending to support that general belief.

Recent developments at depth in the Union Jack claim of the Atlanta Mines Company have been of a routine, yet highly-pleasing character. The exploratory work is going steadily ahead and excellent headway is being made.

The Florence mine continues to give the usual good account of itself.

Having unwatered the mine the management of the Great Bend is at present giving particular attention to cleaning accumulated muck from the workings on the 400-foot level of the vertical shaft, preparatory to the renewed development of the ore bodies exposed in the early-day operations in the ground.

The flow of water in the mine at present measures approximately 75,000 gallons daily, which is being easily handled.

Encouraging results are being obtained in the raise being put up from the east crosscut on the 700-foot level, at a point 250 feet from the shaft, in the property of the Silver Pick Consolidated Mines Company.

Small values are being obtained in the raise from the south drift on the 800-foot level of the Goldfield Oro property at a point about 100 feet from the main working shaft.

The winze being sunk between the 500-foot level of the Sandstorm Kendall is now more than 150 feet in depth.

No developments of importance have occurred of late at the Booth, Blue Bull, Kewanas, Merger or Black Butte.

For a Weak Stomach.

If you have any trouble with your digestion you should read what Mrs. J. C. Bauer, Zanesville, O., has to say regarding her experience as follows: "I was troubled for months with a weak stomach and constipation, and it was all I could do to drag myself about the house. Chamberlain's Tablets afforded me the first relief I got, and after taking them a short time I was restored to health."—[Advertisement.

NEW BOAT BIG IMPROVEMENT.

Dredge Extracts Ore; Leaves Ground as Before.

Balaklala to Ship Rock to Mammoth Smelter.

Anti-debris Association is no More.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SACRAMENTO, Aug. 26.—A new gold "boat," expected to revolutionize the California dredging industry, is being constructed at Folsom by the Natomas Dredging Company, the foremost concern of its kind in the State. It is designed to not only redredge the tailings in the old Oroville, Folsom and other fields, but also to reclaim the dredged land and again restore it to a state of fertility.

The new "boat" in many respects resembles the standard models, but is equipped with double stackers which deposit the debris brought aboard by the buckets. The lower stacker will deposit the gravel and boulders as ordinarily, but the upper stacker will place an upper layer of earth on the gravel, thus restoring the land to practically the same condition prevailing prior to starting of operations.

The new dredge will have its first trial at Folsom, and will later be moved to Oroville. Its successful operation will remove the principal objection to dredging of farm lands, and is expected to facilitate development of many rich placer sections throughout the State.

The Balaklala Copper Company has entered into a contract with the Mammoth Copper Company providing for the treatment of 250 tons of Balaklala ore per day at the Mammoth smelter. The contract has a life of ten years, and will enable the Balaklala owners to market profitably its medium-grade ore, of which an enormous tonnage is at hand.

This arrangement will not interfere with resumption of smelting at the Balaklala plant, where installation of the improved Cottrell process will commence within six weeks. A force of 250 men is to be put to work at the mine.

The Kennedy Mining Company is placing its old north shaft in shape for vigorous operations, and it is reported the development of the Zella and Bright properties will be prosecuted from the old avenue. The north shaft was formerly the main one, but of late years has not been used to any extent, all operations being conducted via the west shaft, which has a vertical depth of over 3800 feet. The 100-stamp mill is running steadily, with most of the ore coming from below the 3000 level workings. The vein has an average width of ten feet, and the company is maintaining an approximate monthly output of $80,000.

ANNOUNCE PLANS.

The Walker Mining Company, composed of Salt Lake capitalists, has announced definite plans concerning operation of its copper holdings twenty-five miles from Portola. The new concentration plant will have a capacity of 100 tons per day and will employ the flotation process, which is revolutionizing the treatment of low-grade copper ores. The mine force has been increased to thirty men, and a big ore body is under development. Considerable ore assaying 6 per cent. copper is stated to be exposed, with gold and silver also occurring.

Experiments with the flotation process at the plant of the Calaveras Copper Company have been so satisfactory that arrangements are being made to increase considerably the capacity of the works. New equipment will facilitate treatment of 500 to 600 tons of ore daily, and enable the company to handle much of its lower-grade output at a good profit. Development in the lower levels continues, with good results.

With the placing of the last battery of its new sixty-stamp mill in commission, the Empire mine at Grass Valley has taken first place among the quartz-gold producers of California. The mill has a capacity of 290 tons per day. This, in conjunction with the twenty-stamp Pennsylvania mill, gives the Empire a crushing capacity considerably in excess of that of the two forty-stamp mills of the North Star company, which for two years has been the leading gold mine in the State. It is conservatively estimated that the future output of the Empire company will approximate $1,200,000 per year, exceeding the yield of the North Star from $75,000 to $200,000.

Preparations are being made for resumption of production at the Eureka slate quarries, near Kelsey. The long tram across the south fork of the American River, north of Placerville, is being repaired, and machinery at the quarries is receiving a thorough overhauling. The holdings contain some of the largest slate deposits in the State, and formerly furnished employment for 123 men.

ASSOCIATION PASSES.

After thirty years of warfare against the placer miners of California, the Anti-Debris Association has practically ceased to exist. Last week the final meeting was held in Sacramento, and the remaining funds placed to the credit of the county.

The Anti-Debris Association draped the mantle of ruin over the California hydraulic mining industry, reduced the California gold output fully four-fifths, and blighted the prosperity of scores of mining towns. The dredger has brought back a measure of prosperity to many of the old placer districts, but there yet remain scores of rich hydraulic mines that cannot be profitably worked. The birth of the association spelled the doom of California hydraulic operations, and its passing will leave no regrets with the mining fraternity.

Arrangements have been made for extensive operations at the City of Six mine, near Downieville, by George W. Henderson and A. E. Hodgkinson of Los Angeles. The 400-foot lower tunnel is to be extended 100 feet further on the Carson ledge, and is expected to intersect a rich shoot of quartz exposed in the upper levels. Free gold is showing in quartz seams in the lower workings, and the shoot is believed to be near the face of the level.

Another producer has been added to the list of active properties at Alleghany. The new mill of the Red Ledge mine was placed in commission last week and is running on ore of good grade. The Red Ledge has been undergoing development by the Bank Mining and Promotion Company of Buffalo, N. Y., for several years, and a large tonnage of medium-grade ore is blocked out. The product is largely free milling, the result being low operating costs.

A sensational gold strike is reported from the Eureka mine, near Magalia. Ore running into fabulous values is being mined from a new shoot, and is taken on burros to nearby mills. Every consignment is carefully guarded, and precautions have been taken to prevent thefts at the mine. Some of the ore is declared to be nearly 50 per cent. gold. The shoot is showing well as developments advance, but the richest ore appears to be in the form of a pocket. The mine lies a short distance from the famous Mineral Slide property, which for many years yielded much ore of bonanza character.

Warming Up.

DEATH VALLEY FEELS MINING FEVER'S PULSE.

Unprecedented Activity in the Development of All Classes of Ore is Witnessed in California's Great Mineral Section—Winter Expected to Bring Extraordinary Wave of Exploitation.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

INDEPENDENCE (Cal.) Aug. 26.—Despite the summer season, which is the usual time for laying off in Death Valley, that section is witnessing unprecedented activity in the mining of all classes of ore. Never has the lower end of Inyo county seen such zealous work, either in winter or summer, and the fact that several hundred men are kept busy, with the thermometer standing daily at 140, presages extraordinary exploitation during the coming winter when the temperature is more compatible with intensive work.

The Carbonate Lead Mines Company is keeping ten trucks busy hauling ore to the railroad at Zabriskie on the Tonopah and Tidewater. Ten trucks more have been ordered to be placed in commission about the middle of September. Ore from the Carbonate mine averages 37 per cent. lead, twenty ounces silver and $5 in gold.

The truck haul to the railroad costs $12 a ton but as the ore is worth $40 there is a good margin of profit after paying smelting and transportation charges. The cost of mining is very low as the ore is quarried from the side of the mountain and three miners can keep the auto trucks going day and night.

The McCausland gold mine owned by B. W. McCausland and Ross McCausland, of Los Angeles, is twenty-nine miles from Zabriskie in Scotty's Canyon. This property consists of a series of veins from two to six feet in width the ore going from $12 to $200 in gold per ton. A forty ton Lane mill is now reducing the ores, but the owners are arranging to increase the capacity ot 150 tons daily. The mine is at an elevation of 3500 feet, while the mill, curiously enough, is situated 135 feet below sea level.

Walker P. Graham, of Los Angeles, has given an option to other Los Angeles people on the Acacia group of seven claims and rumor has it that the option will be exercised early next month so that the purchasers may begin a vigorous campaign this winter.

PROFITABLE ORE.

Thirty miles from Carbonate near Owl Holes is a big manganese deposit owned by Alec Yeoman. The deposit is 100 feet in width and averages 50 per cent. manganese. It is shipped to the Baldwin Steel Works, Baltimore, Md., by way of the Panama Canal and brings $35 per ton at that point.

The motor truck haul to the railroad costs $7.50 per ton, railroad freight to San Pedro $2.50, and water freight from San Pedro to Baltimore $4.00 per ton. With the cost of mining but little, if any, over $1 per ton, the profit on this ore is very good.

Six miles from Silver Lake, which is twenty miles south of Zabriskie, is the Page gypsum deposit. This property is operated with the aid of a big caterpillar engine weighing eighteen tons, which hauls the product to the railroad a distance of some six miles. Thirty tons can be hauled at a load and the engine can make two round trips per day.

The Tecopa mines company holding an enormous property, fourteen miles southeast of Zabriskie, is outputting 1500 tons a month and has contracted for the construction of a mill, with a capacity of 150 tons a day, to be erected at the mine where the ores can be concentrated to advantage.

The Chambers property, eight miles southeast of Zabriskie, where the ore averages twenty per cent. lead, with gold and silver values besides, is installing a thirty-ton concentrating mill.

Nine miles northwest of Zabriskie, high on the Funeral Range, lies the much-debated, as to possibilities, and justly famed Gladstone mine. Forty years ago ore was taken from the Gladstone and hauled almost 100 miles across the desert to Daggett, whence it was shipped to Swansea, Wales. Despite the long journey across desert, plains, mountains, and ocean, the wealth of lead, copper and gold was such that the expense was justified, and the estimate of money made runs high in the hundreds of thonsands.

The mine has changed hands frequently; men interested died or lost faith. Finally a period of litigation came which held the property in check for many years. Recently the mine was bought by John S. Stottler, of Santa Monica, who is now building a road to it, and it is hoped the property will be worked to its fullest capacity, and will now be able properly to treat the ore in this country.

City Commissioner Umpires Odd Fellows' Game.

Country Schools Behind in Educational Work.

Carelessness Shown in Care of Big Gas Tank.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

PASADENA, Aug. 29.—Commissioner M. H. Salisbury had never umpired a baseball game until yesterday afternoon—but he had read a whole lot about it. The Pasadena lodge had challenged the Crown City lodge to show its mettle at the Odd Fellows' picnic at Brookside Park, and apparently having a grudge against Commissioner Salisbury, had singled him out to umpire the game.

Umpire Salisbury wasn't taking any chances. He came armed with two ugly-looking revolvers and a policeman's "billy." And when he said "out" he meant "out," and he didn't take any back talk.

The umpire, however, wasn't very well versed in the finer points of the game, so he had Commissioner W. F. [illegible] and Chairman A. L. Hamilton to help him in an advisory capacity. The two advisers were not armed with anything more deadly than pocket [illegible].

The announcement was made that a pair of shoes would be given the player making the first home run, and this inducement caused the downfall of many of the star batters. As no home runs were made, the shoes were put up for a prize in the fat man's race and the winner claims that he lost fifteen pounds getting them—at the rate of three pounds for a dollar.

The Odd Fellows' picnic was one of the biggest events of its kind that has ever been held in Pasadena. People attended not only from Pasadena and suburbs, but from Los Angeles, Long Beach, Redondo Beach, San Bernardino, Monrovia and other cities. It was estimated that more than 3000 Odd Fellows met at the park for the celebration.

All the members of the City Commission were invited to attend, and an address of welcome was delivered by Chairman A. L. Hamilton. Judge [illegible] A. Spill made an effective speech in thanking Mr. Hamilton for his sentiments. He also spoke of the material development of the park during the last three years from a barren waste to one of the most beautiful spots of Southern California.

Following the speeches the most important event of the day was taken up—that of eating lunch. The meal was climaxed by the disposal of several tons of watermelons which had been furnished by one of the local [illegible]

In the cool of the evening a programme of sports was held, the picnic ending with a moonlight supper and band concert.

CITY PROGRESSIVE.

One of the surprising facts brought out by the delegates to the National Education Association in Oakland, according to Dr. Jeremiah M. Rhodes, superintendent of Pasadena's city schools, was that educational progress in the city has been much more rapid than in the country.

"Health conditions are more of a handicap in rural schools than they are in the city," said Dr. Rhodes. "Because of modern methods in sanitation and modern methods of coping with ailments among school children the average of health among pupils in metropolitan centers is considerably higher than in the rural communities. The water is purer, on the average, and general sanitation is better."

Dr. Rhodes states that country schools are further handicapped by a lack of teachers in special subjects, such as agriculture, domestic science and industrial features. He says that the teaching of scientific agriculture is even more necessary in the country than in the city, but all the country boy usually knows about farming he learns from his father.

NO WARNING.

It has been discovered that adequate warnings were not given the employees on the city sewer farm in regard to the lighting of fires near the gas tank which was blown up Friday afternoon. City Engineer Orbison, who has been conducting an investigation, says that he cannot find that any warning was ever formally given and thinks this should be made public in fairness to Superintendent Halvorstadt and the men employed at the farm.

The danger was so little understood, according to Mr. Orbison, that people have actually driven automobiles up on top of the tank. He says that he does not like to think of what might have happened if the auto engine had ignited the gas in the tank beneath.

Commissioner Loughery stated yesterday that the whole affair would be thoroughly investigated to fix the blame for the accident which blew [illegible] square feet of a concrete top off the tank. The most important thing, however, at the present time, he says, is to put the tank in shape as rapidly as possible.

OBERLIN'S PRESIDENT.

Dr. Henry Churchill King, president of Oberlin College, is visiting his brother, Dr. Charles Lee King, at the [illegible] Hotel in Pasadena. Dr. King has been associated with the college since his boyhood and has spent his entire scholastic life there with the exception of a year or two of post-graduate work at Harvard and [illegible]. He became a member of the faculty immediately after his graduation and occupied successively the chairs of mathematics, of philosophy, and of theology, and was finally called to the presidency.

Today Dr. King will occupy the pulpit of the First Congregational Church of Los Angeles, preaching at both morning and evening services. At the evening service seats will be reserved for the members of the Southern California Oberlin association, of which Dr. Maxwell Burke, formerly professor of economics at the University of Pennsylvania, is president.

CITY BRIEFS.

Fire threatened three big apartment houses on North Euclid avenue yesterday when the three-story frame house at No. 261 North Euclid avenue burst into flames. Prompt work on the part of the firemen from the [illegible] street engine house prevented the flames from spreading. In breaking into the house Assistant Fire Chief Holmes was injured, cutting his left hand on a jagged piece of glass in the upper half of the door. The occupants of the house were not at home when the fire started, and it is supposed that the blaze started by crossed electric wires.

Nine cultured gentlemen took the examination under the civil service bureau of the Federal government for the exalted position of janitor of the new Pasadena postoffice yesterday. The aspirants were submitted questions on all esthetic subjects calculated to improve their efficiency with the mop and broom, and several proved that they would be equally at home in a bank or professorial chair.

GRANDPARENTS BY HALF-SCORE.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

REDLANDS, Aug. 28.—A record in grandparents present was made here last night when Raymond, the 3-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Putnam, celebrated his birthday anniversary with a picnic at Sylvan Park. The young man has ten grandparents living and seven of them were present at his party. There were four grandparents there and three great-grandparents. Relatives of less importance such as uncles, aunts and cousins were also invited. The grandparents present were Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Putnam and Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Sargent of this city. The great-grandparents present were D. W. Sargent, Mrs. Charlotte Clark and Mrs. J. Putnam. Mrs. D. W. Sargent was in Los Angeles and Mr. and Mrs. C. Lewis live at Apple, Mass.

GIRL REFUTES HER TESTIMONY.

PROTECTS BOY WHEN PLACED ON WITNESS STAND.

Youthful Romance may Result in Perjury Charge — Auto Driver Turns Over His Car to Avoid Hitting Another Vehicle—Man on Parole Poses as Officer.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SAN BERNARDINO, Aug. 28.—Pretty 17-year-old Bernice Cox of Chino sat on the witness stand in the Superior courtroom this morning and placidly admitted that she lied in her testimony against Richard O'Day, aged 19, also of Chino, both at the preliminary hearing and at the first trial, when the jury rendered a verdict of guilty but could not reach an agreement on the punishment. As a result the court dismissed the statutory charge against O'Day and he was released.

The girl made the startling statement just as a jury was about to hear the testimony at the second trial. Her avowed love for young O'Day and the understanding that the young man would claim her for a bride if given the opportunity is supposed to have been the reason for her change of testimony.

The District Attorney's office, as a consequence, today announced that a charge of perjury may be filed against the girl.

NEWS BRIEFS.

To avoid striking a vehicle without light which suddenly loomed up in the road ahead of him late last night on West Fourth street, Edwin C. Cook of Colton quickly turned his automobile to the side and the machine turned over, pinning him underneath but throwing his wife clear. Cook was taken from beneath his automobile by Dr. J. W. Callnon, County Health Officer, and others who followed in another automobile, and taken to the County Hospital. He suffered a slight concussion of the brain. Mrs. Cook was uninjured.

Posing as a county speed officer, H. E. Slinker was arrested last night and today charged with violating his parole. Slinker used the name of Smith about the west end of the county and exhibited a star to secure gasoline and equipment for his motorcycle, it is alleged. He was paroled in the Superior Court several months ago on a forgery charge and he will be brought before Judge Curtis, who will determine if his recent actions justify his commitment to prison.

R. L. McIntyre, aged 40 years, shot himself through the head with a revolver at his Court street home and the body was found in his rooms today. McIntyre had been troubled with bad health for months and that is supposed to be the reason for the tragedy, although the dead man left nothing in the way of an explanation.

Joseph Rolfe lost his balance while walking across a pipe line at the Colton city reservoir south of San Bernardino and plunged head first to the bottom of the empty tank, his skull being fractured on the cement floor. His recovery is doubtful, physicians declared this afternoon.

Charlie Hayes was acquitted by a jury which for four hours deliberated on the evidence brought against him concerning a robbery charge in which he was accused of taking $350 from Chris Belsley of Pomona while the latter was drunk.

OLD INDIAN DIES.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SANTA BARBARA, Aug. 28.—Mrs. Apolinana Gutierrez, last of the Mission Indians who lived in the village about the Santa Barbara Mission when it was first erected, died here today, more than 100 years old. She was born at San Gabriel and when 14 years old came here with the padres, when the mission was new. She has resided in Santa Barbara at least ninety years, so far as records show. Despite her years Mrs. Guitierrez took a lively interest in world affairs and was eager for news of the European war, believing to the last the Pope would succeed in restoring peace. During her girlhood she was attached to the house of Don de la Guerra here.

SQUABBLE OVER SEWERAGE PIPE.

Agents Stir up Citizens on Respective Merits.

Ocean Frontage at Long Beach is Sold.

Boat Inspection Ordered in Transportation War.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

LONG BEACH, Aug. 28.—Now that the main sewerage system is well under way, under the $300,000 contract given by the city to Bent Bros., war between the concrete sewer pipe men and the manufacturers of vitrified clay pipe over $400,000 worth of lateral and extension contracts has reached the trench stage with the soldier-agents of each throwing verbal hand grenades at each other.

For the purpose of deciding which pipe to use in their laterals connecting with the main sewer, the residents have formed groups of districts. They have held meetings, gotten up petitions and counter-petitions, hired lawyers and agitated the merits of the two brands of pipes before the City Commissioners, always egged on by the pipe agents. As the taxpayers do their own lateral building, the kind of pipe they use "is their funeral."

Half-page advertisements in the local newspapers set forth the alleged defects of one pipe or the other. Charges and counter-charges have been hurled by the various men at each other. The two pipe materials have been placed under the microscope, pulverized, squinted at, chewed, and even swallowed by the zealots of the armed camps in their endeavor to prove one or the other pipe is the best, or the worst.

C. A. Bonar, head of a committee of citizens in one district, stated tonight that the residents in his part of the town have quit arguing and have gone in for the vitrified clay pipe because they heard that in Kansas City the concrete pipe was unsatisfactory. But the residents in the far eastern part of the city have adopted the concrete pipe, hearing that the clay pipe might break.

BIG REALTY DEAL.

The largest real estate deal of the week in Long Beach was made yesterday when J. M. Parsell sold ninety feet of Ocean-avenue frontage at the foot of American avenue for $625 per front foot. Cash, with a small note, was paid for the property by F. L. Proctor of Hollywood. At one time elaborate plans for a ten-story apartment-house of class A construction were made for the lots, but the new owner has not stated what disposition he will make of the property.

TO INSPECT NELLIE.

Pursuant to an order given by the Federal inspectors of vessels plying between the mainland and Catalina Island, the steamer Nellie, which is the largest boat on the run with the exception of the Banning vessels, will be tested for seaworthiness and capacity at the municipal docks Monday morning.

Twenty tons of sand have been placed in sacks and these will be put aboard the Nellie in such a place as to put a severe strain on the vessel. Capt. A. C. Malone, owner of the vessel, says he welcomes the test. He says the order for the test was made because of a protest by certain citizens of Avalon, who object to any other, but Banning boats running to the island.

PEACH GROWERS ARE ORGANIZED.

STEERING COMMITTEE IS NAMED TO HOLD MEETINGS NEAR FRESNO.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

FRESNO, Aug. 28.—Following the organization of the California Peach Growers' Association here this afternoon, the steering committee was directed to hold meetings during the week throughout the San Joaquin Valley to secure subscriptions. Pledges of $250,000 must be made to perfect the association.

The organization is patterned after the Associated Raisin Company, a million-dollar cooperative marketing organization of raisin-grape growers.

Convention Hall, the scene of today's meeting which began at 2 o'clock this afternoon, was crowded with ranchers, orchardists, packers, bankers and business men. Pledges for about one-third of the capital stock with which to begin business immediately were obtained.

The movement is the result of demoralization of the peach industry of the State because of large crops and lack of markets. A recent survey shows that three counties of California, Fresno, Tulare and Kings have a majority of the peach orchard acreage of the State, having in all 3,769,505 acres of peach trees in bearing. This is more than 50 per cent. of the total peach acreage of the State, according to the most recent 1915 report of the State Board of Agriculture.

In addition to the capital stock subscriptions peach growers are pledging their production to the new cooperative company, and the result is expected to be an advance to the producer of from two cents a pound, which he is receiving this season, to upwards of five cents. The two-cent figure does not pay for picking, growers assert.

WIFE FINDS HIM DEAD IN BED. CAREER AS OPERA AND FILM STAR.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

GLENDALE, Aug. 28.—William Herman West, one of the best known men of the San Fernando Valley, passed away at his home at No. 1427 Hawthorne street, this morning. His death was unexpected and it is believed the cause was hemorrhage of the brain. His wife found him dead in bed.

Mr. West was born in Newport, R. I., in 1858. He began his career on the stage when he was 20 years old and he has been actively engaged in that profession since. He has endeared himself to many through his successful and brilliant career.

Mr. West was formerly one of the best known leading baritones of this country and he sang in leading parts with a number of the standard opera companies of America and he was featured with the old Tivoli Opera Company of San Francisco.

For the last four years, since he has been in Southern California, Mr. West has been playing character roles with the Kalem Motion Picture Company. In the capacity of a film star he has become well-known all over the United States and thousands of persons enjoyed his acting.

Mr. West was a charter member of the Glendale B.P.O.E., No. 1289, and was the first Esteemed Leading Knight of that well-known organization and just last year he was the Exalted Ruler.

The funeral services will be held Monday at the Elks Hall under the auspices of the Christian Science Church, at 2 o'clock. The body will lie in state from Monday morning until time for the services.

CLAREMONT SCHOOL FOR BOYS

A Home School for 25 recommended boys, 12 to 18 years old; sixth grade to college entrance.

Not Military. We believe that a boy should learn good principles and habits not as the special qualities of a soldier, but as the virtues of a gentleman and a citizen. It is a significant fact that the Boy Scout movement, though organized by a Major-General is entirely non-military. General Baden-Powell knew what military discipline can do and what it cannot do. It does not reach the heart of the boy problem.

The Vital Point of a boy's education consists in his learning to love the right things. Not what he is made to do but what he learns to like determines his character.

To Arouse Enthusiasm for the best things in life is the purpose of this school; enthusiasm for a clean, strong and perfect body; an enthusiastic devotion to the simple and gentlemanly virtues of truth, courage, fairness and courtesy; and a keen interest in some of the best things in literature and the arts and sciences.

Very Small Classes and individual attention are possible because of the small numbers and the competent group of college-trained instructors.

Thorough Preparation for all colleges, especially Yale and Pomona. Yale entrance examinations were given at the school in June.

BOY IS CRUSHED BY HEAVY AUTO.

COASTS ON TOY CAR INTO BIG TAXICAB—INJURIES MAY BE FATAL.

While driving his home-made box-automobile in Beaudry avenue, near Temple street, last night, Peri Allman, the 13-year-old son of E. D. Allman, No. 1122 Colton street, was run over by a heavy touring car and so severely hurt that physicians at the Receiving Hospital say he has slight chance of recovery. His chest was crushed in and his jaw doubly fractured. Physicians said he was probably injured internally.

The little boy was on his way from his aunt's house and was coasting down the slight grade at the point where the accident occurred. It was dark and the big machine, a taxicab, passed over him as he turned slightly to the left.

W. J. Fowler, No. 6732 Sunset boulevard, owner and driver of the taxicab, told the police last night he did not discover he had run over the boy until he had driven a block beyond. He said he thought it was a small fence sometimes put up to keep motor cars off fresh asphalt. A passing motorcyclist, seeing the accident, dashed after the disappearing automobile and brought Fowler back. The driver hurried the boy to the Receiving Hospital.

Peri Allman is the youngest of seven brothers. His mother hurried to the Receiving Hospital when told of the accident.

Miss Zena Lehr, a motion-picture actress, was in Fowler's machine at the time and became hysterical at the hospital.

SECOND ROBBERY TO "GET EVEN."

BANDIT OVERLOOKS A JITNEY DRIVER'S COIN; TRIES AGAIN; FAILS.

Last Thursday night W. S. Smith, an energetic jitney-bus driver, was held up by a similarly energetic bandit on Evergreen avenue near Brooklyn avenue. The bandit succeeded in taking from the driver 30 cents, and thought he had made a haul.

Great was the robber's chagrin the next day when he read in the newspapers that he had overlooked a $5 gold piece, hidden in a vest pocket of his victim. After considering the matter carefully for two days the bandit felt his honor was at stake.

Mr. Smith was preparing to start out on his regular run yesterday evening when the bandit called him on the telephone.

"I see by the papers I missed something," Mr. Smith heard the thief say. "Well, I am going to hold you up again tonight and at the same place. And if you don't come through this time you will get yours."

Mr. Smith decided it were far better he should go to a motion-picture show than make his regular run.

But H. L. Kimmett, a second jitney driver, living at No. 1026 Hillvale avenue, makes the same route. He was not warned. In fact, he had plenty of nerve.

At the same spot and at the same time Mr. Kimmett was held up by the supposed same bandit. The robber got $8, and yet the joke is still on him, this time to a greater degree.

Mr. Kimmett still has a $10 gold piece that the bandit overlooked on his second attempt.

JAPANESE DINE WITH OFFICIALS.

MAYOR AND OTHERS GUESTS AT AN ELABORATE AFFAIR. ODD CABARET.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenji Nagatani will return to Japan in a few days. This was the occasion last night for one of the most notable banquets ever given in the Japanese colony. It is the custom of the Japanese to give a banquet whenever any of the Nipponese are about to return to their native land.

The affair last night included Mayor Sebastian and his summer cabinet as guests. Police Chief Snively, Fire Chief Eley, Secretary MacWilliams and Secretary Claybaugh accompanied the Mayor to the banquet hall at No. 105 North San Pedro street, at the Cafe Ichi Fuji.

Among others present were newspaper men, ex-Mayor McAleer, Col. Henry Laub, Ed Maier, Perry Weidner and several hundred Japanese.

Mayor Sebastian and others made speeches, and a Japanese cabaret was given during the service of the banquet. The cuisine consisted of native Japanese viands.

WOMAN SHOOTS AT A "PEEPING TOM."

LEAD MISSES FURTIVE LOOKER, BUT QUIETS FEARS OF NEIGHBORHOOD.

After an entire neighborhood had been disturbed by the activity of a "peeping Tom," and several calls to the police had failed to stop his appearance at various windows, Miss Eugenia Flannigan, who hs apartments at No. 1412 Cobert place, fired a revolver at the prowler late last night and stopped the trouble.

Miss Flannigan declared she saw a face at the window, secured her revolver without undue commotion and shot point blank. The face vanished, but a jagged hole was left in the window pane. The police found no trace of the man.

PERSONALS

Dr. and Mrs. W. N. Wilson, of St. Albany, W. Va., are stopping at the Clark.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Pelletier, and Mr. and Mrs. Girard, of Montreal, Can., are at the Alexandria.

George E. Potter, the well-known golf player of Santa Barbara, is at the Angelus for a few days.

Samuel Orkin, of Boston, is at the Alexandria. Mr. Orkin brings with him his submarine invention that he will probably demonstrate at Los Angeles Harbor in the near future.

Mr. and Mrs. William Woodhead of San Francisco are at the Van Nuys. Mr. Woodhead is the publisher of the Sunset Magazine. He and Mrs. Woodhead motored south for a short visit with friends in Southern California.

Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Armstrong and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Bell, of Philadelphia, arrived at the Van Nuys yesterday afternoon, having motored from their Pennsylvania home. The party, while greatly fatigued, were enthusiastic over the beautiful scenery they encountered on their trip here.

Nathan Frank, an attorney and financier of St. Louis, Mo., is at the Alexandria. Mr. Frank is a connoisseur of fashion and takes great delight in well-dressed men and women. "I wondered who wore all the wonderful gowns I saw in New York and Chicago while there last month," Mr. Frank said yesterday. "I know now. It is the women of Los Angeles. Every woman here is well-dressed in the latest fashion."

Col. Allen T. Bird, veteran editor of the Oasis of Nogales, Ariz., and G.A.R. leader, is spending a few days with his son, Marshall N. Bird, at Huntington Park. He has been editor of the weekly publication for twenty-two years. He was editor of the San Bernardino Daily Index in 1888. In 1887 he was elected Junior Vice-Department Commander of the Department of California, G.A.R., at a meeting in Los Angeles. Col. Bird was lately in San Francisco on business for the Nogales Chamber of Commerce, of which he is vice-president.

STRANGER'S BLOW MAY PROVE FATAL.

MAN'S SKULL FRACTURED WHEN HE IS KNOCKED DOWN ON STREET.

Otto Hauenstein, 41 years old, of No. 826 East Slauson avenue, was knocked down by a strange man at First and Main streets last night. As he fell, his head struck the sidewalk and his skull was fractured. The man who struck him, apparently without provocation, escaped. Mr. Hauenstein will probably die.

ILL; TAKES POISON.

Woman Desponds when Told Trouble is Incurable; Life Probably Saved by Stomach Pump.

Despondent because of successive operations, which seemed to do her no good, Mrs. Blanche Gearhardy, 29 years old, became hysterical last night at her home, No. 237 East Thirtieth street, and swallowed poison. Her husband, who works at night, was away at the time. M. L. Wing, who lives at No. 241 East Thirtieth street, heard the woman's screams and rushed to her assistance. He hurried Mrs. Gearhardy to the Receiving Hospital in his own automobile. A successful use of the stomach pump probably saved her life.

Mr. Gearhardy was summoned from his work. He said his wife was told yesterday by her physician that there was no cure for her trouble.

BANKRUPTCY CASES.

Joe Chutuk, a sewer foreman of this city, filed a petition in bankruptcy yesterday. His debts are stated as $30,423.08, of which $29,402.28 are preferred, and his assets total $277.50, of which $128 is exempt.

Bert Noble of Huntington Beach filed a similar petition. His liabilities are scheduled at $10,452.10 and his assets at $4450.

LABORER STABBED.

Jesus Solis, 29 years old, a Mexican laborer, was stabbed fifteen times by another Mexican, as yet unidentified by the police, in a fight last night at Ducommon street, near Alameda street. Physicians at the Receiving Hospital said last night he had a small chance of recovery.

NEGRO GUILTY, HE BELIEVES.

Final Exoneration of Frank Matter of Time.

Georgia ex-Governor Sees Vindication Ahead.

Intends to Take Hand in State Politics.

Ex-Gov. John M. Slaton of Georgia, a man who had the courage of his convictions when the fate of Leo Frank, found guilty by a jury of the murder of little Mary Phagan, was placed in his hands, commuting the death sentence to life imprisonment despite a mighty protest of the majority of the citizens of his State, fully expects time to reverse sentiment in this famous case. He discussed the subject candidly and emphatically last night and put some phases of it in a new light.

Trembling with emotion, his large blue eyes dimmed at times with tears, the man who sprang into the limelight overnight, speaking with a vehemence that dispelled any suspicion of insincerity, declared he would have been a veritable coward to have refused to do his duty, and said: "The three millions of souls in Georgia will approve my action when they have had opportunity to study the case from every angle. They will see that I am right."

But he was not influenced in the slightest degree by the voluminous petitions sent to him from nearly every State, that the urgent appeals of men of finance in Frank's behalf were given no more consideration than those received from the poorer classes of Georgia who demanded that the prisoner pay the death penalty, the Governor declared with emphasis.

SPENDS HIS OWN MONEY.

"I have been accused of capitulating to the overwhelming influence of public sentiment," he said, "of reversing the judgment of the courts, and many other violations of my oath, but no man in Georgia who knows John Slaton believes the charges, and I am proud to say that, amid all of the censure I have received, there has not been even an insinuation that I profited financially as a result of my action.

"My record of seventeen years in public life, Speaker of the House, President of the Senate and Governor for two terms, precluded the possibility of such a taint. I am a wealthy man, my family is rich, and I am one of the few men of the country who have been elected to office without accepting funds from any outside source in my campaigns. Every penny spent in the interest of my candidacy came out of either my own pocket or from members of my own family. As a result I have never been under obligations to anyone. No corporation or clique has ever been able to control me.

"I tell this to controvert any idea that I was influenced by anything other than my desire to do my duty when I commuted Frank's sentence. The matter was put up to me just a few days before I was to surrender my office. If I had been a coward I could have granted a reprieve to the condemned man and left the responsibility with my successor. He is an old man, nearly three score and ten, and with my duty so plain I would have been both a moral and physical coward to have shirked it.

"I reviewed all of the testimony in the case so thoroughly that I doubt

FOR BETTER NAVY.

National Legislative Needs and Plans for Efficiency to be Note of Luncheon.

For the discussion of national legislative needs for attaining efficiency for the navy, and to arouse interest in its work through Southern California, the California Committee of the Navy League of the United States will hold a luncheon Tuesday, September 7, at the Hotel Clark.

Hon. John Barrett, director of the Pan-American Union, and the Governor have been invited to speak. J. C. Drake is chairman of arrangements and Stoddard Jess, H. W. O'Melveny and E. L. Doheny are interested in the plans for the luncheon.

This is the first meeting in four years in Los Angeles by the league, which was established in 1900. The purpose of the league is to disseminate information as to defensive needs of the United States and conduct educational campaigns in the interest of legislation by Congress for the strengthening of the navy.

BOYS' DAY AT A CONVENTION.

Brotherhood Conference Gets News from the Juniors.

Lads are Guests of Honor at Noonday Banquet.

National Meeting to Close Publicly Tonight.

Boys and their spiritual affairs held the center of attention yesterday at the national convention of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew. The morning session was devoted to the work of the junior department of the brotherhood, followed with a banquet especially for boys at noon in the dining-room of the Bible Institute.

The boys' dinner, one of the unique features of the convention programme, was arranged by Roscoe P. Guin, director of boys' work in St. Matthias Church. This church has the largest junior brotherhood of any of the Episcopal churches of the city.

At the banquet the 150 boys present were not disturbed in their eating by long speeches or any other diverting events. After the close of the morning meeting the lads lost no time in reaching the dining-room. At the tables they gave evidence of being in full possession of their proverbial appetites. Merton A. Albee, director of the junior chapter of Christ Church in Redondo Beach, was toastmaster.

At the morning conference the general subject of "The Junior Recruit" was discussed. The principal speakers were boys: Robert Lehman of Chicago, Kenneth Collins of Spokane and Ernest Parks of Long Beach. Each of the speakers had prepared his speech carefully and they made a favorable impression on their hearers, which included both boys and men.

BOY SPEAKER.

Speaking on "The Junior Recruit—His Company," Robert said in part:

"At this time when war and militarism seem to reign on practically every continent of the earth, it may seem strange that a topic such as 'The Junior Recruit' should be chosen for discussion at a meeting of this kind. The word 'recruit' brings to mind the awful war. The sub-topics, 'His Company,' 'His Training' and 'His Captain,' also bring forcibly to mind the great conflict among the powers on the other side of the water. But I believe that a better subject could not have been selected for our meeting.

"Christ, our Captain, was a man of peace and also a man of war. He has ever warred against sin and the devil. He fights for the right. Therefore his followers constitute an army. The church is forever at war with darkness.

"The Brotherhood of St. Andrew is a part of the great army of the church and a most important part. The junior recruit as well as the senior, has his important work to do in the advance guard of our army, the church.

"I believe that the high ideal of the

WILL CLEARS MYSTERY OF A TRAGIC CANVAS.

California Masterpiece, Fraught with Disappointments of Political Intrigue, Disclosed in a Loft After Oblivion that Baffled Art World—Secretly Bought by Late David Hewes, Multi-millionaire.

BY BONNIE GLESSNER.

CALIFORNIA'S tragic masterpiece is rediscovered. Another chapter of disappointment is added to the strange story of "The Driving of the Last Spike," by the late Thomas Hill.

In all the State's romantic history is nothing more bizarre than events which cluster about the crowning achievement of this western painter. Political intrigue, fame, oblivion, highest hopes and heart-break have gathered about the canvas. But the strangest part of the story emerged with the picture only a few days ago from a musty loft in San Francisco, after a disappearance that baffled the artists of the world.

Enriched with the heart-blood of its creator the painting hung fifteen years in the Golden Gate Park Museum, San Francisco, an emblem of bitter disappointment.

In November, 1913, the Hill paintings were publicly sold by order of the court. An anonymous bidder secured not only the famous "Last Spike," but the entire lot of 200 paintings and sketches. Then the noted collection, of rare value, dropped completely from sight. Artists sought it vainly and watched the studios of notable collectors without avail. It seemed incredible.

Then, a few days ago, the will of the late David Hewes of Orange, who died last month, was probated and the secret was out. The aged Southern California multimillionaire was the mysterious purchaser of the collection.

With the reading of Mr. Hewes's will the last record of perverse fate was added to the story of the "Last Spike." Close friends of Mr. Hewes knew he intended to place this picture in a gallery, where it properly belonged, and from which it was debarred by political intrigue in 1878. But the messenger from beyond came unheralded and the only will Mr. Hewes left was one made years ago, long before the paintings came into his keeping. Thus the "Last Spike" seems doomed to go under the hammer again.

ARTIST'S GREAT SORROW.

Conceived to suit the whim of one of the early Governors of California, altered many times to meet political contingencies, and finally repudiated by those who should have prized it most, this painting, 7x12 feet in size, was only a source of sorrow to Thomas Hill, who went into debt to the extent of $10,000 to complete the work and whose health was shattered when at last his masterpiece was absolutely ignored by those on whom he had counted for aid.

In the final settlement of the estate left by Thomas Hill, who died in June, 1908, the remaining paintings, valued at $75,000, were disposed of at public auction. After the bids were all entered and each picture sold, Mr. Hewes, through an agent, offered the administrator 40 per cent. more than the individual bids aggregated and this offer was accepted by the court.

It was with great pleasure that the heirs learned that David Hewes, who had been a close friend of Thomas Hill, had purchased the collection, and when they were advised that this purchase had been made with the understandng that no one should know the name of the owner until he was ready to place the collection in a suitable gallery, all readily agreed to keep the secret, glad in the knowledge that at last the "spike picture" was to receive the honor due it.

Thus while speculation was rife as to who the purchaser was, only the heirs and a few close friends of Mr. Hewes knew the entire collection was stored in one of the lofts in the David Hewes building at Sixth and Market streets, San Francisco, pending the time when it would be given to some prominent gallery.

Anita M. Baldwin, whose father, the late "Lucky" Baldwin, had been one of the patrons of Thomas Hill in the early days of San Francisco, and Wickham Havens of Oakland are among those whose galleries were watched by those who could not believe so important a collection of paintings could disappear so completely. But, because Mr. Hewes made the purchase through a close friend and paid $1000 more than he bid to secure the collection, the paintings passed quietly into his possession and, although he never saw the pictures after his purchase of them, he talked many times of the honor he wished to pay his old-time friend, whom he felt had not received justice.

PURCHASER'S PART.

In many ways the life of David Hewes was strangely linked with that of many who were connected with the painting of the "Last Spike." The picture shows the notable gathering at Promontory Point, where the last

SHUN UNTIDY HOME DRESS!

Judge Cautions Wives and Gives Hints Against Divorce.

Judge W. H. Thomas of Santa Ana, who is sitting in the local courts, dropped a few observations yesterday anent the divorce evil.

He would debar the "Mother Hubbard" as an article of attire in the home after marriage.

A young man calling on a young girl with the view of matrimony never sees "the light of his eyes" in a Mother Hubbard. Why should she, as his wife, brave his displeasure by donning it after the honeymoon is over?

The rich seek divorces and shine in the public press. Poorer persons ape the rich.

Years ago a divorcee was looked at askance; now she is popular.

A marriage license should not be granted on the day it is asked for. A suitable interval may show that one of the parties is ineligible and save an unhappy marriage.

Tomorrow Judge Monroe will call fifty-six alimony cases; on Tuesday he has twenty divorces set; Wednesday, twenty; Thursday, nineteen, and Friday, twenty-one, a total of eighty for the week.

BLAMES DRIVER FOR FATALITY.

MANSLAUGHTER CHARGE TO BE ISSUED SAYS OFFICIAL.

San Bernardino Girl Dies of Injuries and Another of Wrecked Joy-ride Party is in Precarious State—Woman Says All Drank and She Sat on Chauffeur's Lap.

Following the death early yesterday morning of Miss Esther Richmond, 20 years old, of No. 197 G street, San Bernardino, one of the victims of the automobile wreck at Wilshire boulevard and La Brea street, Deputy District Attorney Woolwine ordered a complaint issued against K. E. Ahlberg, the chauffeur, charging him with involuntary manslaughter. He is in the City Jail without bail. The complaint will be issued Monday, the police were informed.

Miss Richmond did not regain consciousness, having reaceived a fracture of the skull and internal injuries. Friends came from San Bernardino, but the young woman died before they arrived. The body will be taken to her home for burial.

Miss Louise Murray, also of San Bernardino, was able to leave the Receiving Hospital shortly before noon yesterday. She was not seriously injured though she was lacerated about the face and body.

George Brown was removed to the County Hospital after emergency treatment at the Receiving Hospital. It was stated by the surgeons that the man is in a precarious condition, but there is a chance for his recovery.

Miss Murray made a remarkable statement to the police and upon her story Lieut. Johnson decided to prosecute the chauffeur. The young woman said the members of the joy-ride party had partaken freely of intoxicating beverages and all were in a more or less mellow mood when they started from the beach to this city.

She said she sat in the front seat with the chauffeur and a few minutes before the accident she sat on his lap. With her in that position she declared, Ahlberg was driving the car at high speed when it ran into a pile of sand at the side of the road.

Lieut. Johnson declared the man may also be prosecuted on a charge of driving an automobile while intoxicated.

PARISH PICNIC.

Enjoyable Outing is Held at Selig Park by Members of the St. Mary's Catholic Church.

Music, sports and a programme of delights marked the first annual picnic yesterday at Selig Park of parishioners of St. Mary's Catholic Church of Boyle Heights. About 1000 attended.

Among singers who took part in the programme were Miss Marie Ganser, Mrs. Samuel Robinson, Mrs. V. L. Boesch, Miss Edna Sheperd, Miss Helen Walsh and Miss Helen Bender.

Participating in the picnic were members of the Holy Names Society, Ladies' Altar Society, Young Men's Society, Young Ladies' Sodality and the children's societies of the Holy Angels and St. Aloysius.

STEAL BATH AND MEAL.

Burglars, Apparently Grateful for Luxuries, Take Nothing Else from City Attorney's Home.

Burglars, who entered the home of City Attorney Stephens, No. 277 South Coronado street, while the family was out of the city, were apparently so grateful for the opportunity of taking a bath and eating a meal from a well-stocked cupboard that they did not loot the residence.

When Mr. Stephens returned Friday night he found the back door open. An investigation showed that the intruders had merely taken a bath and then cooked a meal on the kitchen stove.

"They may have taken some clothing, but I am not sure of it," Mr. Stephens told the police yesterday.

The house of George Burton, an attorney, next door, also was entered, probably by the same burglars, but they did not steal anything.

PROPOSES AERO COAST PATROL.

To be Combined with System of Wireless Telephones.

Hammond's Scheme for Quick Addition to Defenses.

Has Important Bearing upon Local Air Corps Plan.

A definite plan for immediate coast defense through the employment of radio stations and aeroplanes for the complete patrol of the Pacific and Atlantic coasts, to obviate a surprise attack at any point, is now under consideration by the Aero Club of America for consideration and development by the War Department. It contemplates the establishment of twelve such stations on the Pacific Coast, eight of them to be on the California shore line.

The argument for these, as prepared by John Hays Hammond, Jr., is that it is the quickest method to reinforce present forces, and that it can be done at a comparatively small expense. This is in line with the aerial patrol for the California coast suggested a year or so ago by California pilots, and particularly with the initiative taken by the Aeronautical Society of California for the organization of an aeronautical squadron of the National Guard of California in Los Angeles.

Mr. Hammond, who went into the plan thoroughly, urges the combined use of the aeroplane of the scouting type and the wireless telephone as the most practical next step in coast defense. He proposes forty-four zones, each with a diameter of 100 miles, equipped with aeroplanes, portable hangars and wireless masts about ninety feet high, with portable wireless receiving outfits. He divides the zones along the Coast States, as follows: Florida, nine zones; California, eight zones; Texas, Louisiana, South Carolina and Maine, three zones each; Oregon, Washington, North Carolina and Virginia, two zones each; Mississippi, Alabama, Georgia, New Jersey, Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Long Island, one zone each.

LIKE CITY POLICE.

By placing the wireless station in a central position in each zone a transmission of sixty miles under daylight conditions would keep the patrol in touch with the receiver. Under the plan developed this would give Washington headquarters a patrol similar to a city police system in which the aviators would "ring in" by wireless. Mr. Hammond recommends the use of the Chaffee system of wireless telephony, as it would obviate the need of experts in reporting or receiving.

"It would be a matter of years, not months," says Mr. Hammond in his report, just received in Los Angeles by aviation experts, "before we could increase our military organization to a point where it would equal the standard of our possible enemy. Even with all the money which this nation has available, time is the thing which counts in the first phases of modern war. In view of the fact that our power will be comparatively limited during the next few years, even with the most energetic work in strengthening our situation, it is essential that we exert every effort in the devising of methods for employing what strength we have in the most efficient way.

"It is my belief that by applying radio systems to aeroplanes and the establishment of aero-scouting districts or areas along our seaboard, we can provide for our country an invaluable unit of defense. It must be borne in mind that our coast line is so extensive and our navy at present of such small size and comparatively slow speed that it is essential for us to develop scouting facilities of extraordinary efficiency. With a scout system such as I will outline, our land forces could co-operate with our fleet in preventing landing operations on the part of an enemy. Aerial information would be the only sort by which the intent of the enemy's maneuvers and the ultimate objective could be ascertained. And, having this

GOOD FOR YOU, GOV. WALSH!

Chief Executive of the Bay State Appreciates Los Angeles.

Upon his return home recently from a visit to the California expositions and a brief stay in this city, Gov. Walsh of Massachusetts paid his respects to us as follows in the course of an interview in a Boston newspaper:

And, in my opinion, Los Angeles is one of the few institutions of this world which in every way is up to the specifications. Los Angeles possesses more of the things which please and attract than any other city I have seen. I was reminded, at almost my first glimpse of Los Angeles, of that spotless town of the newspaper advertisements of ten or a dozen years ago. On all sides the city shines like new. It is a prosperous community, still growing at a tremendous pace.

The suburbs—I recall Pasadena particularly—are gems set around the larger jewel. Only fifteen miles or so distant is the ocean, with numerous shore resorts. Surrounded on all sides by an agricultural country, rich with semi-tropical vegetation, Los Angeles is, indeed, the City Beautiful. Of its far-famed climate I can only say that it justifies the famous catch line of "The Danites," "the glorious climate of California."

SEES PROSPERITY FOR THE FARMER.

BIG MAKER OF AGRICULTURAD MACHINERY TELLS OF FINE CROPS.

Visiting Los Angeles as their initial stop before proceeding to each of the expositions on the Pacific Coast are Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Stephens of Moline, Ill. They are guests at the Alexandria and expect to remain in this city until Wednesday.

Mr. Stephens is president of the Moline Plow Company, the second largest agricultural implement plant in the world. This concern has several plants throughout the Middle West, and because of the nature of its business, it keeps in the closest touch with all agricultural districts of the United States.

"We will have the greatest corn crop this year in our entire history," said Mr. Stephens yesterday. "There are some sections where the reports are not so encouraging, but taken as a whole, the corn crop of 1915 will break all records. The wheat crop, too, has been enormous, and the crops generally are such that they ought to put the farmers in very comfortable condition.

"Comparatively small amounts of new farming machinery were purchased by the farmers the past year; but our own firm sold more repairs for farming machinery during the past season than in any former two years of its existence. I look for a great increase in buying with the opening of the next farming season, and I believe that with a change of administration, a great wave of prosperity will roll over this country."

TO INVESTIGATE FIRE.

Deputy District Attorney Keetch announced yesterday that the county grand jury will begin an investigation tomorrow of the circumstances surrounding the alleged incendiary fire near First and Clarence streets in Boyle Heights night before last. The Russian Molokan Church and several small buildings were destroyed, with a loss of about $5000.

FINE SITE FOR ORPHANS' HOME.

Masons' Wards to Quit Big House Markham Built.

And Learn Farming on Spot of Unusual Beauty.

Bungalows on Place to Cost a Hundred Thousand.

Fifty-two acres, lying two miles southeast of Covina, were bought from William Dibble, and seventeen adjoining acres from Rev. S. W. Gage last week and buildings of the California Masonic Orphans' Home will be erected at once on the sites.

The announcement was made yesterday by the board of trustees of the institution, that is now situated on San Gabriel boulevard, near Alhambra. The orphanage has been maintained for some time in the large building erected years ago by the late Ex-Gov. Markham for hotel purposes, and while the property is very desirable for some purposes, it has been determined that the boys and girls, who are the charges of the Masonic fraternity, need more room in which to practice farming and market gardening, and it is also the belief that buildings can be erected that will be more suitable than the one which was built for a hostelry.

The sixty or seventy children will enter the Charter Oak school, as the property is in that district. This necessitates some quick work of preparation on the part of the school trustees, but the board says that all will be efficiently taken care of. The children who have graduated from grammar school will attend the Covina Union High School.

The price paid for the land is understood to be $30,000, and the buildings will cost not less than $100,000. The plan is to put temporary buildings this fall, and after the rains are over, begin the erection of permanent bungalows. No large structures will be reared, it is understood. It is estimated that over fifty buildings will be needed to take care of the children, the teachers and general staff of the home.

The location is one of the most beautiful in that valley, with level acreage, rolling hills and lomas, small valleys and canyons, all overlooking the great 13,000-acre citrus fruit tract of the upper San Gabriel Valley. The site was selected after the committee had looked at many others offered throughout the State. It was a location especially favored by the committee because it is close to the electric car line, and is adaptable to general farming.

The building and grounds of the former home on San Gabriel avenue have been sold to a corporation, and will house a military academy.

The trustees in charge of the orphanage home are W. S. Wells, Oakland; Ed B. Spencer, Union League Club, Los Angeles; Elmer E. Stone, San Francisco (secretary;) Motley H. Flint, Los Angeles; Thomas Flint, Hollister. The endowment committee is as follows: Motley H. Flint, S. E. Burt, James H. McLafferty, Oakland; George M. Perine, San Francisco; Benjamin B. Tuttle, Davis; Charles W. Nutting, Edna Mills.

Tragic Hard Luck.

FLAMES BLAST LIFE CRAVING.

STUNNING BLOW TO BROKER-FARMER'S VENTURE.

Wakes up from Stupor as if Chloroformed; Farmhouse and Barn Destroyed by Fire—Works Havoc with His Long-Cherished Ambition.

His long-cherished ambition to be a practical farmer blasted by a stunning misfortune, E. M. Whilton, for many years a leading hotel broker of Los Angeles, has returned from the Coachella Valley, where he went several months ago with the intention of engaging in stock raising and ranching, and is again in the real estate business. Mr. Whilton's second change of occupation is the enforced result of a disastrous and mysterious fire which destroyed the good home he had built for himself and family near Salton Station. The calamity is a prize hard-luck story in real life.

Mr. Whilton's "bug" about farming had been a subject for "joshing" among his personal friends for years. His success in his calling was also so well known that probably nine out of every ten men to whom Mr. Whilton confided his plans firmly believed that the whole thing was a joke.

E. M. Whilton,

Victim of an extraordinary fire in the Coachella Valley, who laughs in the face of adversity and declares he's going to be a farmer yet.

In June Mr. Whilton closed his office in the Story Building and disappeared from Los Angeles. Only a few friends knew of his whereabouts, but the news soon spread to others. Then they laughed. The prediction was freely made that the ambitious broker-farmer would be back in Los Angeles renting hotels and apartments long before fall. This prophecy, tragically enough, has been fulfilled to the very letter, but it has been through no fault of Mr. Whilton's.

About 3 o'clock one morning two weeks ago Mr. Whilton awoke from a stupor which, he says, may have been the effect of complete exhaustion, but which seemed more like the stupefying influence of a drug, to find the new house into which he had the day before moved all his furniture and other possessions almost tumbling in flames over his head. Fully 300 feet away his brand-new barn was blazing to the skies. Coachella Valley people generally are said to express the belief that the fire could have been of no other than incendiary origin.

The house had been built by Mr. Whilton for a permanent home. Here his wife and two children, then staying at Ocean Park, were to have joined him in October. Nothing was saved, two mules with which the owner had driven to the land eight weeks before being lost along with everything else, one having to be shot and the other dying from the flames it had inhaled. Nothing was insured, although he had the day before written his wife to secure policies covering buildings and contents.

Frank W. Brown and Fred Brown, the carpenters who had built Mr. Whilton's house, and his nearest neighbors, came running a half mile across the sand to the scene, both arriving almost simultaneously with the owner's strange awakening. Both declare they saw no one running away from the fire.

The strangest circumstance outside of Mr. Whilton's own sleepy stupor while the whole house was burning above him and under him, was the fact that the barn should have been on fire at the same time. The wind, such as there was, declares Mr. Whilton, was at right angles to a line between the house and barn, hence the blowing of sparks from either one to the other, especially considering the distance between them, seemed impossible.

Mr. Whilton says that the disaster will practically mean that he will have to start all over again.

"No one ever did believe I was serious about that farming proposition," he said yesterday. "The height of my ambition for twenty years has been to be a real farmer with a successful farmer's independence.

"It took about all the money I had saved since to build that house and barn, to sink a good well and to clear ninety acres for crops. I am going to carry out my plans yet, if I have to live in a board shack to do it."

Mr. Whilton's eyes twinkled.

"One thing is sure," he added, whimsically. "They can't say I got tired of the game and set the place on fire to get the insurance. I've got an A No. 1 alibi on that point."

BURGLARS SAW PADLOCK.

Big Haul Made at Wholesale House Where Mexican Thief was Recently Killed—Another Burglary.

Merchandise valued at $500 was stolen early yesterday morning from the wholesale house of E. E. Tussing & Co., No. 211 Aliso street, burglars making an entrance after sawing through a heavy padlock on the front door. The police believe that the robbers carried the loot away in an automobile or some other vehicle.

Several months ago Patrolman Barnett shot and killed a Mexican trying to enter the same store.

Another rich haul was made by burglars who broke into the tailor shop of J. Jones, No. 908 West Eighth street, during Friday night. He reported to the police that thirteen suits of clothes and 240 yards of broadcloth were stolen, the total valuation being estimated at $500.

Believes Negro Guilty.

whether there is a man in Georgia who knows more about it. The evidence was not sufficient to warrant the taking of Frank's life. I was satisfied that circumstances were extenuating and that there was a strong probability that the murder was committed by that nigger.

"Following Frank's conviction new evidence was presented which has never been controverted and all of which points strongly toward the nigger as the guilty party. To have allowed Frank to hang when there was a reasonable doubt as to his guilt would have been an atrocity, and I would not have been fit to occupy the Governor's chair. I am satisfied that time will prove the nigger guilty and that Frank will be exonerated.

MAKES UP MIND.

"When the trial judge wrote me a letter and requested that I grant clemency to Frank because he said 'I doubt that he is guilty' I made up my mind. I have been a lawyer all of my life and have the highest respect for law and order. In fact, it is inherent with me. My reputation as Governor has been to uphold the law and never interfere with the judgment of the courts. I would not have done so in this case had not the trial judge recommended such action."

The ex-Governor said the widespread opinion that the people of Georgia have a natural aversion to the Jews is wrong. "My people bear no antipathy for them," he said. "The Jews are respected and treated with the greatest consideration. In the Frank case the defendant was looked upon by many Georgians, however, as a man of wealth who took advantage of his position to get a poor working girl in his clutches. It was a case of class distinction and not race hatred. You know the public in any State is always with the lowly. When a poor man is run down by a rich man's automobile and the former asks a jury to award him damages he seldom appeals in vain. It is the most natural thing on earth for the public to line up with the weak against the strong and that explains the attitude of my people to a large degree.

"Apart from this, however, I must say that the sense of chivalry had deep influence upon many Georgians. Our people regard so highly the purity of womanhood that when it is assailed or violated they rise with righteous indignation. I am satisfied that this impelled those who took such drastic action in the case."

DENOUNCES BLEASE.

The ex-Governor said he is unalterably opposed to mob rule and declared the rantings of former Gov. Blease of South Carolina, who a few days ago said in a public speech that the country will lose its independence when mobs have no say, are those of an insane man. He said Mr. Blease is a disgrace to the South and a detriment to civilization.

Accompanied by Mrs. Slaton, the ex-Governor is staying at the Alexandria. He does not know when he will leave Southern California, but plans to continue his vacation, the first he has had in seventeen years, for a month, maybe two months.

"It has been said that I dare not go back to my native State," he remarked. "Such a statement is absurd.. I love my people and I am sure that all of them will be my friends when they have had time to study the Frank case with calmness and deliberation. I am going back when I get rested and expect to take an active part in State politics. I fear that the Frank case will be injected into the next campaign for Governor, but before that time the people will have learned the truth and it will be a detriment to those who expect to make it a plank of their platform."

Man Who Vainly Tried to Commit Suicide Says He'll Use Razor Next Time He Tries.

The next time Percy Perry, proprietor of a poolroom at No. 718½ Traction street, wants to commit suicide he declares he will use a razor. "I knows a razzur will do the work. The New Coatings Bought before wool advanced—and, needless to say, NOT marked up.

For motoring, tweeds and heavy mixtures are the thing. For more formal occasions, afternoons and evenings, the new, rich fur, or "skin" weaves, are the most remarkable of all cloths, because of the fidelity with which furs are reproduced.

Caracul, sealette, Persian lamb—are so perfectly imitated as to deceive the very elect!

Besides these imitation furs, the maker has woven the same texture into stripes in a way and of a width that is truly beautiful. They are $2.50 to $5.50 a yard.

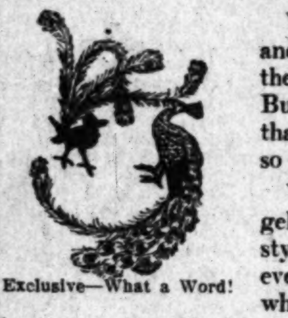
Soft Silk Waists

One reason they're so fashionable is because there are so many different charming styles. For instance, here is a waist of heavy, but very rich and soft soiree. The style is as simple as can be, but the color is that soft liquid lavender that one sometimes sees in a rare sunset. The sheen is wonderful and the effect indescribable. Yet the waist is only $5.

That's the point—only $5; $5 is exactly the price most women want to pay. So you'll find endless styles—Scotch plaids, French plaids, crepe de chine, soiree—practically every good weave, in almost every good style—at $5.

Exclusive Fashions Women's Suits



Exclusive—What a Word!

We already have the finest dresses and suits that the world has to offer, the most distinguished in character. But there are not many of a kind—that is partly the reason the stock is so fine.

We don't intend filling Los Angeles up with one style of suit or one style of dress. We shall see that every woman who buys from us, whether she pays $25 or $125, shall have something that characterizes her taste.

There are dozens of styles to be found nowhere else, and more coming to take the place, as fast as these are sold.

The Bien Jolie "Grecian Treco" Corsets $1.85

This is the new corset made by the "B. & J." Company to be sold at a very much higher price than this!

It is heavily enough boned for large women—even women who have thought Treco too light for them.

In this climate and this heat they come as a blessing. All sizes.

New Dress Goods

At Before-the-War Prices

Wool mounts week by week, in price—yet our prices hold like a rock, at the prices that prevailed before the war.

"Bringing its tale behind him."

50- to 56-inch suitings—the mixtures that, for the present, look as though they'd be the backbone of fashion this autumn, are $1 to $3 a yard.

They include cheviots, tweeds, and mannish worsteds.

Broadcloths at $1.50 and $2 are 52- to 56-inches wide. These hold unshaken, their established place for afternoon suits; and the lighter shades are being used for evening dresses—combined with Georgette crepe and furs!

54-inch Gabardine at $2 and $2.50 is one of the stand-bys of the season—there's nothing exciting about it, yet it will be more seen than many far more novel weaves.

"Dreams" of Hats $6.50, $8.50, up to $25

We've never been so ready in August. By far the greatest number of trimmed hats at $6.50, $8.50, $10 up to $25 that we've ever had, are being examined, tried on, admired, bought.

The untrimmed shapes are as various—there must be several hundred shapes—all different, all good, all right.

Hatter's plush is new; some are like sawed-off riding hats—wonderfully becoming! Midnight (Corbeau) blue is the shade—an illusive, melting blue seen through a soft fog—wonderful; beautiful; satisfying; fascinating because indefinite.

Black is the "color" at present—black and midnight blue; but there are other good colors—rich, dark shades. See them—talking about them makes you want to talk more about them—we haven't the space. See them. Look at the trimmings!

Fashionable Suits $10.75, $13.75, $15 and $16.50

It is natural that our suits at these prices should be right in cut and fabric and tailoring. Why shouldn't we have the best possible at these prices—when Los Angeles looks to us for the authentic in line and fabric?

We are as proud to do well in $10.75 suits, as to do well in those at higher prices.

Ribbons at 10c

A new line. 4 inches wide, in plain and moire taffeta, eight shades—for hair ribbons and sashes.

Those who want a fancy moire ribbon will find one with a corded edge, in all colors.

hauling from the orchard to the packing-house. The consumer would pay no more than he now pays for inferior fruit.

The package required for long eastern shipment would not be required for these near-by markets. Bulk packages containing, say, fifty pounds of well-graded fruit would fill the bill, and a good grade of fruit could be sold with profit to the producer to net him 50 cents per 100 pounds, equivalent to 25 cents a packed box after deducting all packing costs, and the trade could be supplied on the following basis:

Net cost of fifty pounds, 8-15 dozen, good oranges		$ .25
Cost of handling in packing-house	$ .05
Cost of package or container	.15

Cost of marketing and distributing by auto truck		.20

ANNUAL PAYROLL FIVE MILLIONS.

OTHER BIG LOCAL DISBURSEMENTS BY THE SOUTHERN PACIFIC.

Figures for the past fiscal year show 5000 persons on the payroll of the Southern Pacific in Los Angeles and a wage disbursement in excess of $4,500,000, according to a statement issued here yesterday by R. J. Clancy, assistant to General Manager Scott.

San Francisco, with over 5000 Southern Pacific employees, including the general officers of the company, had a payroll last year of approximately $5,000,000, according to Mr. Clancy. It is the only city on the Southern Pacific whose pay roll exceeds that of Los Angeles.

"A careful estimate," said Mr. Clancy, "shows that the Southern Pacific pays to California labor, and to California business men and producers for produce used in the conduct of its business, approximately $40,000,000 a year. All this is in addition to offering freight and passenger service comparable with that of any railroad in the country, multiplying and enlarging the attractiveness of California to the tourist and investor, thus enabling the people of the State to reap the full benefit of California's many natural endowments."

According to Mr. Clancy's estimate, 25,000 persons in Los Angeles are directly dependent on the Southern Pacific for their livelihood, while no less than $4,000,000 yearly is spent by them over the counters of our business houses.

Oakland, with a wage disbursement last year of nearly $4,500,000, followed close on the heels of Los Angeles, while Sacramento and Roseville, with their great shops, had combined pay rolls comparable with that of Oakland.

Outside of the great terminals and shop centers, Bakersfield is in a class by itself, with 860 employees last year and a pay roll of $1,000,000. Incidently, Bakersfield, surrounded as it is by a great and growing farming community, is rapidly increasing in importance as a division point.

Other division points with large pay rolls last year are: Dunsmuir, 630 employees and a disbursement of $750,000; Fresno and Tracy, with 500 employees each, and pay rolls of $400,000; Stockton and San Luis Obispo, 400 employees each, with pay rolls of $375,000, and San Jose, 360 employees and a pay roll of $335,000.

"Something of the part played by the Southern Pacific in the business, social and industrial life of California is shown by these figures," said Mr. Clancy.

AFFIDAVIT CONTRADICTED.

Federal Officers Learn More About Alleged Conspiracy and Impersonation Case.

Mrs. Frances Bishop of Long Beach, whose name has been mentioned in connection with the alleged attempt of Sol Alexander to secure an affidavit from Mrs. Mary T. Eeles called on First Assistant United States District Attorney Gallaher yesterday. She introduced herself with the assertion that she is a medium and the representative of the Lord.

Alexander and Paul M. Reidy are under indictment on a conspiracy charge. The former is said to have represented himself to be a Federal officer and later to have made an effort to get Mrs. Eeles to make oath to a statement absolving him from the charge.

Mrs. Eeles, who went to the United States District Attorney's office with Mrs. Bishop yesterday, said she had never made a statement that Sam Brown had induced her to say that Alexander had impersonated an officer, this being in direct opposition to an affidavit she signed a few days ago.

Mrs. Bishop admitted that she told Alexander that Mrs. Eeles ought to have her money returned to her; that John Betts, a real estate man, also on Ocean avenue, had made a similar statement and that Paul M. Reidy had joined the others in the view that Alexander ought to do something for Mrs. Eeles.

One of the strings to the Alexander offer to pay Mrs. Eeles $3000, it is stated, was that the pending indictment against him should be dismissed, it being the understanding that if Mrs. Eeles favored such an arrangement it could be carried out. It also developed that Alexander told Mrs. Eeles there might be some delay in getting the balance of $2900 ($100 having been paid on the account,) as his property at Klamath Falls, Or., was tied up.

ROOM FOR IMPROVEMENT.
Germany's women hope for advancement of their sex at the conclusion of the war. We are tempted to say that the women of no other nation do more for their country and receive less consideration.

TOO MUCH FUSS.
The Bayside Kennel Club has offered a great exhibition the last four days. A good dog show stimulates the kennel business, but it is too much like a suffrage convention in London to bring any great joy to the dogs.

NOT UNANIMOUS.
We note that New York women will appeal to street car conductors and motormen to help them in the suffrage fight. This does not appeal to us as good politics. Street car crews know only the most unvotable side of women.

NOT ALL IN SIGHT.
It may be that you will seem to accomplish very little today. There are days like that, days when your results are scarcely visible, but you are not to be discouraged. Sometimes there must be a peculiar investment of spirit in our doings. There are occasions when the quality required depends upon forces quite invisible, and better for being hidden.

HAGGARD'S FLIGHTS.
Once in a while, when we want to give our imagination a treat we try to remember the flights that others have taken. We take the whole brilliant horizon, from Balzac to Poe, and from the Arabian Nights to Jules Verne but somehow we never seem able to improve upon Rider Haggard's "She" and "King Solomon's Mines." Haggard is not much for style and probably is not a true mystic, but he certainly knows how to make pictures in the mind.

PRESERVING THE BEST.
Half of our values always escape if we do not fall into a habit of registering our thoughts. We must even deal with ourselves more subtly than this and must find some manner of catching and holding our fleeting expressions. We must not wait for an impulse to become an action, nor a half-formed idea to clothe itself into words. When we have a vague feeling that seems to hold promise we must be quick to bring it up from the depths of ourselves, where we can look at it with the eyes of the mind and see whether it be gold or dross. If it be gold we must preserve it for our treasure house.

KEEP CHRISTIANITY CLEAN.
Ex-President Taft is right in denouncing the vulgarization of Christianity by expressing its sublime ideals in the slang of the streets. Language we would never tolerate from a lawyer in a court of justice we should never countenance from the mouth of a preacher. Soap-box methods of education are becoming far too common. The doubtful good that men like Billy Sunday can accomplish by substituting slang for the beautiful diction of the scriptures is more than offset by the harm that results from serving up religion in swill. Shall we some day descend to the depravity of rewriting the Bible in modern slang? Mr. Taft is one of those rare souls that understands the truth of the old saying, "Everything in its place." Slang has its place in the world, but it is not in the kingdom of heaven.

A FOG WHISTLE.
Benjamin C. Marsh, secretary of the New York Lower Rents Society, writes to Sam Gompers that only about one person out of every thirteen engaged in gainful occupations is a member of a labor union and therefore an increase in the wages of union members means an increase in the cost of living for nearly forty million other workers. Mr. Marsh asks: "Is it not a frightful commentary upon the ineffectiveness of present methods of attempting to secure a living wage for the workers of the country, that machinists and allied trades have had to wait to secure fair pay till it comes out of the blood money extorted by the governments of the allies from the working people of their countries, to slaughter fellow-workmen of Germany and Austria?"

Mr. Marsh is about the only professional reformer in New York who has no patent remedy for the evils he depicts. He is not a pilot; he is only a fog whistle.

BACK DOWN AND BACK UP.
When Uncle Sam really gets his back up there isn't a nation on earth but finds it expedient to back down. This is not because Uncle Sam is naturally bellicose, but for the opposite reason. Just because he is slow to anger and does not carry a chip on his shoulder the shrewd observer understands that when he has reached the breaking point something is going to snap—and it won't be Uncle Sam's backbone.

Every diplomat in Europe knows in his secret heart that the United States consistently during the war has only made a stand for humanity and justice. In the face of a righteous stand any European nation can back down gracefully without loss of prestige. So if Great Britain slows off and backs up in its illegal ocean blockade and starvation campaign, and Germany backs down in its murderous submarine warfare, both nations will be less dishonored when the disgraceful events of the last year are reviewed in the light of calm reason.

AN EPOCHAL SUMMER FOR LOS ANGELES.
And still they come—the tourists, the people from the ends of the earth, who dodge fighting zones to get here, and fellow-citizens from each of the best States in the Union—all coming to see California, the two expositions, and find out for themselves if Los Angeles is as close to perfection as everybody who lives here seems to think.

And Los Angeles isn't a tourist city, a resort depending on summer boarders for prosperity. But it likes tourists. Most everybody who lives here was a tourist once. People come and stay. That's why Los Angeles grows more rapidly than any other city in the world, or in the history of the world.

Since May 1 Los Angeles has entertained a half million visitors. Wars and rumors of wars, financial temblors, mercurial prosperity, the roarings of Roosevelt, haven't brought on the panic prophesied by timid souls. Los Angeles has never had such an enjoyable and profitable summer.

California is a big State, but Los Angeles has got 90 per cent. of all the visitors that have come during the past four months. And the men who can look at statistics and tell what they mean say that it is a 200 per cent. increase in travel over any corresponding period of the past ten years—which means in the history of the city.

Twenty governors have visited Los Angeles this summer. That's a record of which no city outside of California can boast, because we haven't had any special attraction to draw them—nothing but the climate, the sunshine, fruit, flowers, zephyrs, the hearty handshake and the pretty girls that can be found the year round.

Hotels in Los Angeles have been crowded, the streets jammed, the stores packed. Even the street cars have overflowed into jitney busses, and the "rubber-neck" wagons have chased around loaded like army trucks hurrying reinforcements to the front.

And the pace grows faster every day. The tourist travel grows bigger as the eastern sun grows hotter. With the expositions drawing, the balmy clime enticing and the eastern heat driving, the railroad and steamship companies just about have their hands, cars and ships full. At present more trains are scheduled into Los Angeles than into any city west of St. Louis.

Secretary Wiggins of the Chamber of Commerce, the world's leading authority on the tourist, says that a visitor can't well get away from Los Angeles without leaving $10—which is about as cheap as a man can live the same number of days in his home town.

That's one of the reasons why visitors like to come to Los Angeles, one of the reasons why they have gladly left $5,000,000 in the city during the last sixteen weeks. One of the reasons why Los Angeles is now the largest city west of the Mississippi.

This has been a great summer for Southern California, an epochal summer. And the real rewards of it are yet to come, come in the form of erstwhile tourists returning with their household goods, their sons and daughters and businesses, to swell the population and prosperity of Los Angeles.

PROCRUSTEAN LEGISLATION.
A farm hand who is skilful and industrious, who can drive a team of horses, or act as chauffeur for a freight auto wagon, who can handle a reaping or mowing machine, milk half a dozen cows, break a colt, graft a tree, and do anything and everything that needs to be done about a ranch, is hired by a farmer for $40 a month and his board.

Another hand, who is neither so strong, nor so experienced, nor so skillful, but who can yet do fairly well what he is hired to do, receives $30 per month and his board.

The employer and both employes are satisfied.

Meddlesome politicians, with half-baked brains, appointed as members of a Federal Commission on Industrial Relations, recommend and urge the passage of a national minimum wage law, which fixes the minimum wage of farm hands at $40 per month. As a result, the farmer being compelled to pay a $40 wage hires another $40 man and the $30 man loses his job on the farm and takes a place at ditch digging or dish washing, where the minimum wage is $30, or else takes to the road as an I.W.W. and hen roost robber.

And all three curse the operations of the meddlesome, muddlesome, minimum wage law.

A skillful, active, industrious girl is earning $15 a week operating a sewing machine. Another girl, not so strong, not so quick, and who, for these reasons or because of defective eyesight, or ill health, receives for her work but $10 a week, is discharged under the operations of a minimum wage law, which fixes the wages of seamstresses at $15 a week. The girl of lesser capacity must find some menial or less desirable employment, or she may be driven to do what many poor girls are driven to do who cannot find honest employment.

Procrustes, who cut off the feet of tall men and pulled out of shape and usefulness the legs of short men in order to make them fit his iron bed, was probably a Grecian Commissioner on Industrial Relations.

WELL-PAID PATRIOTISM.
The farmers of England, being full of patriotism, have responded to the appeal of Capt. Charles Bathurst, M.P., who addressed them as to the vital necessity of a largely-increased home production of food in 1916. He urged them to undertake the patriotic duty of raising, for the nation's safety, more wheat, oats and potatoes.

Many of the farmers, whose hearts were touched and whose patriotic ardor was inspired by this appeal, replied that as Britons, proud of their country and filled with devoted loyalty to George the Fifth, they would proceed to plant and cultivate more wheat, provided that the government would guarantee a minimum price for the grain—sufficient to cover the cost of production both during the war and for four or five years afterwards—so as to secure them against any loss of their capital over the transaction.

The government of Great Britain, with that frugality which is one of its distinguishing characteristics, is considering whether it will be well to pay a bonus for four or five years to British farmers for raising wheat, or whether it will not be cheaper to obtain wheat from Egypt, Canada, the United States and Australia and take the chances of running it past German submarines.

The Boss of the Financial District—By DeMar

OUR OWN GOOD FORTUNE.
When the war broke out Germany was making giant strides in her foreign trade. Up to 1890 no nation came anywhere near competing with Great Britain as a manufacturer and carrier of goods for all the world.

Fifteen years ago the German merchant began to arrive. With patience, ingenuity and thoroughness he proceeded to cater to the world. The North German Lloyd and Hamburg-American line of steamers were faster and cheaper than those of the Cunard or White Star lines, and German manufactures and products were supplanting those of Great Britain in Africa, in Asia and in North and South America.

The war changed these conditions and changed them radically. Of Germany's $2,500,000,000 export trade in 1913 $1,000,000,000 was immediately and utterly wiped out. Germany has lost half her export trade, and the vast wealth which flows in normal times in and out through the great port of Antwerp is tightly sealed. Germany has suffered the devastation of her foreign commerce and the elimination of the German flag from all of the five oceans of the world.

The Nations' Business says: "The wastage from war is one of the terrible prices which all of the belligerent countries are paying for their struggle to survive as great powers. Each of them is, therefore, concerned that it may snatch whatever coals it can from the blazing fire. But Germany and Austria-Hungary are in a position to do nothing. It is true that they still have some outlet through Holland and the Scandinavian kingdoms; possibly, also, to an extent which cannot be important, through Greece and Bulgaria. For practical purposes, however, German and Austrian outlets to over-sea commerce are stopped with a cork whose leaks are being steadily reduced through the pressure of the sea power of their enemies."

Germany and Austria have now no unoccupied foreign markets to exploit and are even prevented from any effective efforts to maintain on a large scale those which they possessed before the war.

Great Britain is in little better plight. At the close of the first year of the war, with the end not yet in sight, her expenditures have equalled the most extravagant predictions. The London Economist announces that they are spending at the rate of fifty millions of dollars a day on their work of economic destruction. Meanwhile normal industry is dislocated, constructive work, except for the war industries, almost suspended, manufacture in many lines greatly reduced, and general trade seriously depressed.

Agriculture, carried on largely by the women, children and old men, is about the only European activity not based on war or war needs that appears to be thriving.

On this side the Atlantic, notwithstanding the total loss of the German and Austrian trade, the diminution of trade with France and Russia, the menace of being forced into the conflict ourselves and the unusual economic conditions due to the war, there has been slow but continuous improvement in our industrial affairs. A special report of the Committee on Statistics and Standards of the National Chamber of Commerce shows an outlook for nearly a billion bushels of wheat alone, while those for corn are likely to exceed any previous figures. In the textile, metal and leather industries the output of the factories and forges has exceeded that of any previous year, and the prices obtained for both agricultural and manufacturing products have been highly remunerative.

If we can keep out of the European contest, and the last advices from Germany indicate that we can do so with honor, the United States of America will remain as now, the most prosperous nation in all the world.

BAD JUDGMENT.
Pat was proud of his goat and he considered that the animal died like a hero when he contested the right of way with a locomotive. To this Mike agreed, but with reservations. Says Mike to Pat: "Shure an' I admoire your goat's courage, but I'm dombd if I rayspect his judgment." We think much the same about the Balkans, no matter which side of the fight they may contemplate joining.

BRITISH FREEDOM DESTROYED.
The provisions of the British "defense of the realm" act are not generally understood in this country and not altogether comprehended in Great Britain. Says the Chicago Tribune:

"In a recent work on the conduct and legal results of the war, written by two distinguished English professors of law, some startling facts are brought out. What they say about the workings of the defense-of-the-realm act is particularly significant. Every citizen is now under military law and subject to fine or imprisonment or both for infractions thereof. The freedom of the press, which has been an Englishman's proud boast, no longer exists. Any report published by a British newspaper which is 'likely to cause alarm' may cause the responsible persons to be punished with penal servitude and without jury trial. A constable or other officer may stop any person anywhere and compel him to answer questions put to him. A house may be entered and searched without warrant. . . . For the first time in 250 years a civilian may be sentenced to death without trial by jury."

Never in American history, not even during the Civil War, did the executive assume such arbitrary power over the life, liberty and property of the people as exists in Great Britain today. The net of restriction there is so finely woven, so ingeniously designed, that it enmeshes every activity of the citizen. The military authorities can, on mere suspicion, arrest any man without warrant, and can equally without warrant enter any house by day or by night. The Englishman can no longer boast that his house is his castle, that the storm may enter it, but the King of England may not, against the will of the owner, step without warrant across its threshold.

Under the "defense-of-the-realm" act the military authorities of Great Britain may punish with penal servitude for life any journalist who speculates as to the plan of campaign of the British or the French forces, and with six months' imprisonment if he criticises the quality of the beef or cabbage or the strength of the tea or coffee served to the new recruits or finds fault with the character of their sleeping accommodations.

The Chicago Tribune says:

"They can stop any citizen in the streets and compel him to answer questions, even though they incriminate himself. The private citizen is placed under the absolute orders of any major holding His Majesty's commission. . . . Some of the dearest and most vaunted rights of the Britons have been trampled upon and destroyed by this act, in which the English government shows in its internal conduct as little respect for its own subjects as in its external it shows for the rights of neutral nations."

[Harper's Magazine:] The Shaw family had recently taken a house in the fashionable residential section of the city. Some weeks later an acquaintance of former years called on Mrs. Shaw and was viewing the treasures in the library.

"Is your husband a bibliomaniac?" queried the visitor.

"Goodness me, no!" ejaculated Mrs. Shaw. "He never bibbles a bit. Oh, of course, I don't say that he wouldn't take a little at his meals if the rest were doin' it, but that's as far as he ever goes in them kind of things."

A HYBRID AMERICAN MERCHANT MARINE.

[CONTRIBUTED TO THE TIMES]
BY ALEXANDER R. SMITH,
Former Superintendent New York Marine Exchange.

LEGAL LUMINARIES of the Department of Commerce and Secretary of State Lansing agreee that, under the laws of the United States, foreign vessels owned by an American corporation are entitled to American registry. Such vessels are regarded as "American," even if all the stock, save alone a few shares needed to qualify the directors of the American corporation that owns them to act as such, is owned by foreigners.

The full significance of this legal ruling of administrative officers may not be apparent to the people at first glance. It means: That vessels built in foreign countries, of foreign materials, by foreign workmen, owned, commanded, officered and manned by foreigners, are entitled to American registry if nominal ownership is vested in an American corporation. The only thing about the vessels that would really be American would be the registry and the flag—a Federal document and a flutter of bunting. All the material, practical constituent parts of such an "American" merchant marine would be, or at least may be, wholly foreign.

The case in point was that of an American corporation that desired to bring eleven vessels under American registry. This was refused by the Commissioner of Navigation, the officer of the Department of Commerce who issues such documents. Appeal taken to his superior officers resulted in a reversal. The commissioner held that no American money having been invested in these foreign ships, even if they are owned by an American corporation, they are not entitled to American registry. The money in this case came from a German subject. So, when these eleven foreign ships are admitted to American registry, they will be German-owned in fact, although owned nominally by an American corporation. The law of August 18, 1914, admits such vessels, so owned, to American registry; under proclamation issued by President Wilson pursuant to the provisions of that law alien masters and officers may command and officer the vessels, and our laws for a long time have not required that the crews of American vessels shall be American citizens.

There is a real, nation-wide, irrepressible demand for an American merchant marine. It is scarcely to be believed that this demand will be satisfied with such a hybrid American merchant marine as has been described—as we are actually in process of acquiring. In the possible event of war such a marine, so owned, so commanded, officered and manned, would be of no use whatever to the United States, because the ships would, in all probability, be unavailable for auxiliary naval and military uses.

Suppose subjects of the nation with which we were at war were the real owners of the ships, not only would they be of no use to us, but they might be turned against us and used by our enemy. The opinion just rendered would make possible such an extreme case as this: A Japanese steamship company could sell its ships to an American corporation, taking all but half a dozen shares of the stock of the American corporation in payment for the ships. The American owners of the American corporation would hold these half-dozen shares in order to qualify as directors, but they would be subject to the directions of the Japanese directors. These so-called "American" ships could then be placed in control of Japanese masters, Japanese officers and Japanese crews, and sailed under the American flag. Indeed, for an American to make himself understood on board of such "American" ships we would have to employ the services of an interpreter.

The German Kaiser is said to be heavily interested in the steamships of the North German Lloyd and of the Hamburg-American lines. He might own all but a half-dozen shares of them. And yet he could sell the ships of both lines to an American corporation, taking as his pay the stock of the American corporation, and place German subjects on board of all of those ships as masters, officers and crews, until the last man Jack was a German; and yet, being owned by an American corporation, the ships would be entitled to American registry, the right to fly the flag of the United States, and the protection of the government of the United States.

While the United States is acquiring an "American" merchant marine the people ought to be told the kind of a merchant marine it is.

Lepers May Wed.

[New York World:] The Russian Medical Council has given permission for lepers to marry with each other, but not with healthy mates. The Lancet remarks that as the birth rate among lepers is very low the percentage of infant leprosy is only about 5 per cent. But, it adds, "it is imperative that arrangements be made in advance, and the reasons carefully explained beforehand to the leprous parents, to remove at once the newly-born infant from the custody of its mother to a distant home provided by the authorities, where the child may grow up without danger of acquiring the infection from its maternal parent."

For leprosy is not believed to be hereditary, but the intimate contact between a mother and a nursing baby is the surest means of conveying the infection.

A Puzzled Minister.

[Indianapolis News:] The Rev. W. H. Book, pastor of the Tabernacle Christian Church at Columbus, Ind., and a director of Butler College, tells this story on himself.

The minister was making a talk at prayer meeting at his church and had explained to the audience that some people in his congregation thought he talked too much.

"But," declared the minister, "I will continue to talk against this evil as long as I have breath or until my tongue is paralyzed."

On a rear seat an old sister raised her voice. "Your tongue never will be paralyzed," she declared.

The minister is still wondering whether this was a roast or a prediction.

SYRIAN ORANGE CROP IS LOST.

SCOURGE OF LOCUSTS WIPES OUT THE FRUIT.

Nation's Third Largest Output Destroyed, Giving California's Harvest Great Market in England and Europe When Season Here is at its Highest.

The Syrian orange crop—ranking third, after the United States and Spain, in the world's output—has been practically destroyed by locusts.

The citrus fruit industry of Palestine, which prior to the war was rapidly becoming of great commercial importance to that historic country, is experiencing serious reverses. In the 1913-1914 season exports of oranges to Egypt and Europe from Jaffa alone were over 2,000,000 boxes; but of the 1914-1915 crop only about 150,000 boxes could be shipped to those points, the balance of the fruit being lost. Alexandretta also had 400,000 boxes available for export, and in Tripoli in Syria a like number, all of which were a dead loss to the growers.

The scourge of locusts has devastated the citrus groves of Syria. Consul-General Hollis, from Beirut, reports that about two-thirds of this season's (1915-16) orange, mandarin and citron crop has been destroyed. Consular Agent Stuve, from Haifa, adds that "the locusts have eaten all the leaves and peeled the small branches of the trees."

Prior to this last disaster the prospects for the coming citrus crops were decidedly unfavorable, as "there was no petroleum available to run the motors to irrigate the land."

These great reverses will give the Syrian orange industry a great setback. The Jaffa and other Syrian oranges had been gaining a strong foothold on the markets of England and northern Europe prior to the war. In Jaffa about half of the growers are Moslems, the balance Christians and Jews. In Tripoli the bulk of the fruit is grown by Moslems in Alexandretta by Christians.

Given the required shipping facilities, and there should be a good opening for California navels in Europe the coming season, particularly on the English markets; and at a time when California shipments are at their highest and outlets looked for in every direction. While Spain will probably have large quantities of fruit for the same markets the California navel comes nearer to taking the place of the Jaffa than the average Spanish seedling. The former is an excellent fruit, of good size, juicy and heavy, with but few seeds, first appearing on the market around the Christmas holidays.

Reports from widely scattered points state that wounded and convalescent soldiers eagerly seek the orange as one of the few fruits they especially desire.

TAKEN WITH OPIUM.

The Collector of Customs received a wire yesterday from Deputy Macumber at Calexico that B. Hoski and Al and Manuel Pesquira had been arrested on this side of the line, having in their possession five five-tael cans of smoking opium. The trio are in the El Centro jail.

How to Instantly Tint Your Hair

"Brownatone" Affords the Surest, and Practically the ONLY ABSOLUTELY SAFE Method for Tinting (or Staining) the Hair or Mustache to Any Shade of Brown (or Black.)

There is a new preparation on the market that is so entirely harmless and so easy to use that there is really no excuse for any woman (or man) to longer tolerate gray or streaked hair.

"Brownatone" meets and overcomes every objection heretofore found to "hair dyes" and "restorers," and is so pleasing in its uniformly splendid results that it has in a few months made thousands of friends who could not now be induced to use anything else.

"Brownatone" is instantaneous in results. One application is all that is necessary to get the desired shade. Then a few moments once every month or so will keep the hair a uniform color.

If your temples are beginning to show gray, use "Brownatone."

If your hair is faded or streaked, use "Brownatone."

If the ends are of a lighter shade than the balance, use "Brownatone."

If your switch doesn't exactly match your hair, comb it with "Brownatone."

"Brownatone" positively cannot be detected, will not rub off or wash off, and is harmless, and permanent in every way.

Prepared in two shades—one for golden or medium brown—the other for dark brown or black. Also in two sizes, 25c and $1.00.

A sample bottle and an interesting booklet will be sent upon receipt of ten cents, or we will fill your orders direct if your druggists insists upon substituting. No samples at dealers.

Insist on "Brownatone" at your hairdresser's.

Made only by The Kenton Pharmacal Co., 582 Pike Street, Covington, Ky.

MEAN BEYOND WORDS.

Thief Takes the Bicycle of a Crippled Boy, His Only Means of Locomotion.

It was a mean thief who stole the small bicycle from the back porch of No. 1355 Wright street Thursday night. For the little machine was not only the pride and joy of Wilbert Burger, 10 years old, but also his only means of locomotion, as he has been a cripple almost all his life, and can walk only a little ways at a time.

Wilbert earned the money that bought the bicycle by selling papers at Valencia and Pico streets, seated in a little wheel chair. The spinal curvature that made walking a torture did not affect his legs, so he could peddle the two-wheeled machine and cover the ground otherwise closed to him.

The little cripple and his wheel are well known in the neighborhood of his home, and even the policemen of that locality smiled tolerantly when they accidentally discovered their little friend riding the sidewalks to ease his travel.

Then came the theft. All trace of the bicycle is gone, and the little boy is confined to his home. His small companions, led by his big brother Jack, 13 years old, have formed a vigilante committee to search out the despicable thief who would rob a cripple.

The bicycle is a juvenile pattern, with blue frame and coaster brake. The number is 223152. If anyone should see the missing wheel it is hoped they will call Broadway 5111 and give their information to Mrs. Nina Burger, the widowed mother of the little cripple.

Will Clears Mystery.

spike was driven, completing the first across the continent.

It was David Hewes who presented Gov. Stanford with the golden spike used in the momentous ceremony. Later Mrs. Stanford's sister, Miss Anna Lathrop, became Mr. Hewes's second wife and his likeness is among the seventy-odd portraits of those who form the group about Gov. Stanford in the "spike picture."

It was about the placing of the seventy-one portraits that the political storm gathered. It left Thomas Hill with thousands of dollars of debts staring him in the face and his painting, instead of being hung in the Capitol at Sacramento, was thrust back on his hands.

Bitterly disappointed, Mr. Hill and his son, Robert R. Hill, who now resides at No. 1265 Clay street, San Francisco, printed a small booklet in which the artist gave the reason why the "spike picture" remained in his possession. Only thirty copies were printed and very few of these ever got into circulation.

STORY OF STRUGGLE.

Baring as it does the struggle the artist made to secure recognition for his painting, the pamphlet sheds a bit of light on many of the disappointments which seem to have followed in the wake of the big painting.

According to Mr. Hill's statement, he was commissioned by the late ex-Gov. Leland Stanford, who drove the last spike, to paint a picture of this event with all the prominent people who were present grouped about him. The price was to be not less than $25,000.

This seemed easy, for Thomas Hill was one of the best-known portrait and landscape painters in the West at that time and the characters in the painting were soon arranged according to the Governor's instructions. The satisfaction the artist felt in his work was short-lived. None of the prominent men pictured was willing to be placed behind anyone else and thus the work of rearranging the figures to suit the whims of the politicians then in power began. Pressure was brought to bear on Gov. Stanford and he instructed the artist to paint out many who were there and in their places to put other prominent politicians who were not fortunate enough to be among "those present," but who wished to have their portraits in the painting which was then creating such a furore.

After the artist had spent more than a year changing the picture, Gov. Stanford suddenly lost interest, it is said, because a close friend advised him that the jealousy which the picture was creating would interfere with any political aspiration the Governor might have. He then withdrew his open patronage of the picture, but, it is said, he still backed the artist, until one of the prominent officials of the railroad discovered one day that he had been placed behind one of the "lesser lights," and in his anger he persuaded the Governor to repudiate the order for the picture.

PAINTER'S REVENGE.

After the humiliation of having his picture refused by his former friend, Thomas Hill loaned the "Last Spike" to the Golden Gate Museum, and, as a gentle reminder of his disappointment, had attached to the picture a plate bearing the legend, "Ordered by Gov. Leland Stanford." The "spike picture remained" in the Golden Gate gallery until the administrator's sale to David Hewes.

It is the belief of those who knew Mr. Hewes that he intended to present the collection to the Stanford University at Palo Alto, owing to his connection with the Stanford family, and also because he had already presented a collection of statuary and paintings to the university some years ago in memory of his wife. It is known as the Anna Lathrop Hewes Memorial Collection.

There are many well-known paintings included in the collection which was missing for two years. The "Yosemite Valley from Inspiration Point" hung for ten years in the gallery at the Hotel del Monte, and another view of this far-famed valley was exhibited in the Southern Pacific Company's Los Angeles office for many years.

Thomas Hill was one of the best-known landscape painters in the West, and California owes him a debt of gratitude for sending to the four corners of the earth some of the beauties of her summer sky and the rugged grandeur of her mountains, for it has been said there is no art collection of importance in this country and abroad that does not include at least one of Thomas Hill's landscapes.

He was one of the most versatile artists the world has ever known, an ardent lover of the life of the wild, and a peculiar charm marks all his work. Perhaps it is only a camp fire left burning, a deer rubbing a tree, an Indian on a pony or a grouse fluttering through the snow, but ever there is wild life somewhere in all his pictures, a subtle touch that has endeared him to all. The final disposition of this collection as well as the "Driving of the Last Spike" will be watched with interest. Will the ghost of unrest which haunts the "spike picture" some day be laid?

SHE HAD SUCH A BUXOM FORM.

MOTHER-IN-LAW TOO FOND OF SON SAYS WIFE.

Kissed Him, Hugged Him and They Sat on Each Other's Laps; Also She Encouraged Him to Flirt, are Charges in Divorcee's Suit for Damages.

Having scored one notch by winning a decree of divorce on an unusual story of cruelty, Mrs. Stella R. Wilkinson brought suit yesterday against her mother-in-law, Mrs. Eva M. Wilkinson, for alienating the affections of her husband, E. R. Wilkinson. She asks $15,000 damages and tells how her mother-in-law put her in disgrace by displaying a too great affection for her son.

The alleged result of the cruelty systematically practiced by the mother-in-law, was, the young wife says, to drive her from her home in Alhambra. It continued, she asserts from [illegible] 1, 1910, to January 13 last. Mother-in-law, according to the complaint and the testimony, monopolized too much of her son's company. When he returned from work she met him at the front door and greeted him with a kiss. In the morning she walked with him to the car. They kissed and hugged each other; he sat on her lap and she sat on his lap. She crawled into bed with her son when his wife was lying at his side.

Standing out significantly in the complaint is the statement that mother-in-law solicited the compliments of her son, "as to her buxom form," and comparing it with wifey's slender shape. The wife says her mother-in-law declared she could not allow any one to come between her son and herself. She encouraged him in going with other girls. There was the trip to Mt. Wilson, told in the divorce trial this month, when he was seen to caress and give a good-night kiss to one of the prettiest girls.

Mother-in-law thought it was all right for son to flirt and she advised him to do so, wifey says. Now this was awful enough to a young wife, but to have to do the housework, while mother-in-law took charge of everything, even to the management of Emmet R., the four-year-old son, was overdoing a good thing she alleges. So now she wants mother-in-law to pay for the distress of mind she is alleged to have caused by her cruelty.

Mrs. Wilkinson was married in 1910, when she was 17. She resides with her mother, Mrs. F. N. Ross, at Florence and Santa Fe avenues. Ever since they were married, she says, mother-in-law resided with them.

HORNET'S NEST. CHILD IS RETURNED.

Because, as she believed, she was acting for the best interest of the child, Mrs. Ella Slawson took her niece, Fay Nettleton, 12 years old, to Juvenile Hall Friday night and in so doing stirred up a hornet's nest. George Nettleton, father of Fay, and former Chief of Police at Venice, retained Attys. Frederick and Hanna to recover his daughter. They applied yesterday to Presiding Judge Works for an order restoring the child to her father, promising to follow this up in the event of refusal to issue the order by applying for a writ of habeas corpus.

Meantime, Mrs. Slawson consulted Miss Frances Byrum, assistant probation officer, and she was advised that the father is the natural custodian of the child.

"But Fay came to my house," related Mrs. Slawson and said she would not go back to her home. I took her to Juvenile Hall as a safe place because Fay's home conditions were not congenial."

Miss Byrum declined to act in the matter, and finally Mrs. Slawson went to Juvenile Hall and returned Fay to her own home. As the child was no longer outside of her father's custody, Judge Works declined to issue the order on the ground that there was nothing for him to do.

Mr. Nettleton claims though his attorneys that the alleged abduction of the child was spite work. Mrs. Slawson denied this.

FLAYS DEMON RUM. JUDGE FIRES BROADSIDE.

Judge Thomas yesterday decided, in the injunction suit brought by S. D. Wilcox against George J. Peterman to restrain the latter from using the trade-mark "Wilcox" in connection with sight-seeing tours, that a partnership existed at the time the men discontinued their business relations and that either is entitled to the use of the name.

Because the testimony brought out the fact that liquor had played a part in the severance of business relations, Judge Thomas handed Demon Rum one of his characteristic punches. He observed that in practically all except probate cases which he has tried in the local courts "liquor has in some manner played a part, and in many cases it was the direct result of the litigation. While I have lived forty-[illegible] years without touching a drop of liquor, many of my very best friends are addicted to it.

"Some of the biggest-hearted men of my acquaintance drink, and if I was down and out and needed assistance, I believe I would go to some of these men who drink and ask for help. They are the kind of men who, if they had only had half a dollar would share half of it. So while I have some men who drink I would love them more if they did not. When I observe the damning effect of liquor I simply cannot refrain from expressing my sincere feeling in regard to its abuse and use in nearly every case that comes under my observation."

In passing, might be said that one of the women, whose husband was interested in the case, said she hoped the court would "hand out a shot on the drink evil."

HASTY CASE. LETTERS ARE GRANTED.

Arvid C. Alm, a personal friend, petitioned yesterday and was granted by Judge Thomas special letters of administration on the estate of O. N. Borg of this city, who was accidentally killed in Inyo county while on a hunting trip. The haste was due to the fact that money in bank is needed to pay the expenses of embalming Mr. Borg's remains and shipping them to Los Angeles.

The money was deposited to Mr. Borg's account in a local bank. The body is at Mommouth, and because of the hot weather, the petition states, embalming will be necessary at once. Mr. Borg leaves three brothers in the East and a sister in Sweden.

INS AND OUTS. ABOUT THE COURTS.

NAMES GUARDIAN. Because of illness, Max Hoffman, a retired saloonkeeper who is worth $75,000, is unable to look after his property, and yesterday Judge Works appointed William J. Winter his guardian, on Mr. Winter's petition. The bond was fixed in the sum of $150,000. Mr. Hoffman, a bachelor, is a patient at the German Hospital. The petition was represented by Attorney L. B. Stanton.

JITBUS DAMAGE SUIT. Max Kupcinet, owner of a jitbus, and the Pacific Coast Casualty Company were made defendants in a suit filed yesterday by William H. Perry, the father, and Mrs. Viola M. Perry, the widow of Wilfred H. Perry, who was fatally injured when his motorcycle was struck by the jitbus at Vernon and Moneta avenue on the 20th inst. The suit, filed by Attorneys Denis & Lowenthal, asks $50,000 damages. It is alleged the jitbus was being driven at the time of the accident at a dangerous speed.

RELEASED ON WRIT. Vern Louis, aged 19 years, charged with burglary, was released on a writ of habeas corpus yesterday by Acting Presiding Judge Works. The application was made by Max Rapaport, attorney for Louis. He was arrested on the charge of entering a store at No. 260 South Main street and taking merchandise.

SOME SCRAPPER. According to the complaint filed yesterday by Joseph and Louise Higelin of No. 7732 Lou Dillon street, Florence, John Miller is a scrapper. He is alleged to have entered the Higelin home on the 7th inst., knocking down and beating Mr. Higelin, and then turning his attention to Mrs. Higelin and winding up with whipping their son, Julius. Mr. Higelin asks $625 damages, Mrs. Higelin $650 and Julius $25.

PROSECUTOR TO MAKE CHANGES.

SHAKE-UP IN CITY OFFICE IS SCHEDULED.

Deputy Prosecutor Smith to be Succeeded by Hill, and White to be Named Assistant, Also Taking Place Now Held by Foss as Investigator.

Changes in the City Prosecutor's office to become effective September 1, amounting to a practical reorganization of his forces, were announced yesterday by City Prosecutor Williams.

Samuel B. Smith, appointed when Mr. Williams assumed charge of the office, will resign and his place will be taken by John J. Hill, while Thomas Foss, special investigator, will also resign and his place will be taken by Edward White, Jr., son of Edward White, Democratic candidate for Governor at the last election.

Special Investigator Foss, who has been in charge of the secret service work of the office, is not a lawyer, and Prosecutor Williams said yesterday that through the change he will have an assistant with legal training whose services will be available for work in the office aside from investigating and secret service. The Council has made appropriation for the secret service work of the office for the first six months of the fiscal year and it is expected that additional funds will be provided later.

GARBAGE PROFITS. MAY BUY AUTO TRUCKS.

The Board of Public Works yesterday entered into an agreement with the Pacific Reduction Works whereby the city will have the right to sell about 100 tons of garbage a day until January 1, at a profit of $1 a ton. The Reduction company informed the board that it can handle 125 tons a day at its plant until October 1 and from October 1 to January 1 it can handle 150 tons a day and thereafter it will take all the garbage. In the meantime, the surplus will be sold by the city under contracts now pending. The board appointed Commissioner O'Brien a committee of one to confer with the Council Finance Committee, requesting that the Board of Public Works be permitted to keep the proceeds from the sale of garbage to apply on the purchase of automobile trucks to be used in hauling garbage from Hollywood to the reduction plant.

"We are doing the best we can with the present equipment," said Commissioner O'Brien, "but I am sure that the Humane Animal Commission will join in our request to be allowed to substitute gasoline for mule power in the fifteen-mile haul from Hollywood."

Trucks Damage Drive.

Residents of the Van Nuys district who object to the use of Sherman drive for heavy traffic told their troubles to the Public Safety Committee of the Council yesterday, and within an hour, police officers were instructed to nab a few truck drivers, if necessary, and make examples of them. Information given the Council was to the effect that since the drive has been included within the city, its use for heavy traffic has become general and last week a little load of forty-five tons of barley was hauled down the pavement by a tractor. Councilman Topham conferred with Chief Sniveley, asking that a patrolman or two be detailed immediately to see that the trucks kept to the dirt road.

Contractor Promises Action.

W. F. Hewitt, contractor for the Harbor boulevard improvement, reported to the Board of Public Works yesterday that he had succeeded in getting a crossing for his tramway over the Pacific Electric tracks and on Monday will be able to show that he means business. The board recently granted an extension of time on the contract after threatening to take it over and readvertise the work.

Municipalograms.

President Betkouski of the City Council will take his vacation this week. With Mrs. Betkouski and their three children he will take an automobile trip to San Francisco.

The Board of Public Works issued a permit to the school board yesterday for repairs and alterations to the gymnasium at the Hollywood High School. It was called to the attention of the board that the building is within the fire limits, but, inasmuch as the alterations include additional exits and other changes to make the building more safe, the board stretched regulations to comply with the request.

H. C. Gabhardt notified the Board of Public Works yesterday of a claim for $10,000 damages for injuries sustained by Mrs. Gabhardt when their automobile struck a pile of earth on Harvard boulevard last June. Mr. Gabhardt says the earth lay beside an excavation made by the city and was not guarded. The claim was referred to the City Engineer for report.

TEACH CHILDREN, NOT SUBJECTS.

VOCATIONAL EXPERT URGES A PRACTICAL SCHOOL.

Educator Tells City Club Members that Two-thirds of American Youth Leave School Too Early from Choice Rather than from Necessity.

Meyer Bloomfield, director of the vocational bureau of Boston and lecturer on vocational guidance at Harvard, addressed the City Club yesterday at its weekly luncheon, telling the members that the great fault with the American educational system is that the schools teach subjects instead of teaching children.

"Two-thirds of the children who leave school during the period of adolescence leave from choice rather than from necessity," said Mr. Bloomfield. "These conditions are shown by numerous surveys in which the figures generally agree. The children leave because the schools simply prepare them for other schools and for advanced courses instead of preparing them to meet the problems of life."

Mr. Bloomfield urged the business men of Los Angeles to form an organization for studying the vocational problems of the city, saying that the progressive business organizations of today are beginning to recognize that standards and ideals are as necessary in the purchase of the human element as in the buying of merchandise.

San Francisco, he said, is preparing to make a vocational survey and the Board of Education, working with the National Department of Education, will spend $8000 on this work to find just what the children of San Francisco need that is not furnished by the public school system. Minneapolis, he said, is spending $15,000 for a like purpose, while the State of Massachusetts is spending a quarter of a million dollars a year to provide industrial training at home instead of allowing its young men and women to spend hundreds of thousands of dollars annually seeking education through correspondence schools.

"The only time for children to attend night schools is in the day time," said Mr. Bloomfield. "The time has gone for teaching subjects and the time has arrived when our schools should begin to teach children. Instead of sending our children through school we should send the schools through the children. We are going to have in this country a scheme whereby working children under 16 years of age and, perhaps, under 18 years, will be sent to school a part of their time while being paid by their employers."

The City Club adopted a resolution requesting the County Supervisors to fill the vacancy in the office of County Surveyor by appointment through civil service and suggesting that three members of the old flood control board be retained as advisers in flood control matters until such a time as bonds may be voted to pursue work on a large scale. This resolution, it was understood, did not place the club on record as for or against the general flood control plans now under discussion.

TO PROMOTE "PEACE."

Get-together Picnic of Investment Company Stockholders at Eastlake Park.

Through the activities of the "Peace Committee" of the Woman's Los Angeles Investment Club a get-together picnic was held yesterday in Eastlake Park by the stockholders of the Los Angeles Investment Company. It was estimated that about 500 persons attended the affair during the afternoon and evening.

This is the first of a series of such events which the Woman's Los Angeles Investment Club plans to give within the ensuing few months. It was instigated by Mrs. L. D. Johnson, chairman of the "Peace Committee."

The programme yesterday afternoon included selections by an orchestra; songs and fancy dancing by little Misses Evelyn Wear and Esther Davis; reading by Mrs. Ada Creveling and songs by Mrs. John David Beall. A picnic dinner was served at 6 o'clock.

The officers of the Woman's Los Angeles Investment Club are: Mrs. Virginia M. Clopton, president; Mrs. Dr. Volbrecht, vice-president; Mrs. Colby, treasurer, and Mrs. L. D. Johnson, secretary.

Boys' Day.

standard junior recruit could be summed up in the one word, faithfulness—faithfulness in attending church and Sunday-school, in attending the meetings of the organization, in prayer and in reading the Bible."

IMPORTANCE OF TRAINING.

Kenneth spoke of the importance of training, asserting that it is just as necessary for the successful member of the junior brotherhood as it is for the successful soldier in an army.

"We find in the brotherhood that it is impossible to get something for nothing," the youthful speaker said. "If the junior recruit becomes a good senior and incidentally a good churchman he must go through a process. What, then, shall be the training of the junior recruit?

"In the army the recruit is trained along physical lines, for he must accomplish physical things. Following the same line of thought, we see plainly that the brotherhood recruit must be trained along spiritual lines, for he must accomplish spiritual things. Of what does spiritual training consist? For the most part it consists of prayer.

"Let us attempt, then, to use prayer as a source of strength and power. Let us acquire the habit of kneeling down at night to carry out the chief rule of the brotherhood, to 'pray daily for the spread of Christ's kingdom among men and boys and for God's blessing on the labors of the brotherhood.'"

The convention delegates devoted all of yesterday afternoon to recreation, leaving the Bible Institute at 2 o'clock in motor cars for a ride through the city and to the beaches. Bishop Keator of Olympia presided at a meeting held last evening to prepare for the corporate communion which will be held at 8 o'clock this morning at St. Paul's Pro-Cathedral, when Bishop Johnson will be the celebrant.

The pulpits of most of the Episcopal churches in Los Angeles and the suburbs will be occupied this morning by visiting clergymen and laymen. President E. H. Bonsall will deliver the charge to the brotherhood at 3 o'clock this afternoon. The convention will close with a public mass meeting this evening, when Bishop Woodcock of Kentucky will be the principal speaker.

Looking Ahead.

[Washington Star:] "What do you think of my graduation essay?" asked the young man.

"Fine," replied his father. "Only I'm afraid a lot of people are going to be bashful about offering plain wages to a man whose intellect is so much above the average."

Not a few women have come to us in the past few weeks to tell us that their friends have told them about the wonderful two-piece breakfast set dresses of Amoskeag gingham and percale which they bought here at 89c.

And perchance that none of your friends have told you about these breakfast sets, let us tell you here that they are genuine Amoskeag gingham or Scott percale, made with a jacket-like blouse and with a separate skirt—some are made in plain colors and some in neat figured effects. Most of them are piped with material in contrasting colors. Clearance of summer frocks that have been in stock at $25.00 to $39.50 at $14

"Monday is going to be the last day that I'll be with you," said King Cotton, "so I am going to name a price that will surely take every one of these summer dresses into new homes in one day. Yes! Yes! I know the most of these dresses could be sold for a great deal more than $14.00, but there is no time to do things in a half-way manner now. Mark every one of them $14.00, without regard to what its former price was."

And that is how it comes that 60 exquisite summer frocks of marquisettes, of voiles, of imported crepe velours, of crepe craquelle, of crepe de Riz, and of lace and silk and of silk and Georgette combination, will be priced $14.00 instead of $25.00 to $39.50. No need to tell you to be early.

From every designer of note have come

New frocks for fall and you

Even with the pen of a Dickens a writer would find himself "hard-put-to-it" to adequately describe these glorious new frocks which have come piling in by every express the past week.

There are no words that we can think of that will convey the differentness—the delightfulness—of these dresses to you. But what it has been impossible for us to do in cold black and white type, the artists have done in the above drawings—read them carefully, but remember, that these, too, fall short of the dresses themselves, for they carry none of the beauty of the colorings or weaves.

There is a character and an individuality to even the most inexpensive of these new frocks. Don't think for a minute that we mean by that, that they are laden down with fussy trimmings—rather we mean that they have gained their distinction by a clever combination of materials and colorings.

The announcement of new dresses this Fall must necessarily be headed with the mention of serge and taffeta combinations. Even with these warm days of summer both Eastern and California women have taken to them with delight. Those which seem to have aroused the most enthusiasm are those in which serge is combined with brilliantly colored plaids. And then we mustn't forget the very unusual combinations of broadcloth and velvet.

Yes, indeed, furs are going to be good! In fact they are quite the rage already. Besides the very striking fur trimmed model which is shown above you will find a great many others on which fur has been used very generously and very advantageously.

In this showing, which we will make on Monday, are both afternoon and street frocks in almost infinite variety. Among those which were unpacked and ready to see when this ad went to press the writer saw some in princess effects, some in Redingote models, some in surplice models, some with spiral skirt effects and others in novelty styles that are making their appearance for the first time.

Besides the taffetas, the satins, the serges and the other fabrics of yesteryears there are two new silks, which will win your heart instantly—they are Soiree and Mervellieus. The colorings are mostly in rich dark tones.

The prices range all the way from $12.50 on up to $75.00.

Third Floor—Jacoby's.

75c to $2.50 shadow and Oriental laces Monday at 49c

Unless all signs fail the lace store is going to be one of the busiest spots in Jacoby's on Monday. 18 to 27 in. shadow and Oriental flouncings should create a mighty stir when they are offered at 49c. There is a wide range of patternings in white, cream, ecru and two-toned effects.

75c to $2.50 nets 25c

Fancy silk nets in filet, diamond craquelle and novelty meshes in white, cream and a few colors.

Black silk laces 55c

4 to 12-inch black silk lace edges, bands and demi-flouncings that sold in a regular way at $1.00 to $2.00.

10c lace and net plaitings at 5c a yd.

A great group of 1½ to 3-inch lace and net plaitings in white, cream, black and a few colors have been taken out of regular stocks and reduced from 10c to 5c in order that this last day of the King Cotton sale may be a record breaker.

19c veilings at 12½c

Most every good kind of veiling is included in this Monday sale. You will find plenty of different meshes in black, white and flesh color.

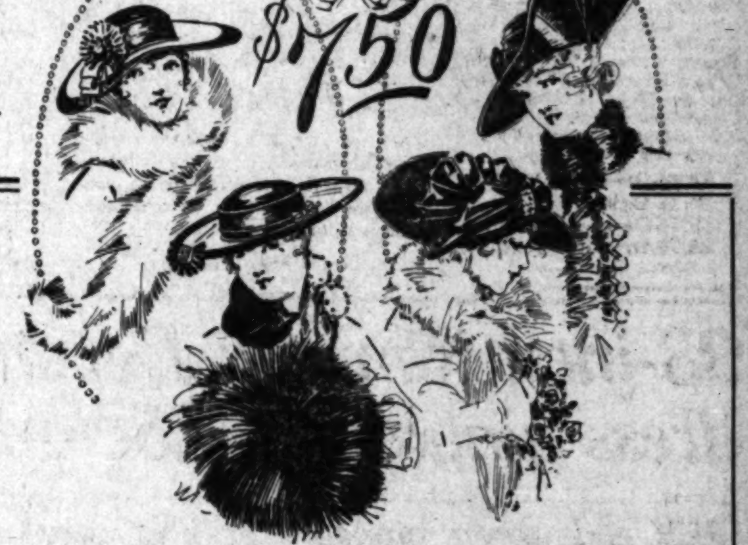
12½c neckwear at 5c

It's less than half price, we know, but we are anxious to have every piece of it cleared out by Monday night. Most every good kind included.

$1.75 to $4.75 embroidered flouncings at $1.25

They are all 45 inch skirt flouncings of very dainty voiles and organdies—not a few of them are embroidered in colors and have all-overs for blouses to match. They should be the center of a very busy buying carnival Monday at $1.25 a yard.

—Main Floor—Jacoby's.



Here are four of the new Faiebel hats at $7.50

With such charming hats as these ready for fall wear—a woman finds it hard to regret the passing of summer.

These very striking velvet models which we feature Monday are so delightfully light they can be worn even on these warm summer days with quite as much comfort as the straw and silk hats of summer.

Besides the large dashing models which are pictured there are some very quaint and clever turbans—and, too, there are models designed especially for middle aged women—and still others made just for autumn's dear silver haired lady.

Velvet is the favorite fabric—the colorings most in evidence are purple, taupe, brown, navy, dark green and black.

—Second Floor—Jacoby's.

What's new!

Among the new and striking trimming effects which is being used in the Fall's new hats is a Chinchilla ostrich plume. The plume itself is white with spotted edges in dark brown, imitating very closely the real Chinchilla furs.

A new motor bonnet which you will like is the "La Charme" with attached veil. It's priced $3.95.

Mr. Wad's Adventures at the Exposition

By E. W. Gale and Jeanne Redman

EXPOSITION GROUNDS, SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 26.—I have met three of the country's most famous men on the fair grounds this summer.

First, there was Mr. Bryan. It struck me that he was somewhat impressed with himself—somewhat; was, as Disraeli said of Gladstone, at least "intoxicated with the exuberance of his own verbosity."

Then Col. Roosevelt came. "At last," I said, "at last I have found a man with an adequate appreciation of his own greatness." The colonel almost did justice to himself.

But finally I had the pleasure of getting acquainted with Mr. Titus Wad—creature of Mr. Gale's imagination, but vested by those who have followed his career with an actual identity.

Yes, Mr. Wad is a real man. He has a real man's most real and most typical characteristic, in the fullness of its bloom and the perfection of its flower. Mr. Wad's opinion of himself is utterly sufficient. I think he is the superior of Bryan and, I might say, is the super-Roosevelt in the sublimity of his amusing self-conceit.

But, with all that, Mr. Wad did not make a speech. Titus has his faults, but he does not talk very much. He sought to hit us with the fact that he is a "drawing" feature, but not in the way his distinguished predecessors did it.

The most characteristic thing he did while here was to try to get a bag of popcorn by showing his press pass; and I think the cutest thing he said was his remark that, while the exposition might bestow the Blue Ribbon or the First Prize, you had to go to Los Angeles for the Tin Tag.

It struck me that Mr. Wad had an unconquerable repugnancy to anything like publicity and that he would have a spasm if by any chance his picture should be printed. Why is it that men in public life, like Mr. Wad, are all so averse to having the newspapers say anything about them and try so desperately to shoo away a reporter—especially a lady reporter? Why is it that they always run from a camera, and why is it that if an artist like Gale has any use for them he has to pen them?

ON THE CATERPILLAR.

Mr. Titus Wad was blowing breezily through the Court of the Universe with his inseparable Gale, when a gentleman in a tall silk hat accosted him.

"I am the chairman of the committee to——" he began.

Mr. Wad edged away. "No you don't," said he. "No you don't. I come from the part of the country where that shell game was first started. You try that on some other fellow who looks as green as I ain't."

"You are mistaken, Mr. Wad," the tall-hatted man went on urbanely. "I recognized you at once as the famous Mr. Titus Wad and I am chairman of the Welcoming Committee and——"

But Mr. Wad ran for a caterpillar train, dragging Gale along with him, and wagged his hand in derision at the disgusted committeeman. He rode that caterpillar with the air of the Kaiser entering Warsaw in his armored automobile.

Mr. Wad confided to Mr. Gale that they called it the caterpillar train because it wormed its way through the grounds.

ALL THE WADS.

Mr. Gale brought all the Wads to the exposition—Mr. Cicero Wad, Mrs. Wad and their son and daughter, and in their wake, Mr. Titus Wad. The exposition officials were up in arms when they heard that Mr. Gale and the Wads were coming; they got out an extra shift of guards in case T. Wad's tendencies should overcome him when in the presence of valuables, and they sent out notices to all the concessionaries that anyone answering to his description who might try to get into the concessions on the Zone on Mr. Gale's badge was not to be admitted without paying the price. They warned the exhibitors in the main exhibit palaces to keep their objets d'art under glass and an extra watch, and, above all, they ordered that all the best-looking cashiers and stenographers on the ground should be given a vacation. They informed the cafeteria in the Y.W.C.A. that they would not be responsible for anything taken during Mr. Wad's stay, and they sent an order to the Palace of Nibbling Arts to the effect that each person who applied at the counters was to be served only once. They put a few extra pickets in the exit turnstiles and a guard along the water front in case Titus should evade the turnstiles by swimming across the bay. They felt that, while it was highly improbable that Mr. Titus Wad would make more than one trip to the exposition, they must be sure that he got out of the grounds at night, and with as little excess baggage as possible.

All these preparations having been made on behalf of Mr. Titus Wad, the officials then turned their attention to Mr. Cicero and his family. They went at this in an entirely different way, and, while they made as many changes for him, they were in an opposite direction. They opened several places on the Zone which had been closed, and procured the best spielers obtainable, and in almost every instance they raised the price of admission.

They gave a description of Cicero to the gatemen and established the precedent that gentlemen must check their sticks and overcoats at the entrance to the exhibit palaces at 10 cents each.

Cicero was undaunted, however, and seemed bent upon seeing everything and doing everything in the grounds, regardless of the inroads made upon his pocketbook. He rode in an electriquette with Mrs. Wad, and got another for his son and daughter, for which he paid large damages, after it had been completely demolished by the young Oswald. Oswald's tendencies were purely predatory, and as yet show no signs of a close adherence to either his father or his cousin, Titus. He was a great bother to the family and almost wrecked their nerves, for not only did he narrowly escape death by collision a hundred times a day, but in the evening, when the rest of the party would have exhausted their resources and became panicky with fatigue, Oswald would get a new lease on life and start all over again, his energy and ingeniousness being absolutely unquenchable. He managed to break several bits of marble in the Palace of Fine Arts, for which his father paid without more than a slight revolt, while the Emergency Hospital at the exposition was kept busy caring for the limbs and odds and ends of humanity that lay in the wake of Oswald and the electriquette.

Oswald's pockets bulged mysteriously after his visits to the Palace of Horticulture, where every description of fruit is on exhibition, but not for sale, and, of course, he frankly haunted the Palace of Food Products. It was in the latter exhibit that he frequently met Mr. Titus Wad, who dined there exclusively. At least he was not seen at the New York Building, or the Inside Inn, or the "Old Faithful." The Wads thought they got a glimpse of him coming out of the cafeteria run by the Young Women's Christian Association, but that is doubtful.

The Wad family passed Titus several times during the course of the first day, and their greetings were of the most formal, although when "Tight" would run into them on the steps of a cafe he would be most gracious for the first few minutes, hoping against hope that he would be included in the list of guests, but he seemed to be the only person in the grounds for whom Cicero showed no disposition to pay. Cicero had an absurd notion that "Tight" could pay for himself.

The only amusement which Titus Wad permanently closed was the bull fight. Mr. Wad insisted upon appearing for one of the matadors and he failed to realize that Gracie, the venerable lady bull to be fought, was to be approached with bravado, but not injured. Mr. Wad rudely caught Gracie by one of her horns and slapped her in the face with his free hand. The Humane Society, which is for the protection of the bulls but not of matadors, arrested Mr. Wad and drove Gracie from the grounds. Since that hour the Zone has witnessed no more bull fights, and the glory of Spain has vanished from the fair. Mr. Wad bailed himself out and proceeded on his joyous course.

When Cicero took in the aeroscope, or, rather, when the aeroscope took up Cicero, the company refused to take any other passengers and made Mr. Wad pay for the whole car. At every ten-foot lift which this huge beam made heavenward the pilot emphasized the dangers of the trip to Mr. Wad by way of cautioning him to remain in his seat. Unfortunately, his warnings had the opposite effect. Cicero dropped to his knees in front of the pilot and prayed for him to return to earth. This, the pilot could not do until the awesome voyage amidair was concluded, and Cicero remained on his knees in an attitude of prayer the journey through. If he had not been bald-headed he would have turned gray on the spot.

Cicero had one supreme disappointment during his experiences at the fair. He visited the Crazy House, where everything is topsy-turvy, and stood for two hours at one spot watching a pneumatic tube disturbing a woman's skirts as she passed a certain hole in the floor. Cicero was feasting his eyes on what there was to be seen at this point with the greatest relish, when some person's cruelty inspired him to inform Cicero that the heroine of this adventure was only a man dressed for the part.

Mr. Wad spent $5 trying to win one of the jewels from the tower at a wheel of fortune where you had a chance at 10 cents a turn. [illegible] but unreformed, he spent another [illegible] trying to win an ostrich plume and when asked what he wanted with the splendid feather he said he could [illegible] it in decorating a chicken.

I interviewed Titus Wad after he had refreshed himself at one of the many vases in the vast expanse of desert that he had discovered in the exposition.

"Of course, you visited the [illegible] Pavilion?"

"Yes, and had some of their coffee. I told the Turk who brought it [illegible] it was wonderful. In fact, I said it so many times that he [illegible] asked me why I complimented [illegible] coffee so much. I told him [illegible] it."

"Have you seen any of your friends?"

"I started to go down to [illegible] to see one of my old [illegible] quaintances, but they told me [illegible] there he was dead. 'Must [illegible] sudden; he was alive when [illegible] home,' I said to the Chinaman [illegible] told me. 'Yes,' that Chink [illegible] must have heard you were coming [illegible]

"Yes; I realize it was a [illegible] to do; I have made many [illegible] up here; I have seen their [illegible] wherever I went—and it [illegible] has almost convinced me [illegible] Gale is amusing."

WOMEN'S WORK, WOMEN'S CLUBS.

Mrs. Harrington W. Hyde,
Prominent club woman of El Centro and a member of the press committee for her district, who today extends an invitation to the Los Angeles clubwomen to attend the Southern District Federation.

MRS. HARRINGTON W. HYDE of El Centro, who was chairman of the City Beautiful Committee of the Ten Thousand Club of the Imperial Valley, and is at present busy with plans for the coming meeting of the southern district, C.F.W.C., which convenes in El Centro November 9-12, and a prominent club woman of that district and also the State, is in Los Angeles on a summer visit, and today extends through the club columns of The Times a cordial invitation for our club women to attend the coming sessions in her district. Mrs. Hyde retains a membership in the Million and Woman's City clubs of this city.

County federation—that bone of contention for so many years in the State Federation, which was ejected speedily at the '15 convention—is thoroughly established in the southern district, and is certainly working well there.

The southern clubs are splendid examples of the influence women's clubs have had in the growth of town and city, and Mrs. Hyde's well-couched invitation gives an insight into the reason of the success of the clubs in the valley:

"Imperial county clubdom feels as important and excited as does the young matron who is about to give her first really big party. Not that she hasn't been hostess many times to her relatives and intimate friends. These were the kind of parties that could be given in her own little bungalow-home (by borrowing some silver and glass,) but now she will commandeer the most pretentious hostelry, summon the best caterer and engage the most popular entertainers, for this affair is different—Imperial county clubdom is going to entertain the southern district federation, C.F.W.C., November 9 and 12, inclusive!

"The Imperial Valley clubs are used to entertaining. Each club has its reciprocity day and is sure of a goodly number of visitors from the other clubs of the county. Even Calipatria's Woman's Club, when a baby of months old (but with over fifty members,) entertained her many guests—several of them were prominent members of the Los Angeles Friday Morning and Ebell clubs—with all the aplomb of a grown-up. And the Woman's Ten Thousand Club of El Centro had more than 100 guests, besides its own 200 members, at its reciprocity day meeting.

"I have attended the Imperial County Federation of Woman's Clubs, held in El Centro, Holtville, Brawley and Calexico, and it was a revelation to listen to the papers, addresses and discussions of these women of the desert and to hear the talented musicians both vocal and instrumental, and the refreshments were always dainty and lavish, but there was always the question of a suitable place to entertain. That troublesome question is answered as far as El Centro is concerned, for we now have the beautiful and commodious Barbara Worth Hotel. And that helped to make it possible for us to entertain the southern district, C.F.W.C.

"Not only do we expect the delegates from the sixty clubs of the five southern counties, but several presidents of the district federation and many of the State chairmen have declared it their intention to attend.

"This is the play time for most of the Imperial Valley women; many of them are sojourning in the mountain resorts or down by the sea; some shopping and visiting in this beautiful city. Most of them will pass through the gates of both expositions before returning home. The handiwork booth at the Imperial County Fair overflows with the beautiful handiwork representing the summer moments of these busy women. Millions of intricate stitches of embroidery and crochet! I could stand before that booth agape with wonder and admiration. There are others who take up a favorite course of reading or lectures or work at their music, then there are those who haunt your art galleries and those who loiter and dream and feast their eyes and thoughts with everything beautiful they can see and hear. Then as the summer wanes, all are glad to return to their desert homes, full of that vigor and enthusiasm that comes to those that mingle with many kindly strangers; to those who know how to play well.

"Mrs. A. H. Griswold, president of the Woman's Ten Thousand Club of El Centro, met Mrs. A. J. Lawton, president of the southern district C.F.W.C., last week and asked several of the prominent club women of Imperial county, who are in the city, to meet them to discuss plans for the annual convention that we are so enthusiastic about. Mrs. Lawton has planned a most interesting programme and many important matters will come up for discussion and decision, but the valley women will see to it that it is not all work and no play.

"There will be a reception at the Barbara Worth Hotel, an automobile ride through the north end of the valley, when the visitors will be given a luncheon by the Brawley club women; another day there will be an auto trip through the great cotton district of the southern end of the valley that extends beyond the international line into Mexico. And the women of the Ten Thousand Club of El Centro plan a [illegible] for one evening.

"So we extend an invitation to all club women, whether of the southern district or not. November should be the psychological moment to make that long-desired visit to Imperial Valley."

Pacific Coast Conference.

Among the women's organizations doing effective work in this city is the Los Angeles Needlework Guild, a branch of the Needlework Guild of America, national in its scope, with headquarters in Philadelphia and sections in all the large cities of America with one or two abroad.

The Los Angeles branch was established in 1895 by Mrs. R. H. Herron, who had worked in the Pittsburgh branch. Mrs. Herron became the first president, and held that position for eight years, when she resigned. Mrs. S. S. Salisbury was elected to succeed her, and served nine years. In 1912 Mrs. Boyle Workman was chosen head, and is still serving. It is a matter of great pride to the guild that in the twenty years of its existence as a guild there have been few changes in officers—but three presidents; one secretary, Mrs. Theodore Eisen, and two treasurers, Mrs. Moore and Mrs. O. P. Clark. Mrs. Herron is now honorary president.

The object of the organization is to collect and distribute new garments to meet the great need of authorized charities. In 1914 they distributed [illegible] new garments among forty-six charities, done through the help of the section presidents, the number of articles brought in by each varying from 109 to 1000. The work is local except in times of national disaster when they join forces with the Red Cross in general help. A unique feature is that each member may limit the amount of work she wishes to do, through the endless chain plan. Each section president is responsible for five directors, each director becomes responsible for ten members, and all members (including these officers) pledge two or more new articles (which may be purchased or made,) and a dime once each year. They always welcome new members.

In charge of the Los Angeles work are: Mrs. R. H. Herron, honorary president; Mrs. Boyle Workman, president; Mrs. W. J. Dawson, Mrs. Harry R. Callendar, Mrs. S. M. Mudd and Mrs. W. T. Barnett, vice-presidents; Mrs. Theodore Eisen, secretary; Mrs. C. S. Walton, assistant secretary, and Mrs. O. P. Clark, treasurer.

The national organization is to hold a conference in the Civic Auditorium at San Francisco, convening Monday, Sept. 13, at 10:30 a.m. Mrs. E. Percy Teal of Glenside, Pa., a member of the national board of directors, has been appointed to make the address and to give a general review of the work. Mrs. E. G. Denniston of San Francisco, who is president of the San Francisco branch, will preside at the meeting, which is a Pacific Coast conference.

The guild has placed an exhibit in the Palace of Education in San Francisco.

Temple Health Club.

The luncheon given by Mrs. D. E. Carrick at her attractive bungalow in Vermont Square on Wednesday to members of the Temple Health Club combined information and enjoyment. The affair was also pleasing to the eye as well as the inner man, for a profusion of purple and white asters decked the rooms and crimson rambler roses formed the table's centerpiece.

A health luncheon was the novelty. The menu was meatless, cakeless, pieless, pickleless and pepperless. The meat substitute, a walnut corn roast, was richer in protein than meat; the vegetable salad demonstrated the fact that a delicious salad could be concocted without the condiments, mustard and pepper. California's luscious figs and prunes furnished the carbohydrates; entire wheat bread and cottage cheese formed a perfectly-balanced menu. The foods were chosen with the motive of supplying the five food elements required for the upbuilding of the body. The home-made health coffee served was found to be quite as delicious as the genuine bean.

The value of the no-breakfast plan, as advocated by the club, was discussed and heartily indorsed as an aid to health and beauty. Exercises conducive to building up a strong and symmetrical body were demonstrated by Mesdames Wilkinson and Hansbrough, while Mrs. Beeby, who has recently returned from the exposition, recounted her impressions of the Jewel City. The hostess spoke entertainingly on the amusing side-lights of the recent State Federation of Women's Clubs which she attended as a delegate, and said but for the knowledge of health culture and benefits derived from correct living and proper exercise, she would not have been equal to the strenuous task.

Attends State Meeting.

Dr. Louise Harvey Clarke of Riverside, the recently-appointed press chairman for the southern district, C.F.W.C., and Mrs. Frank Gibson of Los Angeles, member of the State Committee on Industrial and Social Relations, were attendants at the State Executive Board meeting called by Mrs. Edward Dexter Knight in San Francisco for Saturday of last week.

Miss Jessica Lee Briggs of the north has been appointed State chairman of press, a most deserving tribute to her ability. No one woman has worked harder in local, district and State federation than Miss Briggs, who, as local chairman of the 1915 San Francisco Committee for the C.F.W.C., was largely responsible for the excellent arrangement of details of the last convention. She is young, strong and clever and has been one of our most indefatigable workers.

Woman's City Club.

The Programme Committee for the Woman's City Club, with Mrs. Frank Garrett, chairman, announces for tomorrow's session a discussion of the ward system, and whether it is advantageous to municipal government. Speakers will be R. W. Dromgold and Marshall Stimson.

The talk will be followed by questions and discussions from the floor. There will be no meetings of the club on September 6 and 13, as the club then has its annual vacation.

R. E. Lee Chapter, U.D.C.

A fine programme has been arranged by Mrs. P. H. Brady for the September meeting of the Robert E. Lee Chapter, U.D.C. Mrs. John David Beal is to sing Mary Martin's song cycle, "In a California Garden," with the composer at the piano. There will also be some interesting work in transposition by Master William Harsh and Misses Virginia Parsons and Mary Harsh, three pupils of the composer.

The officers of the chapter will constitute the Hospitality Committee.

Parent-Teachers.

Mrs. Thomas J. Atchley, corresponding secretary, has sent out the following notice: "The regular meeting of the Los Angeles Federation of Parent-Teacher Associations will be held at Sycamore Grove next Thursday morning at 10:30 o'clock. Basket luncheon at noon. Coffee will be served. A report of the National Congress of Mothers' Convention held in Portland, Or., and the California Congress held in San Francisco will be given."

Business Woman's Civic Club.

The Business Woman's Civic Club will hold its regular meeting tomorrow night at 7 o'clock in the lecture hall of the Public Library, tenth floor Metropolitan Building.

The programme, to which the public is invited, will include selections by Miss Evalyn Moore and Miss Margaret Campbell.

Last Monday Mrs. E. K. Foster talked on "Recent Legislation." She spoke especially of the child-labor bill, the parent-teacher bill and the pure-milk bill, for which she worked at the last session of the Legislature.

Whittier Woman's Club.

After a quiescent summer vacation the Whittier Woman's Club began its preliminary fall activities last Wednesday afternoon with a meeting of the officers and the Executive Committee. Some general plans for the coming year were decided upon. Mrs. Oval Redmon is to be the chairman of the Programme Committee, and the committee will at once proceed with the programme for the year, which will be published in the form of a year book, the year-book plan having been again adopted at Wednesday's meeting. Plans were made for the initial meeting of the year, which will be October 16, at which time the officers of the club will be at home to the club members.

Gardena Progressive Club.

The Wednesday Progressive Club of Gardena opens its new year next Wednesday with a luncheon at 12:15 o'clock at the Woman's Club House. A fine programme will be given, and no doubt every member will be present to greet the new president, Mrs. O. C. Olds.

Outlook Association.

Regular board meetings of the Outlook Association Executive Committee will be held every Thursday morning at 10:30 o'clock at the downtown headquarters of the club, No. 1012 Broadway Central Building. At the meeting last Wednesday it was decided that the association should have representatives present at each of the departments of city government.

Rosecrans Study Club.

The directors of the Rosecrans Study Club met last Friday afternoon in the assembly-rooms of the Times Building to arrange the calendar for the coming year's work.

Present were Mrs. Joseph E. Coleman, president; Mrs. Charles Sayers, vice-president; Mrs. Emily Daniels, treasurer; Mrs. Wade Gray, corresponding secretary, and two directors, Mmes. E. L. Haff and T. W. Barton.

Much time and effort have been spent on arranging the year book, which promises a fine season of work and study, interspersed with a number of pleasant social events. The second Wednesday of each month has been set aside for a social afternoon. Mrs. Belle Prudhomme has been appointed chairman on the committee for the social affair in September, and a delightful afternoon is anticipated.

The following committees and department workers have been chosen for 1915-16:

Programme—Mrs. Charles S. Sayers, chairman, with Mmes. T. W. Barton, B. F. Hilliker, M. A. Stratton, J. W. Morris, J. H. Hunter, Julia Moore and Maude Burdick.

Investigation—Mrs. L. F. Richardson, chairman, and Mmes. E. L. Haff and L. Grant.

Hospitality—Mrs. Belle Prudhomme, chairman, and Mmes. B. F. Hilliker, W. Webb, Carrie L. Field, R. C. Kelly, J. A. Stimpson and L. F. Richardson.

Printing and Year Book—Mrs. E. L. Haff, chairman, and Mmes. T. W. Barton, J. A. Stimpson and Emily Daniels.

Club House Fund—Mrs. M. A. Stratton, chairman, and Mmes. B. F. Hilliker, L. E. Alexander and A. E. Johnson, treasurer.

Civic Department—Mrs. Addie E. Johnson, Mrs. L. Grant and Mrs. M. A. Brooks.

Philanthropy—Mrs. J. W. Morris, Mrs. M. A. Stratton, Mrs. Emily Daniels, Mrs. R. C. Kelly, Mrs. Sadie Miller and Mrs. Sarah J. Williams.

Music—Mrs. Margaret Goodwin, Mrs. R. C. Hunter, Mrs. Jessie Ketchum and Mrs. Eva Chilton.

Literature and Art—Mrs. Belle Whiles, Mrs. A. A. Zizzick and Mrs. L. F. Richardson.

Luncheon Conference.

Mrs. James S. Scherfee, president of the Outlook Association, entertained a group of well known women leaders in civic and State legislation at a luncheon conference at Bullock's tea room last Tuesday. The object of the conference was to consider means of developing a clearing house for civic thought and activity and for the organization of educational circles throughout the city and county.

Among the guests were Mrs. Seward Simons, President of the Friday Morning Club; Mrs. Herbert Cable, president of L. A. District Federation; Mrs. E. R. Brainerd, president Woman's City Club and vice-president Friday Morning Club; Mrs. D. C. McCan, president Los Angeles Civil Service Commission; Mrs. Charles Farwell Edson, State Industrial Commissioner, Mrs. E. C. Bellows, former president Ebell Club, Mrs. E. K. Foster, chairman public affairs, Friday Morning Club, and president Juvenile Protective Association; Miss Mary Foy, president California Woman's Democratic League; Mrs. Fannie Cunningham, and Miss Louise Carr.

The Sunshine Club.

Mrs. Joseph Millard of No. 1936 Halldale street will entertain the ladies of the Sunshine Club and their friends at an informal afternoon card party next Wednesday to be followed by dancing and cards in the evening. A number of features will add to the enjoyment of the function. A band of colored singers hidden in a leafy bower will give instrumental and vocal selections. Japanese lanterns and other appropriate decorations will add variety and beauty and refreshments will be served. Those assisting are Mrs. Floyd Baker, Mrs. Hill, Mrs. Stoddard and Mrs. M. Dawson.

Mrs. Burdette Honored.

Mrs. Robert Burdette of Pasadena and the Los Angeles District has been elected chairman of the nominating committee of the Woman's Legislative Council of California, and Miss Julia George of San Francisco is chairman of the Constitutional Revision Committee for the same organization, whose executive board met recently to perfect plans for the annual meeting of the Council which will be held in San Francisco during the last week in October.

Mrs. J. H. Harbaugh of San Joaquin is president. The council considers matters of legislative importance which the California Federation of Women's Clubs and other women's organizations wish to present for enactment.

Elected Vice-President.

Mrs. Edward Dexter Knight who automatically succeeded Mrs. Emily Hoppin as president of the C.F.W.C. upon the latter's passing, at the last executive board meeting held in San Francisco, had the board take action upon the vacancy in the office of vice-president, which resulted in the choice of Mrs. A. F. Jones of Oroville. The election of the board is gratifying to Mrs. Jones's many friends of the South, and will do much to cement the North and South in united federation work.

Clubwoman in New Field.

Mrs. Chauncey Higbee, prominent member of the Channel and other Los Angeles clubs, has opened a booking bureau and is now busily employed with the programme committees of various woman's clubs in the State. She will be associated with L. E. Behymer.

Mrs. Higbee has come in from her summer residence at Sierra Madre and will travel from now until the opening of the club season.

RUSSIAN AMAZONS.

About Four Hundred Women Believed to be Serving in the Czar's Army, Chiefly from Siberia.

[London Graphic:] In Russia there are no fewer than 400 women bearing arms, the majority of them finding a place in the Siberian regiments. The sex of fifty has been revealed by death or wounds. This number is quite remarkable when one considers the obstacles to be surmounted in eluding or circumventing the recruiting officials. For even in Russia women are not supposed to be soldiers.

Kokovtseva is a colonel in command of the Sixth Ural Cossack Regiment. She was twice wounded while fighting in East Prussia, and has received for her bravery the honor of the Cross of St. George, together with the promise of a military pension. Years ago her husband had served in a Cossack regiment, and Kokovtseva managed to get into the same regiment when the war began.

Quite recently came the news from Kief of a gallant girl officer in a regiment of Don Cossacks, Alexandra Ephimovna Lagareva, who showed unusual initiative and courage. She and a handful of men of her detachment were captured by the Germans, and locked up in a church. When all was still, the prisoners broke a window and escaped. Alexandra herself killing the sentry with a stone.

The little force, seven in all, managed to recover their horses, and actually succeeded in capturing a patrol of eighteen Uhlans, securing important documents into the bargain. These papers Alexandra delivered into the hands of the Russian general.

Literary.

POOR YIELD FOR UNKNOWN AUTHOR

CRITIC TELLS ABOUT CHANGED PUBLISHING CONDITIONS.

Magazines Still Offer Practicable Road to Reputation, However, She Says—Surprise Twist to Old Theme is Fashion in Fiction Nowadays. Fewer, Better Periodicals Needed.

Mrs. Rachel West Clement, one of the best-known literary agents and critics of the East, is now in Pasadena, where she intends to spend the winter. She is constantly in close touch with publishing conditions and says the market has been seriously affected of late—presumably by the war; that it is becoming more and more difficult for the unknown author to "break into" the publishers' list with new books, though the magazines still offer profitable fields where a reputation may be made.

"There are fashions in fictions just as in most other things," said Mrs. Clement yesterday, "and this is a time when magazine editors are demanding a certain type and style of short story that is most decidedly different from those of even a few years ago.

"The short-story writer of today may look in vain for something 'new,' and he may make liberal use of the old, tried, hackneyed themes so long as he works in a 'surprise finish,' the 'twist,' or any one of the very modern treatments that serve to give the 'punch,' 'ginger,' slapstick effect that editors of most of the magazines are asking for.

"There has to be quick action, something happening on every page, to suit the 'breezy' magazines.

"There never was a time when so many persons were writing and trying to publish. It naturally follows that very much of what is written falls below the standard of what we like to consider 'worth while.'

"In the great avalanche of stuff offered for sale much that is worthless, futile and objectless does get into print. New magazines spring up overnight and publish a lot of cheap stories—and go out just as swiftly.

"It is a matter of great regret that we cannot have fewer magazines and those few improved in style and quality. It is also a great pity that people who want to write will not stop a moment to think that before they write they should have something to say. We would not think of attempting to paint a portrait at one sitting, or of composing a symphony without apprenticeship, but many people think they can dash off a short story after dinner and be carried well on their way to fame by this cheap, shoddy work. I have known writers to be really peeved because they couldn't sell stories dashed off in an evening. When they give more attention to the technique and construction and workmanship of writing we shall have much better stories and magazines."

FOR COAST DEFENSES.

National Legislators Tomorrow Will Discuss Needs of Strengthening Military Protection.

The Pacific Coast Defense League, recently organized to secure legislation in the national and State Legislatures, providing a more adequate military and naval defense system for the Pacific Coast, will be tendered a reception by the New Jersey Association of Los Angeles tomorrow night in the assembly-rooms on the second floor of the Times Building.

Senator Works, Congressman Stevens, Capt. E. G. Mettler, Seventh Regiment, N.G.C., and other speakers will discuss the present lack of defense and outline methods of securing the desired legislation.

In addition to a programme of speeches and military music, there will be recitations, vocal and instrumental solos, patriotic songs and dancing.

Delegations from the Sons of Veterans, Spanish-American War Veterans, Grand Army Corps, Women's Relief Corps, Daughters of Veterans, National Guard and Naval Militia as well as numerous other citizens interested in national defense, will attend.

Musical Festival Soloist Becomes Bride of Well-known Merchant of San Francisco.

The many friends of Mrs. Frank King Clark, who was soloist at the Musical Festival held in Los Angeles last month, will learn with interest of her marriage to Isaac O. Upham, a well-known merchant of San Francisco and president of the Upham Stationary Company.

The wedding was an extremely simple affair, solemnized quietly at the home in San Francisco of Mrs. John McNear, an old family friend, where the bride was visiting.

Mrs. R. H. Oakley, mother of Mrs. Clark, is at present visiting in this city, the house guest of Mrs. J. R. Lewis, of No. 1511 Manhattan place, though she will go to the Bay City to join her daughter.

Steal German Sword Knots.

[St. Joseph News-Press:] The Brussels ketjes—street boys—have found a new method of annoying the German soldiers. They carry scissors in their sleeves, and when they get close to a German soldier in a crowd they cut off the leather knot of his sword and carry it away as a trophy.

A boy of 15 has just been sentenced to three months' imprisonment for having boasted that he had secured fifty-four of these knots. A Belgian banker is said to have offered to anyone who will relieve Bissing of his sword knot. The are generally sold for the the Belgian Red Cross, and bring higher prices than any trophies.

SHADOWS AND THE ZONE.

Dramatic Critic Reviews Essential Features of Panama-Pacific Exposition's Amusement Lane in Brief, But Not Until He Has Uncovered Some Interesting Figures of the Past in Montgomery Street.

BY HENRY CHRISTEEN WARNACK

THE exposition at San Francisco lives in the light. In fact the only perfectly good stage stars I ever observed were those in the show called Creation. To the thunder of a huge organ, a voice called out of the darkness, "And the evening and the morning were the first day."

As this had happened in the Garden of Eden and not on the North Pacific Coast I let the statement pass. Secretly, I entertained the idea that it would have taken even the Lord himself much longer to make light in San Francisco. Fortunately these stars are made out of electricity and not sunlight, so they shine with regularity.

It was in the ancient Manger Cafe that I decided to go down to the fair and write up the attractions of the Zone, so I brushed a pigeon from each shoulder, gracefully swallowed the last three yards of spaghetti on my fork, kicked a coonskin at my feet through a whirl of sawdust and crept down the rickety stairs.

The sun was not shining as usual, so I decided to furnish my own illumination by stopping at the Bank Exchange and there propping myself against a corner that Robert Louis Stevenson had already helped to wear smooth.

It is ancient history to most of you that the flagging on the floor, the lunch table and the bar in this fire-defying saloon on the corner of Washington and Montgomery streets were brought around the Horn in 1852. A visit to this place is sure to be disastrous to a man who is in a hurry. I had to start to the Zone on three different days, by way of the Bank Exchange, before I ever arrived there.

Not that one is entertained too well, for in his forty-eight years of proprietorship Duncan Nicol has never allowed any guest to purchase more than three drinks, nor anyone else to purchase them for him.

When Duncan saw me in Stevenson's corner, on my first visit, he decided what I ought to drink (of course it was his famous Peruvian Pisco punch,) gravely ordered it for me and reached over in my vest pocket for his pinch of gold dust by way of payment. Not wearing any vest, I, of course, had no gold dust and was greatly relieved when I found that a more modern medium of exchange would suffice.

Then Duncan explained that he was not really disappointed because Gen. U. S. Grant, when he was a young captain; Edwin Booth, Barrett, John McCullough and a number of the boys who made that headquarters when they were in the city, had often used $20 gold pieces in lieu of dust.

When the Bank Exchange was established in 1863, no drink was sold for less than 25 cents and no gambling was allowed in the house. It was always kept so that William C. Ralston and the pioneers of big enterprises could transact all of their great business there—so that any customer could bring his wife or daughter for a drink. There has probably never been a day since then when women of the highest respectability have not patronized the open bar.

I considered it a remarkable experience for anything so casual, when Nicol was telling me something that Ralston had remarked to Barrett just after building a theater for him, that Horace Dunn looked up from his paper and mildly corrected Nicol in some minor particular.

Now Dunn came to San Francisco in 1850, whereas Nicol did not get there until 1852, and Dunn has occupied the same seat in the little anteroom of the bar for sixty-two years, with the exception of a very few days. Besides, Dunn is 85 and retired, whereas Nicol is only 76 and still active in running his business, so it was only natural that Nicol should have accepted the correction with the best of grace.

A little later Mr. Dunn handed me an article to submit to The Times for publication, which he thought would be timely, as it was about the Japanese question. It was timely, but it rather amused me that the judge had prepared it exactly forty-one years ago. Out of concession to modernism, I suggested that he rewrite the introduction.

Then I asked Duncan Nicol what I should see on the Zone by way of leading to criticism for my Sunday article and Nicol proceeded to tell me what he thought George Barnes would have written in the old Call. Barnes had been dramatic critic of the Call for sixty-three years and Nicol has his photograph hung up alongside of a black-and-white etching of the House of Lords in session and some engravings of later battles in the French Revolution.

Out of respect to Mr. Nicol, I hastened to make one correction of a false impression with regard to Jenny Lind. There was a Jenny Lind Theater at San Francisco, and a Jenny Lind sang there, but she was not the world-famed nightingale, but a western girl who used that name. Old San Francisco would not tell a falsehood for a little fame. Besides it doesn't need it.

When I looked at the monument to Stevenson in Portsmouth Square I hardly dreamed of the good fortune of meeting some of the men with whom he spent all of his days while in the old town. I never expected to sit in the same seats that he and Barrett and Barnes and so many of the great men from literature and the stage had occupied for some hours through many years. That is why I was a long time getting to the Zone. And if this interests you as it did me I am afraid you will never follow me

Five-star Production Vies with Shaw Play.

Bills Unchanged at Burbank and Morosco.

Orpheum Line-up and Others are Promising.

"The New Henrietta," presented by an all-star cast, will be the attraction at the Majestic this week, beginning tomorrow night. Bronson Howard's "The Henrietta" was Stuart Robson's starring vehicle for several seasons, and has been rewritten by the well-known playwright Winchell Smith, author of "The Fortune Hunter" and other big successes. The new version is said to possess brilliant dialogue as well as an absorbing plot.

William H. Crane, Amelia Bingham, Mabel Taliaferro, Maclyn Arbuckle, Thomas W. Ross, these are the stars in the cast, and the company includes also Rosalind Coghlan, Rose Coghlan's daughter; Mrs. Woodthorpe, Lydia Thompson's daughter; Arthur Hull, former Belasco Theater favorite, and Malcolm Bradley, former leading man with Sothern and Marlowe.

"Omar, the Tent Maker," with Guy Bates Post in the leading role, will be the attraction at the Majestic immediately following "The New Henrietta."

Mason.

Mrs. Patrick Campbell, the famous actress, comes to the Mason tomorrow night for a week's engagement. It is over seven years since the noted exponent of Pinero drama has visited this city.

"Pygmalion," Shaw's latest play, will be seen here for the first time tomorrow night. It is said that Mrs. Campbell's transition from the girl of the gutter to the woman of the world, as portrayed in this play, is one of her most artistic achievements.

The week's programme will be as follows: "Pygmalion," Monday and Tuesday evenings and Wednesday matinee; "The Second Mrs. Tanqueray," by A. W. Pinero, Wednesday and Thursday evenings, and "Searchlights," a new play by Horace Annesley Vachell, Friday and Saturday evenings and Saturday matinee.

Margaret Anglin in her most successful comedy, one of the big hits of last season in New York, "Beverley's Balance," will follow Mrs. Campbell.

Burbank.

So great has been the success of "The Yellow Ticket" at the Burbank, with Marjorie Rambeau and Louis Bennison in the leading roles, that it has been decided to retain the play for still another week, beginning with today's matinee.

The success of "The Yellow Ticket" is a remarkable stock achievement.

Morosco.

"So Long Letty," the Morosco-Harris success, with its tuneful music and pretty girls, and its all-star cast, will open its ninth big week tonight at the Morosco. It looks as if "So Long Letty" was going to break the big ten weeks' record of "Peg o' My Heart."

Orpheum.

"The Society Buds," a tabloid musical comedy, presented by Jesse Lasky, with Gladys Clark and Henry Bergman in the leading roles, has the top place on the Orpheum bill which opens tomorrow afternoon. Miss Clark

MELBA TO OPEN OUR SEASON.

ARRANGES TO STOP OVER HERE ON WAY EAST.

Concert to be Given September Seventeenth at Trinity—Organ Recital this Afternoon to Feature Middle Western Singer—Notes and Comment on Local Music.

When such a queen of song as Melba opens a Los Angeles musical season it may be truly said the high gods of the art are in a humor to smile on the city's artistic destinies for that year. Such good fortune, therefore, may now be predicated present one.

Melba will appear at Trinity Auditorium September 17. She is now on her way to the United States from Australia. It was her original intention to go direct to the Maine festival, where she is to open her tour, but she has been prevailed upon by Impresario Behymer to stop over and give a concert in this city.

Melba is a name to conjure with in the world of art, and there is absolute certainty that she will be greeted by a huge audience upon her appearance here. Her heaven-born gifts have won for her a name which has penetrated to all manner of odd corners on the globe.

For the past year she has been in Australia, her native country, and has appeared in a number of large concerts in the Antipodes. Many of these were for the raising of war-relief funds.

Trinity Programme.

"Gems from opera and romance" will be offered on the programme of Dr. Bruce Gordon Kingsley, organist, this afternoon at Trinity Auditorium at 3 p.m. He will be assisted by Mrs. Frederick Rossiter, lyric soprano. Mrs. Rossiter, before coming to this city, sang extensively in Chicago and the Middle West, where she enjoyed a reputation for excellent vocal and interpretative attainments.

Following is the programme:

Overture, "Oberon"	Von Weber
Dr. Kingsley.
Polonaise, "Je suis Titania," from "Mignon"	Thomas
Mrs. Rossiter.
Symphonic poem, "The Spinning Wheel of Omphale"	Saint-Saens
Dr. Kingsley.
Gavotte	Bach
Dr. Kingsley.
Waltz song, "Love in Springtime"	Arditi
Mrs. Rossiter.
"In My Neighbor's Garden"	Nevin
Dr. Kingsley.
Overture, "William Tell"	Rossini
Dr. Kingsley.

Omar Music.

One of the most elusively charming elements in the success of "Omar the Tentmaker," which opens here next week, has been the artistic incidental music composed by Anita Baldwin, well-known daughter of "Lucky" Baldwin. She has caught the spirit of the text and has given it a thoroughly adequate setting, which is atmospheric in the extreme.

The oriental settings suggest the soft, undulating rhythms pertinent to the Persian temperament, and the composer has observed the feeling inspired throughout her work. The music is infrequently dramatic, although it touches some rather poignant depths of lyricism in certain of the more compellingly pathetic scenes.

Well Received.

Molly Byerly Wilson was tendered a very flattering reception upon her appearance at the San Diego fair recently. She sang in the open air with the organ and also in the blue room of the Southern California Counties Building, where she was also tendered a reception. Besides the exposition recital she gave several other programmes during her stay in the southern city.

The following press comment was made upon her work at the fair: "Miss Wilson has a rich, pleasing, sonorous, contralto voice of great power, which she uses with ease and intelligence. Added to these advantages is the further one of excellent enunciation. Although Miss Wilson's specialty is German lieder, her Italian is good, and she responded to the exacting demands of the Handel aria in a manner that indicated praiseworthy musicianship."

School of Opera.

Los Angeles is soon to have a school of opera. The project is one which will undoubtedly aid to some extent in securing that much-desired asset in this section, a permanent operatic organization.

The school, under the direction of William F. Rochester, who for nearly thirty years has been closely associated with large operatic companies of this country and England, is to open at the Gamut Club September 6.

It is the stated purpose of this school to give many public performances of quartette, quintette and larger scenes with principals only, or to present, if possible, complete operas with chorus and orchestra.

Beverly Programme.

A programme of rather rare interest will be given by Nell Lockwood, contralto, this evening at the Beverly Hills Hotel. She will be assisted by Glenn Knight, accompanist, and the Beverly Trio. All the numbers will be oriental in character, including sacred songs and chants of the Egyptian, songs of Persia and of India. Compositions of Amy Woodforde Finden and Liza Lehman will be included.

Repertoire Recitals.

Miss Margaret Goetz will open her seventh season of repertoire recitals September 8. The programme of that day will be given over to the folk songs of many nations. Other programmes have been arranged as follows: Lieder of Robert Franz, September 22; American composers, October 6; selections from programmes of coming great visiting artists—Destinn, Alda, Gadski, Craft, Schumann-Heink and others—October 20 and November 3. These recitals will be held Wednesdays at 3 p.m. at Blanchard Hall.

MUSIC NOTES.

The following were the participants in a children's recital recently given at the Von Stein Academy of Music: Vera von Stein, Vera Culp, Jane Lord, Jack Stahl, Robert Duncan, Doris Wilder, Ruth Henly, Edward Randell, Lorraine Small, Virginia Clark, Myrtle von Stein, Antonio Echezarreta, Miguel Echezarreta, Hazel von Stein and Hubert Tucker.

Kathleen Howard, who sang the part of Myriel in "Fairyland" last July, is to appear in a recital before the bankers' convention, Seattle, Wash. She has also been engaged for several other recital appearances during the fall.

Josef Hoffman will be soloist with the Symphony Society of New York, Walter Damroch, conductor, on its spring tour, which will take in the Pacific Coast.

Among the principal Victor records for September are "Knowest Thou the Land," sung by Geraldine Farrar, with Fritz Kriesler, obligato. The violinist also renders a Chopin Mazurka, and another feature is "Thine Eyes," given by Frances Alda, with Mischa Elman playing the violin obligato. There are many other new records of interest.

Golden-voiced singer.

Mme. Nellie Melba, who will open the musical season here, appearing in a concert September 17, at Trinity Auditorium.

ART AND ARTISTS.

BY ANTONY ANDERSON.

(From "Kubla Khan.")

The shadow of the dome of pleasure
Floated midway on the waves,
Where was heard the mingled measure
From the fountain and the caves.
It was a miracle of rare device.
A sunny pleasure-dome with caves of ice!
A damsel with a dulcimer
In a vision once I saw:
It was an Abyssinian maid,
And on her dulcimer she played,
Singing of Mount Abora.
Could I revive within me
Her symphony and song,
To such deep delight 'twould win me,
That with music loud and long
I would build that dome in air,
That sunny dome! those caves of ice!
—[Coleridge.

Two on a Holiday.

Success may be spelled in several ways, and when a man has won the right to spell it in both he may also be permitted to begin the word with a capital S. For most men the small letter must suffice—and often it should be written very small indeed.

Theoretically, the artist is never a good man of business. Actually, he is sometimes acutely clever in his dealings with the buyer. Not because he considers the monetary returns for his wares to be of importance, except as they help to fix, so to speak, a standard of appreciation. When lovers of pictures are willing to pay good round dollars, and many of them, for a few square inches of painted canvas, the painter may reasonably believe that his work has something in it that is much to be desired. He knows, of course, that money is no real criterion of merit, but, being human like the rest of us, he also knows that "money talks," and immediately proceeds to rake in all he can. This is perfectly right and need not militate against his artistic ideals. And it permits him to spell success in the way of the world and the way of art.

These reflections—sage or otherwise—came to me on a recent flying visit to Laguna Beach, where two of America's most eminent painters are taking a holiday that is almost free from pigments and turpentine. They have come from New York to play, not to paint, and they have played consistently for several months, and will continue to play for another fortnight or two. The painters are Gardner Symons and Louis Betts. The hills and the sea have seduced Symons only a very little, and Betts has almost resisted the "types." Neither man, of course, has quite escaped—for the painter will paint when subject and canvas are within hailing distance.

I had heard of their holiday humor and I did not go to Laguna Beach to look at the late pictures of these successful painters. Though, to be sure, I did see a few—some virile outdoor studies that Symons made for his own pleasure on a recent fishing trip to Bear Lake, and some stunning figures, posed in sunlight, that Betts had done to relieve the tension of too many indoor portraits of magnates and grand dames. In short, I, too, was in a holiday humor, and I went for a handshake and a chat. So much of the talk as I remember I will give, with apologies to the painters for the much more I have forgotten. What does it matter between friends?

Gardner Symons, my good friend of five or six years' standing, met me with his car at Santa Ana—painters have cars in these piping times—and as we bowled along the smooth new road that leads to his studio at Arch Beach I plied him with a few questions I had long held up my sleeve for such as he, questions as to what he thought of art conditions, present and future, in Southern California. He has just arrived from two years of London and New York—two years of phenomenal successes, indeed—and I knew that his scrutiny and his insight would be fresh and unbiased.

His answers gave an even rosier glow to all my cherished hopes. His enthusiasm outstripped mine. His prophecies held many glories.

Said he: "Even two years of absence make me marvel at the growth of Los Angeles, the most typical of American cities—its growth in material ways, as a matter of course, but still more its growth in artistic accomplishment and appreciation. Your men of affairs are still too busy to buy pictures, too much preoccupied with building and money-making, but when they once do begin to buy—well, then things will happen with a rush. It has been so in other big cities, New York and Chicago, and Los Angeles will follow suit, for that's the way the game is played. One rich and influential man will get the 'bug,' his friends will be inoculated, and presently it will be the correct and only thing to have a gallery of pictures in every well-appointed mansion. The rule never fails.

"No fear but that the supply will be quite equal to the demand. Already you have more than a handful of strong and competent painters in Los Angeles. The stimulating appreciation of purchase will impel them to paint more and better. Painters of fame will be attracted from every corner of America, and the ball will roll on by its own momentum, growing ever bigger and bigger. I firmly believe that Southern California will be the favored seat of a new renaissance in all the arts, and that it will come soon."

After luncheon, when we were safely ensconced in the attractive studio overlooking the lucent blues and greens and purples of the waters round the rocks at Arch Beach, we talked of other important matters in art. "When fifty painters and sculptors were suddenly shifted from Paris to New York less than a year ago," said Symons, "we all feared that there would be a tremendous 'slump' in the market, that they and we would suffer together. Nothing of the sort happened. They were at once swallowed up and assimilated, so to say, making scarcely a ripple on the placid surface of things. Strange to say, the war has not affected in the least the New York picture market. Speaking for myself alone, I have sold as many pictures this year as last, falling below no year but my 'banner year'—and banner years cannot be expected to repeat themselves. Placing the hopes and fears for art in America side by side, I would say that the hopes are decidedly the stronger, and that they will remain so. And, as I have intimated, the hopes for Los Angeles are the strongest of all."

Our talk drifted on to many things—from cabbages to kings, from fisherman's luck to painter's pluck. "For the young and struggling artist," said the famous landscape painter, "poverty is not a handicap, but a help. It is generally the rich young fellow who fails, for he has not the great stimulus to success—the absolute necessity for diligence, for 'getting on.' He may quit work to suit his mood, but the poor boy dare not. So the youth in the garret keeps pegging away, and finally 'gets there with both feet,' to use our forceful American phrase. If the man of talent is in earnest he need not despair, for in his blackest moment some one will always come forward and slap him on the shoulder, and say: 'Good stuff you're doing, old man. Keep it up and you're sure to win out.' Such a friend will always be there when needed—I have never known the rule to fail. Somehow, though the rich young man who paints is also in need of him, he does not appear. In truth, inherited wealth is the great hinrance to success in the arts."

Then we drove over to the house, a block or two behind the sea, at Laguna Beach, that Louis Betts has taken for the summer. The artist threw up half a dozen important portrait commissions for this well-earned opportunity to loaf and invite his soul. But no loafing painter ever gets far away from the smell of paint, and we found Betts, in a shocking straw hat, working on a modern Carmen, a charming, dark-eyed, dark-skinned girl posing on the veranda. The artist waved us away, telling us we might come back in half an hour, which we did.

The fine virility of Louis Betts's painting is also a characteristic of himself. Metaphorically speaking, he, too, is full of strong, yet harmonious, color and drawing. Looking at him, you know the manner of painting from the man—direct and forceful, essentially masculine.

One tremendously big canvas had just been "laid in" the day before, and, at Symons's request, the painter brought it out to show it to us—a life-size study of a western girl in riding habit standing in front of her pony against a background of Laguna hills. It was a mere frottee of color, yet already it spoke of the masterly technique that would later give it splendid vitality and forcefulness.

I propounded a pet theory of mine, that artists, being highly sensitized, had felt the coming war, and that it had made them mad—many of them—turning them into primitives, cubists and futurists.

Louis Betts's expressive eyes lit up. "That's interesting," said he, "and probably true enough. And you will note that, as the war progresses, the frenzy of the cubists and futurists is abating. Sanity in art is already beginning to set in."

"We in the West," I declared, "have never gone very far in that insanity. In fact, we have remained almost untouched by New York verdicts. We form our own opinions about the works of the modern painters when we, now and again, are given the opportunity to see them. We do not accept without question the verdicts of the eastern critics. This independence may be due to provincialism—and it may be western. At any rate, it exists to a marked degree. If we are not impressed by fads and faddists that's probably because our senses have not been jaded by an endless multiplicity of pictures. Sane art is stimulating enough for us."

"Let us hope it will always remain so," answered the portrait painter. "The modern faddists—I mention no names—are often good painters gone astray through the itch for notoriety. To attract attention, they draw badly, color crudely, and the critics, knowing them to be originally good painters, are puzzled and perplexed by the change in 'manner,' but finally fall for the bait, declaring it to be a new note in art. Sad to say, fakism in art is not confined to the little incompetents — though, of course, a really big man is never guilty of it."

EDUCATORS, SCIENTISTS.

Dr. Guy M. Whipple, professor of educational psychology in the University of Illinois, says the characteristic of present day educational work is the replacement of opinion and rule of thumb by investigation and tests. Real efficiency is the present day cry in the school as well as in industry. Scientific management has a place in education as much as in business.

Ambrose Swasey, who recently gave $250,000 to start an engineering foundation, which he hopes will do for the allied engineering professions what the Cleveland, Carnegie, Rockefeller and Sage foundations are doing, lives in Cleveland, O., and has an international reputation as a builder of telescopes. He built the Lick Observatory and is now building the seventy-two inch reflecting telescope for the Canadian government. He was born at Exeter, N. H., received the usual common school education of his period, and learned the machinist's trade. It is significant that he never had a technical education, in the sense as now understood. What he learned he acquired in hard, practical work in the shop. He had amazing facility in comprehending the most minute and painstaking processes of machine construction, and in a very few years he was building machines which did automatically the work which previously had required so much patient hand labor to achieve. One of his earliest inventions of this character, made while he was in Hartford, was a perfected epicycloidal milling machine for producing the true theoretical curves from which cutters for gear teeth are made.

Senor Alfonso Cravioto, who recently came to this country as president of the commission of teachers appointed by Gen. Carranza to study the educational systems of the United States, is a high official in the Carranza government and subsecretary of the Department of Public Instruction. The commission will spend many months in this country in study and investigation, with a view to applying the best of the principles of American schools to those of Mexico in due time. Senor Cravioto will also devote considerable time to art during his visit.

Dr. E. O. Hovey has been sent by the American Museum of Natural History to the West Indies to continue the volcanological investigations that he began in that region after the great eruption that destroyed St. Pierre. He expects to spend about three months in studying, especially the Grande Soufriere of Guadeloupe, Mt. Peele, the Soufriere of St. Vincent and the boiling lake of Dominica, collecting gases from the fumeroles, making temperature observations and noting the changes that have occurred since his last visit.

James Walter Foss, 67 years old, the village blacksmith at Milbridge, Me., has apparently discovered the lost art of tempering copper. He shows copper knives that will whittle long shavings from a hickory wagon spoke, and a copper draw shave that slices the knots in the toughest ash hoop pole. He cuts a mortise in an oak heart plank with a copper chisel and he has a copper razor which the village barber says is about the slickest tool he ever handled. These tools were forged of discarded soldering coppers from the sardine cannery, bits of copper wire and an old copper kettle. They may be ground, whetted or honed like steel. Foss says he can make a copper file, or a copper hand saw, or anything with a cutting edge and of any degree of hardness.

Prof. Louis Lewis, probably the oldest director of physical culture in this country, who fought under Carl Schurz in the German Revolution of 1848, this week celebrated his eighty-fifth birthday at his Philadelphia home. For thirty-six years until his retirement five years ago Prof. Lewis was director of physical culture at Girard College. At least 6000 students received physical instruction from him.

"Crooky," the hilarious comedy that features Frank Daniels, will be shown for the last time tonight.

Miller's.

Paul McAllister's "The Stolen Voice," is to be the offering at Miller's for the week beginning tomorrow, with Robert Warwick in the leading role. He portrays "Dorville," a gifted singer who is beloved by two women, one rich and the other poor.

The story has a novel feature in that it introduces a scene showing the taking of motion pictures, the hero having obtained a "job" in the "movies." The photoplay is said to be a strong and absorbing one.

Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday will be shown the closing chapters of "The Goddess," and "The Romances of Elaine" will be the added attraction during the balance of the week.

Superba.

"Scandal," by Lois Weber, author of "Hypocrites," will be the headline attraction at the Superba Theater, beginning tomorrow. Lois Weber, a young and talented woman, is one of the best known woman producers of films in the world.

"Scandal" veils the subtle suggestion that we all mind our own business and mind it well.

Both Lois Weber and Phillips Smalley are seen in the cast of the photoplay, as well as Rupert Julian, Adele Farrington and others.

Alhambra.

Victor Moore in "Chimmie Fadden," is to be the drawing card at the Alhambra, beginning tomorrow. Mr. Moore played the comedy on the legitimate stage for several seasons, and he is said to have injected all the savory humorousness of the stage production into the film play.

"Chimmie" was first told in story form, being the tale of a tough Bowery lad good at heart but mighty weak on "manners." When he brings those "manners" into polite society the fun starts.

Charles is the champion rat catcher of Galveston. For the past several months he has been taking the rodents at the rate of 2000 per month. For this service he has received the regular price paid for rats, and in addition was given a bonus of $10 provided he caught as many as 1000 in thirty days.

Shadows and the Zone.

to the Zone, now that I have made up my mind to take you there.

When I placed the telephonic phonograph to my ears and sat down to be automatically whirled around the full length of the Panama Canal while the newest thing in the telephone told me what I was seeing, I thought I could see the wisdom of San Francisco in having rebuilt itself three times between 1849 and 1851, after being totally wiped out by fire on each occasion. I thought I could see from this panorama of the canal that eventually the city of San Francisco could be made to pay. I would advise them to stick to their investment. This view of the Panama is by far the best amusement at the big exposition, and I strongly suspect that it is the keynote of the fair and its most absorbing feature.

The panoramic idea is very old, but it has been employed almost to the exclusion of any possible originality all through the fair. The private exhibit from Mexico conducted by Capt. Lewis escapes this banality, and the two splendid operatic voices in this entertainment make this amusement one of the highest quality. I went to hear these people sing and see them dance six times, and enjoyed them more than wading for hours through vast masses of mediocrity and cold commercialism with the hope of finding one or two jewels.

The fair is big on the outside, but once among the exhibits one suffers through a preponderant mass of junk before finding the objects of feeling and beauty. If you took France and Italy away from that fair you might sometimes be amused, but never exalted. Sweden stimulates and Belgium appeals, but France gives us the great exceptions and Italy a unit of quality.

For a minute I had forgotten again that I was the ballyhoo man on the Zone. You must see the Samoan islanders, the Mexicans, the Panama Canal, Creation and the horse that tricks you into believing that he is a creature of reason and mathematics. Creation has its defects, which you may have already discovered, but it is lovely in spots. A great many statues that look good close up will fail to spot at a distance, and that is the way when you try to remember Creation. Adam and Eve should be dropped when they first shake hands. There is use to follow them after that. Their ejection from the Garden of Eden is about as pleasant as the divorce proceedings of a couple whose wedding you have attended. Besides, I have never seen a more awkward angel or a more impossible flaming sword.

You can do as you please about the Battle of Gettysburg and the Oriental Dancers. I went, but was not pleased. I went to many things for many days, but outside of one or two Franch paintings which completed my revulsion against what they call the new school, a very few statues out of the hundreds and the blue tone of the steelroom in the Swedish exhibit, I cannot remember to have been in the least overwhelmed. The ordinary attractions of the Zone are no better than those at one of our local beaches, and the Dogs of all Nations is about one-fifth as good a collection as the Bay Side Kennel Club's exhibit at Venice this week.

Charles M. Schwab is the angel of the Bethlehem Steel Company's band of 100 pieces, and has arranged for the organization to give public concerts in New York City for several years. Many of the players are German, but the only music they render is neutral.

Dramatic Reviews.

and Mr. Bergman will be remembered for their clever work in "The Trained Nurses," wherein they made their last bow here. A bunch of pretty girls adorns the act. A novelty dance which is a feature is the "chained ankle glide."

Other features will be the Orquestra Torreblanca, said to be the finest musical organization Mexico ever sent out, with Senora Rivera as prima donna; Ball and West in "Since the Days of '61;" Mike Bernard, king of ragtime pianists, with Sidney Phillips, singer; the Gausmidts, foreign clowns, with their French poodles, and the holdovers, William Morris and company in "Mrs. Temple's Telegram," Jackson and Wahl in new song and dance numbers, and James Teddy, the jumper.

Pantages.

"The Shadow Girl," a musical comedy, is the headline number on the Pantages list for this week, beginning tomorrow. Margaret Whitney is the author of the tabloid piece, which promises to be sparkling entertainment. A short time ago she presented "The Wrong Bird" to Los Angeles audiences. "Dearie Girl," the well-known popular song, is one of Miss Whitney's compositions.

Others on the bill will be "Princess" Nana, an oriental dancer; Clark and McCullough, comedians; the Victoria four, singers; Mintz and Wertz, eccentric acrobats, and the musical Gordon highlanders, in Scotch numbers of all sorts.

Hippodrome.

A bill of much diversity is promised at the Hippodrome this week, opening tomorrow.

Elsie Schuyler and company will present a novelty skit, in which all the gowns are made of paper; Maurice Downey and company will appear in "An Irish Arden;" Si Jenkins promises a lively "rube" act; the Brissons will contribute a novelty equilibrist turnup; the juggling Mowatts will offer good entertainment, Hong Fong does oriental stunts, and the Broadway Comedy Four have a bunch of new songs and jokes.

Republic.

With the new programme which starts tomorrow at the Republic Theater, the new Bert Levey acts, obtained through recent affiliation with a big eastern circuit, will make their bow. La Pilivica, a Spanish dancer, who has appeared before King Alfonso of Spain and Gen. Huerta of Mexico, tops the bill, with her dancing partner. Her dances are said to be all new and quite sensational. "Three old veterans" bring the fifes and drums they carried through the Civil War.

Others will be Cliff and Dee with a comedy musical and dancing act; Fred Rogers, a blackface comedian; Damonte brothers, who give selections on piano accordeons, and Bond and Bond, who have a singing and dancing oddity. The feature photoplay is to be "The Right of Way," with William Faversham in the leading role.

"Mission Play."

"The Mission Play" is now in its seventieth week and there have been more than 830 performances. Evening performances drew remarkably during the past week.

IN THE LIMELIGHT.

Col. Eugene F. Ladd of the Adjutant General's Department has asked to be placed on the retired list October 1, because of ill health, after more than thirty-six years' service. He has been on duty at the War Department for several years.

Application for retirement by Lieut.-Col. Tracy Dickson, of the army ordnance corps, now on duty at Sandy Hook, has been approved by the War Department. Col. Dickson is understood to have accepted a position with a private manufacturing company. He retires under the special act relating to officers who served in the Panama Canal Zone during construction of the waterway.

Col. C. M. Perkins, recently restored to the active list of the Marine Corps by an act of Congress, has been assigned to command the Marine barracks at Puget Sound.

Gutzon Borglum, the noted American sculptor, has been invited to design the monument to the Confederacy which the Daughters will establish on Stone Mountain at Atlanta. It is proposed to convert the mountain itself into a monument that will be unique in the world.

Patrolman James Hyland of Philadelphia, 60 years old, recently sent the Osler theory flying by leaping into the lake and rescuing a drowning man, who had been pushed off the Columbia yacht Club pier.

William C. Levere, an author of Evanston, Ill., has recently received from Bagdad twelve stone tablets covered with hieroglyphics relating to Babylonia and its buried cities, dating back 2500 years before the birth of Christ. They were shipped by Dr. Edgar J. Banks, formerly American Consul at Bagdad, who has devoted many years of his life to the excavation of temples and ruins in buried cities through Babylonia and Assyria.

Robert C. Hardy of Hinsdale, Ill., one of the 440 candidates for admission to the Illinois bar, when examined by the State Board of Law Examiners, wrote answers to the questions with a pencil grasped in his teeth. Both of Hardy's hands had been amputated.

Rear-Admiral Charles Johnston Badger, who retired last week, having reached the age limit, because of his special qualifications will continue on duty indefinitely in connection with the Army and Navy Joint Board, and the Navy General Board, which are working out national defense problems.

Edward Hines, who today is accounted one of the wealthiest men in the lumber trade, told the White Pine salesmen's conference in Chicago of days in his early career as a salesman, when he ate a nickel's worth of apples for lunch and supper in order to have enough money left to pay for a full-sized breakfast. He freely admitted that when he started out to sell lumber he scarcely knew the difference between a shingle and a scantling, was injudicious in handling his expense account, yet made good despite the handicaps of inexperience.

The Sheik ul Islam of the Philippine Islands, His Eminence Sayid M. Wajih Gilani, head of the Mohammedan faith in Uncle Sam's Far Eastern possessions, arrived in New York last week for the purpose of raising money for the education of the Moros of the Island of Mindanao. The Sheik ul Islam of the Philippines is directly descended from the Prophet Mohammed. He is a lineal descendant of the prophet's daughter, Fatima, who was married to Ali before the prophet died in 632 A. D. He carries with him his family tree, a marvelous document, by which he traces back his ancestry for thirty-seven generations to Ali and Fatima.

TOGETHER LET US GO

Downtown to Inspect Olive Gray and Other Exquisite Tints; also Things Chic and Charming.

Now is the time to buy:

The watermelon with the thick rind for making sweet pickle. No relish is more delicious than is this. It cannot be made from a melon with thin rind as but the green part is used.

Books for the library. There are in that one-time sale sets of standard books for less than a song—for a mere hum, in fact.

Practical Suggestion.

As a refreshing drink on a warm day try a ginger ale punch made by adding to a bottle of the bitey beverage the juice of a lemon, a trifle of cut loaf sugar and a sprig of mint bruised to extract its flavor and a few leaves uncrushed, together with a strawberry for each glass, as a concession to artistic beauty. This is a drink which the hospitable lady at Laguna Cliffs always offers her guests and it is delicious.

Now Your Guess.

My guesser actually ran down, like a pedometer which had been walked to death, when the other day the salesmanager of the store which is holding the biggest and best sale of its life invited me to go through the stockrooms and inspect some of the bargains which were going on sale and which were to find mention in the advertising columns on Sunday. "What would you say was a good value for these?" he would ask, holding up ladies' undervests with Irish crochet all around—Irish crochet, you understand, and not merely across the front but all around—and after I had guessed several values below usual, he would name a price just about adequate for the most ordinary sorts without any ornamentation. When my surprise had partially subsided, he would hand out a box of real linen handkerchiefs with wide borders, all embroidered and after futile guessing upon my part would impart the fact that these were to go on at a price even with those everyday sorts which are a bargain at that. Next it would be silverware. A bonbon dish of Sheffield with glass container for the cost of a snatch luncheon; an individual castor for what would form the past tense of a cherry bite. Just as my silver covetousness was in full luster he would call attention to a fluff of ostrich feather boa in dainty coloring and tell me such a price that I thought he was joking. But the jokes kept coming as fast as though he were an end man, instead of the very main prop in the middle of a great house. I am betting—I hope there is no license needed for it—that when the doors of that establishment open on Monday morning you and all your friends will be there for the rush. I mean to be there, for I simply must have some of those give-aways! I mean to mark the Sunday advertisements and plan the onslaught in an orderly and certain campaign. The worst-wanted shall come first on the list and so down the line. Then I shall direct my energies accordingly.

One of the First.

The trouble is to decide whch to place first on the list. But I think that lace is one of the biggest bargains ever. The quality is so first-class and the patterns are simply charming. The fuschia designs in both white and black—did you ever see anything in lace that you liked better? Then there are the wide flouncings in deep cream with rounded points and floral patterns. It would pay to buy those even if you put them away in the emergency drawer for another year. Some of those laces are an absolute must-have.

Of Beaded Net.

Then those coatees of beaded net in various colors. Alluring are they. I like the white ones with the white crystal beads and the wee buddies in colors upon sleeves and upon the decolletege. The rosy one is pretty, too, and—oh, any one of them would be worth while at the price, for you could make the remainder of the frock to correspond.

There are tunics also, in beaded net and some all-over frocks of the same. The prices! Well, you may be thankful that salesmanager did not make you guess at those! I was a mile away in my guess.

Dress Goods.

When I was surrounded by billows of dress goods in every color and material from serge to fine, silk crepon and was asked to guess. I was truly at sea. I was guessing low, too, just to try to prove to the man that his old sale wasn't such a much of a sale as he claimed—but my lowest guess was too high for the bid by several. I began picking out what I would like to have at the price, but there are iron clad rules and no one can have the least advantage over the people who make the rush when the doors open Monday morning. It is as bad as the opening of a piece of government land—first rush first get and no infringement. I saw a piece of French crepon—oh so silky and fine and of double width—and it seemed as though I must actually shop-lift that for a house robe; but I concluded that the stock room was too well barred for me to get away with it. It will be about the same as stealing it when you have paid the price in the sale.

In the Book Nook.

I suppose there will be no opportunity to talk quietly in the Book Nook next week, for it will be crowded with people filling out the lacks in their libraries, at sale prices. Everyone with library ambition has a list which they "mean sometime to" either buy, borrow or steal. Now is the time to "steal." It would not be a bad idea to fill out Christmas gift lists at the same time.

Serging!

With the craze for serge which we are told will prevail during the coming season, I am reminded of the origin of the word. It is said to be derived from Xerge, Spain, where the goods was first manufactured. Blue serge will tint the horizon of suitdom, this fall, it is predicted. There are many new shades of blue, by the way.

A So-Different Shop.

Out in the residence district where it is handy, a new little shop has opened and as it is strung upon a novel idea, it is worthy of consideration. All articles for sale are taken from some friendly consideration. Either some one needs the help or is trying to help someone else, or there is some such motive at the origin of it. This does not mean that the articles in themselves are not worthy—for they will stand upon their merits; but those very merits prove the worthiness of the cause which they represent. It is a pleasure to buy when you can by so doing, be helping and pleasing more people than the buyer and the seller.

A Cool Thought.

The Good Housekeeper has a way of bringing to the front in hot weather some exceptionally cool looking picture. For example, she will place in the front hall where it meets your eye as you enter the house, the pictur with the big, spreading trees and the running brook whose ripple you can fairly hear as you look upon it. This first thought, entering your mind as you pass into the house seems to linger with you for sometime. She also has a snow scene or two, kept put away in winter but brought into prominence in summer time.

In Milady's Mirror.

Odd velvet coats will be worn with cloth or rep serge skirts.

Slashed cloth skirts over velvet or silk are a charming fashion.

Satin-faced cloth and velvet make a good half-season combination.

Coats will be of every length, as far as it is possible now to guess.

Many autumn models have pointed corsages over full skirts.

Chiffon sleeves seem to be as much as ever in favor for fall dresses.

Children's hats may have animals cut from velvet and appliqued on the brim.

Gray and yellow is a distinguished and favorite combination of colors.

We are promised a great fur season, and beaver will be especially favored.

Little girls' dresses show plain-colored belted blouses worn over plaid kilted skirts.

Charming little party frocks are made for the small girl, of dainty colored silks.

Short puffed and long full sleeves are a feature of afternoon and evening toilettes.

Some tailored suits have coats that drop below the hem of the accompanying skirts.

Astrakhan and braiding will be a feature of some of the short coatees for early autumn wear.

The school girl's dress should have pockets, because they are both practical and fashionable.

OLIVE GRAY.

Great oaks from litle acorns grow. It is likewise true that great fortunes often are made from little advertisements in The Times' "liner' 'section.

THE HELPING HAND.

"How far that little candle throws his beams!
So shines a good deed in a naughty world."

The Protestant churches of America are inaugurating a movement for the creation of sufficient funds to provide a retiring competency for the retired preachers, and an adequate support for the widows and dependent orphans. It is estimated that $67,000,000 will be required. It is proposed that clergymen of the Protestant Episcopal church be retired at the age of 68 on an average amounting to half pay; pensions for disabled clergy are to amount to 40 per cent. of the average salary received in the last five years' services; pensions for widows of clergy are to amount roughly to one-half of the husband's salary; pensions for orphans of clergy will vary with the ages of children. The minimum required for such a fund is fixed at $600 a year, and the maximum $2000.

The ministers' and missionaries' benefit board of the Northern Baptist convention recently received an unconditional gift of $200,000 to its permanent fund from Ambrose Swasey of Cleveland. It has an additional anonymous offer of $50,000, provided $150,000 is added to the fund the present year.

It profited Miss Babette Marguerite Sixtus, a trained nurse of San Francisco, $10,000, or $2000 per week, to be tender and kind to the late Mrs. Mary Sadler of that city during one of her last illnesses.

When the will of Mrs. Sadler was offered for probate, it was found that Miss Sixtus had been bequeathed $10,000 worth of stock in a corporation of international fame. The stock draws 8 per cent. interest. Miss Sixtus has been a graduate nurse since June 10, 1914.

Miss Sixtus says as to her relations with Mrs. Sadler: "I simply did my duty, was good and kind to her. She was a bit hard to please, having had eight nurses in as many weeks before I was called in. But I made it my duty to please her, and I guess I did.

"So, you see, it pays to be kind under all circumstances, doesn't it?"

Germans in Chile, according to advices received in Berlin, have resolved to erect a German hospital at Valparaiso in honor of the German sailors who were killed in the naval battle between German and British squadrons off the Falklands last December, when the German cruisers Scharnhorst, Gneisenau, Nuernberg and Leipzig, commanded by Admiral Von Spee, were sunk.

Eight years ago Mrs. James Maner, who lives in a little home near Atlanta, saw a man limping and gave him a dime for car fare into the city, for he said he was penniless. A few days ago she received letters from lawyers in Miami, Fla., telling her that the tramp was dead and had left her his entire estate, consisting of houses and lots worth $10,000.

Secretary McAdoo has awarded a silver medal of honor to William T. Hall, an engineer in the department of docks and ferries, New York City, in recognition of his gallant conduct in saving several persons from drowning on various occasions during the years 1908 to 1912 inclusive.

Announce the Showing of Suits, Coats, Gowns and Dresses

For the Fall Season of 1915

Paris, tho still in the throes of war, is nevertheless the same fashion authority as of old. In every garment of note can be easily traced the effects of her magic wand. In the collection we present will be found the fashion ideas of Jenny, Cheruit, Premet, Paquin, Beer and other equally famous names, either in the original or in adaptations.

The Suits are extremely chic, showing entirely new lines—many being set off with bands of handsome fur. Materials as well as colors are soft, rich and becoming.

The Dresses in many cases are shown in smart combinations of serge combined with satin or taffeta. Soft charmeuse with satin promise to be extremely popular as do those of Georgette and chiffon.

The Gowns for more formal occasions are most elaborate in character—resplendent with sequins, iridescent spangles, beads, silver and gold laces and again the ever popular bands of fur. They are specimens of the modistes' art that descriptions fail to describe.

Suits $25.00 to $150.00; Dresses and Gowns $16.50 to $200.00; Coats $16.50 to $100.00

Service that Fails to Produce Better Values Fails of Its Greatest Purpose

SERVICE at the "California" does more than offer for your inspection an almost infinite variety of fine merchandise each season. And it does more than afford you the most dependable advice in making your selections.

Service here saves you real money. It enables you to furnish your home in high-class, exclusive style for a price that ordinarily would secure only inferior furnishings.

Now, as never before, "money talks." How far will a dollar go? is the burning question. The price-tag alone does not give the answer. You must take the article in one hand and the price-tag in the other, then look through both of them into the distant future. The true value of anything is what it costs now, divided by the years of use and satisfaction it will give.

There are three principal reasons why our values have appealed to particular people for hundreds of miles up and down the Coast and Eastward:—

—We know where to find the best of some hundreds of exclusive cabinet and art goods makers,

—We pay cash and secure the inside price,

—We share the advantage of this inside price with you by putting the retail price right down to the lowest figure that a bare operating profit will permit.

Whether you are furnishing a bungalow or a mansion, your money will go farther, will buy more real, honest quality at the "California" than anywhere else on the Coast. All we ask is the opportunity to prove this to you.

Do yourself the justice of coming into the store and making careful value comparisons. You will be met by capable, courteous men. Tell them just what you are looking for. If they cannot produce a satisfactory value for the price, don't buy. It is solely upon value comparison that we hope to gain your friendship and patronage.

Always glad to have you look
best in home furnishings.

The Bright Siae of Sunshine Land—People and Their Doings—a Hundred Happy Affairs.

A DEBUTANTE'S LETTER.

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 27.

[illegible] dear: All is vanity and vexation of spirit. The last three novels I have read show a pronounced penchant for the type of heroine I am not like and it's disconcerting. Seems to be a marked preference for refined and incredibly epigrammatic young women, with noble brows and dazzling complexions on [illegible] a week. They always marry the [illegible] society eligible and make him into a scorner of society and all its [illegible]. One took hers into mountain [illegible]—and I'll wager she bored him to death. Another took hers to the country home of her forefathers, [illegible] over with modern conveniences, and stuffed him with clairvoyant sen[illegible]ality. And the other one went [illegible] with hers to Central America to [illegible] relics of the past.

After a dose of that sort of thing, how can one write with gay enthusiasm of bridge teas and tea [illegible]? The outlook for society is [illegible] gloomy if the novelists are any [illegible]. They all affect to despise [illegible] and even make society [illegible] itself, which is unthinkable.

And just when we think we are [illegible] really refined and highly [illegible], too. And to think how [illegible] of us have worn our selves thin and haggard getting into society, and the rest of us grown nervous and [illegible] trying to stay put. This seems to have knocked the bottom out of society enchantment, one [illegible] to be vulgarly and distressingly [illegible] to cut any sort of a dash nowadays.

And today's paper is full of the [illegible] of a refined old age, peaceful, unadventurous and all that sort of thing. Every woman's journal seems [illegible] upon holding up old age as an [illegible] desirable state, which we [illegible] hasten on too quickly. "Grow old gracefully" seems to be a regular modern slogan and we are supposed to look meltingly sentimental as we contemplate what delightful old [illegible] we are going to be, telling [illegible] stories to well behaved but [illegible] grandchildren.

Well, I may get old one day but believe me, I shall be a very dashing [illegible] lady. My precocious grandchildren are not going to have anything [illegible]. I shall smoke cigarettes with [illegible] debonair insouciance, drive a high-power motor car, play a skittish game of golf, scintillate wit at [illegible] functions, tell piquant stories and keep nice mammas in a frightful [illegible] when, under my indisputable [illegible] wing, I chaperone their daughters [illegible] a dance and annex all their [illegible] and handsome admirers.

That, my dear, is my elderly ambition and nothing short of a paralytic [illegible] shall thwart my progress. I [illegible] not sure that I shall not finish up [illegible] being a dangerous corespondent [illegible] about the age of 93, with [illegible] shocking penchant for a prehistoric highball or something [illegible] improper. But I won't have husbands, that has been vulgarly overdone already, and you can't [illegible] dashing old lady when you have [illegible] through that sort of a mill. It [illegible] them such a hard mouth, for [illegible] thing. And haven't you noticed [illegible] oft-married females invariably [illegible] puffy under the eyes and floppy [illegible]? I may take to a cap, properly [illegible] and adjusted, they lend so [illegible] to the picture, especially if one's [illegible] a bit thin at the top. I know [illegible] write my memoirs, a shade [illegible], and electrify society with [illegible] indiscretion. Many a passe [illegible] dame must have envied old [illegible] Carrington her final flutter when [illegible] published those highly improper [illegible] a year or two ago and held [illegible] limelight for months.

But that is looking ahead. In the meantime all I have managed to accomplish is two bridge teas, a round [illegible] hot golf, a box party and a [illegible] with Dorothy. Dorothy was [illegible] interesting because she criticized my new dress and coiffure in [illegible] of three of my pet young men. [illegible] she did it because she loved me [illegible] could not bear to see me not looking my best. Drew attention to a fever [illegible] which I had carefully powdered, recommended a quick remedy, [illegible] finally annexed the two best of [illegible] young men, asked them to dinner [illegible] my very nose and offered to [illegible] the car for them—explaining [illegible] the while that she wasn't going to ask me as she knew I was resting up for San Francisco, where she [illegible] I would have a prfectly lovely time, and resume that flirtation [illegible] remembered was broken off rather [illegible] last year.

She has given me a mission in life. [illegible] had felt rather flat since the [illegible] absolutely refused to let me [illegible] the naval lieutenant's letter. [illegible] said she had seen him squeezing [illegible] arm, and she wasn't going to [illegible] me share a temporary flirtation [illegible] the fleet. So now I must concentrate on Dorothy—you can see that, [illegible]—and I'd hate to be Dorothy [illegible] next few months, knowing [illegible] deadly unpleasant I know how to [illegible] when I like.

The hot round of golf was a mistake. I forgot my powder-book and [illegible] shiny nose all the way, lost [illegible] gloves and burned my hands red [illegible] I had got them back to respect, likewise my V neck, [illegible] is going to look horrid with [illegible] frocks. And besides, my [illegible] talked about another girl all [illegible] while.

The box party was to see Letty, [illegible] was so improper that the mater wanted to leave after the first act. [illegible] had a headache. I would not [illegible] the mater has been cross ever [illegible]. I know that is really why she [illegible] let me answer the lieutenant's letter.

[illegible] of the bridge teas was good fun [illegible] Santa Monica. All kinds of [illegible] from sporting suits of ravishing [illegible] to evening gowns of elaborate luxury. Sally McFarland Grimm [illegible] a cool, sweet angel in white [illegible] and a blue sash. Mrs. Walles [illegible] serene and capable looking in [illegible] mauve sporting outfit. Mrs. Flow[illegible] in pink and white (they say that [illegible] ever can be cross with you [illegible] you wear pink,) won the first [illegible], a silver vase like a handsome trophy. Mrs. Williams, in gen[illegible] Parisian black, won the second. Mrs. Dudley played a masterly [illegible] as usual, and had an audience to watch her skill. The young [illegible], the Winston girls, looked [illegible] darling, their one sorrow being [illegible] the champagne punch fell short. [illegible] other bridge tea would have [illegible] the novelists. Most all the [illegible] were professional or club [illegible] with higher aspirations and [illegible] to elevate the masses. [illegible] up a collection for the Bel[illegible], which is always with us, [illegible] our sympathy for better [illegible], better husbands and more of [illegible] would have been more interesting [illegible] I held my peace.

[illegible] I got home mother reminded [illegible] I had not darned any stockings [illegible] three weeks, and father cor[illegible] my grammar twice. Bob said [illegible] deliberately offended his best [illegible] laid many woes to our door. [illegible] think that there is a perfectly [illegible] moon, vast expanse of cool [illegible] temperature of goodness only [illegible] what, and a fall fashion show [illegible] and me to darn stockings and "rest quietly" for another week. If I did not want to be a dashing old lady, I would go into a nunnery right now. So long, cherie.

Your peeved, BETTY.

THE WEEK.

PARTIES, RECEPTIONS, DINNERS, WEDDINGS AND THE LIKE.

Coronado.

ONE of the rarest jewels of the Pacific, rimmed in lapping opalescent waters which mirror the flecky clouds, lights and shadows, in all their alluring beauty, is attractive enough at any time of year.

But it fairly pulsates with life during the polo season.

And the tournament opened Saturday last, amid an enthusiastic assemblage of spectators, and a skillful ensemble of players and trim ponies.

Los Angeles had a quota of men in the field, and many people of social importance to cheer their favorites on to victory.

Incidental to the matches, there were festivities galore, balls, teas and dinners.

Of course, the entertainment centered around the Hotel del Coronado, that delightful, rambling place, built nearly thirty years ago by Hampton L. Story of Altadena, who, in the early days, used to "bag" quail on the very spot where the hostelry now stands. Associated with him were E. S. Babcock, and Mrs. Story, who is a valued member of the Ebell, Friday Morning and other clubs of this city, whose hobby, by the way, is the Symphony Orchestra—studied the plans, gave suggestions and saw "her child grow," as she aptly expresses it.

The hotel she named—coupling her name Del and Coronado, "crowning the waters."

Mrs. Story has been enjoying her former "home" this season with her husband and their daughter, Mrs. Robert H. Ripley, whose husband is a son of E. H. Ripley, president of the Santa Fe Railroad, with her three children, has spent most of the time with them there this summer. She left for her eastern home only last Monday. The grand kiddies of "the man whose dreams came true" are seemingly as fond of the place as are their forebears. The three generations of Storys rather have things their own way when they return to be guests of John J. Hernan.

The large garden, a huge square patio, has been the scene of all the tea dansants this summer, and makes an ideal background for the ladies in their summery frocks, gala colored parasols and sweaters.

On Wednesday night the guests were treated to a unique dinner and barn dance. Fifty were bidden for dinner, but there were hundreds for the ball which followed. The dinner was served country style, with celery supplanting the usual floral decorations. Oil cloth covered the tables, and candles burned in the necks of empty bottles; cocktails were served in tin cups, and the champagne oozed in thick stemmed goblets. Cabbages and cauliflower furthered the motif, and were in keeping with the sunbonneted lassies, who came in aprons, ginghams and shirtwaists, with hair hanging in braids, and the country lads in overalls and straw hats. But the fried chicken and beaten biscuits and accompaniments made them forgetful of their change from evening dress into the "country" garb.

The lovely domed ballroom was done in sheafs of wheat, with wheelbarrows here and there, pumpkins and a harvest of appropriate reminders of the happy occasion. Mrs. Thomas presided over one of the largest companies of diners, and many gave parties.

Mrs. Claus Spreckels, and her new sister-in-law, Mrs. Leslie Moon, are entering into all the festivities with avidity. They were at the dinner, and the center of an admiring throng for the dance.

But—to revert to polo:

John Barnes Miller of Pasadena and his two sons, John B., Jr., and Edward E.—more commonly heralded as "Ted"—played splendid games on magnificent mounts. Mrs. Miller, looking nearly as young and slight as her handsome debutante daughter, Miss Phila, and the juvenile members of the family, Carita and Morris, attended all the matches. The Millers have been in Coronado the past six weeks. Miss Phila takes frequent rides about the peninsula or on the silver strand, and whether frequenting the bridle path or tripping through the mazes of the modern dance, attracts pronounced attention among the guests. She is thoroughly athletic—has just won two cups for bowling at the hotel—and her brothers, John B., Jr., and Edward, each received a trophy.

The Harry Pattees were missed by their scores of friends. Perhaps the polo champion has no more room for cups—he having nearly a hundred over a year ago, I know. Mr. Pattee's sisters are married to distinguished men—one the Hon. Charles Berkeley Powell, ex-member of Parliament and a powerful Conservative. They were entertaining the Duke of Connaught at their London place just at the time of the outbreak of the great war last year. A second sister is the Hon. Mrs. Frederick Carling, son of the Hon. Sir John Carling, at one time postmaster-general of Canada. Mr. Pattee's mother, an aristocratic, delightful little lady, has, since her son came to Riverside, spent much of her time in Southern California, though she keeps an independent establishment, either at the Mission Inn or Hotel Virginia.

Carleton F. Burke of Los Angeles was in great form. Position, form and such mere technicalities are synonomous with the name of this favored player.

Admiral T. B. Howard, U.S.N., and Mrs. Howard, than whom there are no more popular members of the Southland's smart set, have been entertaining their daughter, Mrs. J. P. Morton, and two adorable kiddies, at the Hotel del Coronado for some time. Her husband is commander of the Scorpion, now stationed in Mediterranean waters—just now at Constantinople, if I remember correctly. They plan to stay until his return, or until the Howards go on to Washington. "Tommy," aged 3, is the pet of the navy, and he displays precocious solicitude over his baby sister Emily, who had her first birthday a few days ago.

Admiral Howard, who is the second ranking officer in the navy, is to be retired in May, and already his departure is being anticipated with keen regret. He will become president of the naval board. Rear-Admiral C. R. Winslow is to take his place in command of the Pacific fleet.

Capt. A. H. Robertson of the U.S.S. Colorado and his charming wife also enjoy great favor with the Coronado set. Mrs. Robertson was formerly Mrs. Llewellyn Bixby and has just returned with her son Harry from a visit in Long Beach to the grand parents Bixby. Harry's father passed away when he was a lad of 7.

The navy people mostly live at the hotel, and enter into all the functions with zest. In fact, they are largely responsible for the continuous gaiety which prevails fifty-two weeks of the year.

Some of our prettiest debutantes were down over the week-end, enjoying the polo, motoring, swimming and "expositioning" Mrs. James Calhoun Drake and Miss Daphne are there, and mean to stay through August. Sayre Macneil walked down—surely a test of devotion—to spend the week-end with his fiancee.

Mrs. William E. Ramsey, Miss Marjorie Ramsey and the latter's fiance, Charles Reginald Blythe of San Francisco, whom she is to wed early in October, came on down from San Francisco to spend a few days. They have returned to Los Angeles.

Apropos to the Ramsey-Blythe wedding, Miss Daphne Drake is to be one of the bridesmaids for the interesting society event, others being Miss Katherine Ramsey, maid of honor; Mrs. Chauncey Penoyer, an aunt at whose home she first met Mr. Blythe, matron of honor; Miss Arabella Schwerin and Miss Beatrice Nichols of San Mateo and San Francisco. Miss Theodora Robbins of Pasadena and Miss Mona Pujo of New Orleans.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Stephens, who came from Moline, Ill., several days ago, had their daughter, Miss Dorothea and her chum, Miss Amy Busch, down to del Coronado for polo and the exposition. 'Ere long they are going on to San Francisco. Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Busch and family are leaving tomorrow; and the Stephens follow Wednesday, all forming a congenial party to do the exposition.

Mrs. Harmon Ryus and Miss Helen Mathewson were down for the week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. Stewart O'Melveny were down recently, but Mrs. O'Melveny was ill much of the time so they spent their time quietly.

Among the well-known Pasadenans were Mrs. Grosse and her two daughters, Misses Irene and Florence Grosse. Miss Irene did three exhibition dances on the carpeted enclosure of the ballroom; displaying much grace and skill.

Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Potter, who are owners of the Van Nuys and Clarendon hotels, the latter at Sea Bright, Fla., and their daughter, Helen, are doing much entertaining during their stay. Helen had a birthday party Saturday, and invited a number of friends to make merry with her. They motored and spent much time on the beach.

Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Cruckshank and Mrs. Edward Groendyke of the Crown City have gone for the conclusion of a delightful summer to the southern exposition city. Mr. and Mrs. Groendyke have just returned from Huntington Lodge, where for several weeks they thoroughly enjoyed rusticity, climbing mountains, riding over the trails and in other out-door diversions.

A reigning favorite with the younger set is Miss Mabel Hubbard of Redlands, who, by the way, has a fascinating guest with her—Miss Elizabeth Howland of New London, Ct. The young ladies have just completed their final year at a fashionable school, Briarcliff on the Hudson. It is Miss Howland's first summer in Califorina and she is charmed with all she has seen and enjoyed.

Mrs. Samuel Brown Thomas, Grace Mellus that was, is staying on with her friend Mrs. Frank Godfrey, and has been the recipient of much entertaining.

A galaxy of New York men were the cause of much heart-fluttering a few days ago, when they arrived at Coronado—all Yale men and all members of young E. Roland Harriman's yachting party. Mr. Harriman is the youngest son of the late railroad king, and with him were Robert A. Lovett, son of Judge Lovett of the Union Pacific; A. H. Read, A. R. Landon, H. H. Landon, Jr., Samuel S. Duryea, Ellery S. James, Mather Abbott of Boston, Henry E. Cor, Jr., and Samuel Walker. The party sailed on to San Francisco, where they anchored just off the fair grounds and had a function of their own. Young Harriman, it is rumored, is to enter business in Los Angeles.

Among the recent arrivals are Baron and Baroness de Meyer of New York, who have an entree into the inner circles of Newport and New York. The Baron enjoys widespread favor as miniature piinter, and photographer.

Mr. and Mrs. John D. Spreckels, who sailed to Honolulu with a party of friends on their floating palace, Venetia, are soon to return. They are entertaining aboard Mrs. Fred Freeman, wife of Commander Freeman of the U.S.S. Colorado, and Mrs. Hawson N. Cole, wife of Dr. Cole of the U.S.S. Colorado.

Mr. and Mrs. I. E. Emerson of Baltimore—Mr. Emerson is the father of Mrs. Alfred Vanderbilt—the C. Oliver Iselins of New York, Orrin Johnson, also of the eastern metropolis, and Kirk La Shelle, son of the playwright, and several of the latter's eastern friends, were recently touring the southland, with headquarters under Mr. Hernan's hospitable roof.

William Ramsey Heberharnt, the genial host at del Coronado, who is just returning to his post after a long vacation spent in New York and other eastern cities, made arrangements during his stay east for some startling innovations. For instance, he is to give a ball later in the season at which Lucille, or Lady Duff-Gordon, is to design and make special costumes and Elsie De Wolf, the celebrated interior artist, is to do a setting. It promises to eclipse in brilliance the wondrous Chinese ball-pageant which startled the Southland last season.

Horse Show to be Social Event.

The special Horse Show to be given September 30 to October 13 by the Panama-Pacific International Exposition at San Francisco promises to be a social event of country-wide interest. Not only does the list of patrons and patronesses contain the names of many leaders of the fashionable world, but numerous members of the smart sets of the East and West will be represented by horses and vehicles in the judging forum.

Among those who already have promised to be patrons and patronesses of the show are Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Stotesbury of Philadelphia, Gen. and Mrs. J. B. Castleman of Louisville, J. Campbell Thompson of New York, Joseph K. Maddux of Warrentown, Va., John D. Crimmins of New York, Mr. and Mrs. George Wingfield of Reno, Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Stanton of Chicago, A. G. Leonard of Chicago, Major J. G. Harberd, U. S. Army, and Mrs. Harberd, Fred Pabst of Wisconsin, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Farrell of Portland, Or., Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Treat of Seattle, and John L. Bushnell of Springfield, besides many prominent Californians.

Among others who are expected to act as patrons and patronesses are Messrs. and Mmes. Peter Gerry, Edward McLean, William Hitt and Richard Wallach, all of Washington, D. C.; Joseph Widener of Philadelphia, Joseph Leiter of Washington, D. C., and Mrs. James B. Haggin of New York.

Some of the most stylish turnouts in the United States will take part in the show, which it is confidently believed will demonstrate to the world that the horse is as popular as ever—some say more so than ever—in the minds of fashionable people, who may use their motor cars for rapid travel, pure and simple, but prefer the luxurious ease and comfort of the family carriage, and exercise and sport of a spirited saddle horse, or the stylish tandem, four-in-hand coach or jaunting cart to the touring car, the limousine or the runabout.

The tiered boexs at a horse show always present a scintillating sight, with the elite in evidence en masse, but couple with this an exposition year, and one can scarcely await its opening.

Mrs. Anita M. Baldwin is going to send a string of her finest thoroughbreds, Arabs and Percherons, up for exhibition, and expects to win honors in this particular class.

San Francisco is at its best, so far as climatic conditions are concerned, at this particular time of the fall, and no doubt many of our smartest society folk will join the exodus of visitors for the north at the time the fashionables plan their most brilliant functions.

Mrs. Charles Wellington Rand and her daughter, Miss Lillian, who are leaving shortly for San Francisco, will no doubt stay on in the bay city for the attractions of the horse show, though they plan, I believe, to leave in early October for New York for the opening of the opera season—always the de luxe fashionable happening of the eastern metropolis.

Mrs. and Miss Rand are to enjoy the East at their leasure, going in turn to Washington, D. C., Boston, Philadelphia and wherever their fancy dictates. They may return home for Christmas, though their stay might continue throughout the winter.

In Rose.

Rose-shaded asters, together with rose-shaded candelabra and rose doilies, was the pretty arrangement chosen for the supper table Thursday evening presided over by Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sherwood Wise at the Bryson. The host and hostess earlier in the evening entertained about 250 guests with a dancing party, and for the affair quantities of radium lilies were used in brightening the ballroom. Mr. and Mrs. Walter Nolte and Mr. and Mrs. John Harris, who are spending the summer at the Bryson, were present as special guests.

The honoree, with their hosts, have just returned from Catalina, where they chartered a launch and enjoyed a cruise about the island at their leisure.

Have Returned to the East.

Miss Marjorie MacVicar, an unusually pretty visitor who has enjoyed a major portion of the summer in Los Angeles, where she was the guest of relatives, returned Wednesday to her home in Des Moines, stopping en route at the Grand Canyon of Arizona. She was accompanied East by George Russell and Clarence Thompson of Fort Dodge.

To the Exposition City.

Mrs. E. A. Crandall and little daughter, Mabelle Deane, No. 640 Prospect avenue, South Pasadena, left last evening for San Francisco, where they join Mr. Crandall, who has been East on a business trip for the past four weeks, and together they will enjoy the exposition and the many pleasant trips around San Francisco. While north they will be the house guest of a relative, Mrs. Louis Bishop, of Oakland.

Wilshire Emergency League.

Mrs. Charles E. Sebastian, the third vice-president of the Wilshire Emergency League, opened her home, No. 2276 Cambridge street, Wednesday afternoon, for the first party of the bridge tournament given by this energetic society for the benefit of their philanthropic fund. Assisting ladies included Mrs. R. E. Steckel, Mrs. M. J. Neighbors, Mrs. A. Banard, Mrs. J. W. Summerfield, Mrs. P. C. Johnson, Mrs George Cram and Mrs. H. L. Zukerman.

Home from Long Jaunt.

Mrs. Kate P. Ralston and her daughter, Miss Mildred Thrush, of No. 431 West Jefferson street, have returned from a motor trip to the northern part of the State. They visited the exposition and other points of interest, covering more than 1400 miles in four weeks. They traveled via the coast route.

The Dreyfus's Trip.

Mr. Louis Dreyfus and his wife, Mrs. Estelle Heartt Dreyfus, of this city, are on a holiday tour. They are spending two weks at La Jolla and afterward will go to San Francisco for a three weeks' stay, arriving home to reopen their studios about October 1.

Mrs. Maier's Party.

One of the most thoroughly enjoyable of the week's festivities was the birthday party given Monday evening by Mr. Edward R. Maier to his mother, Mrs. Mary J. Maier, at the beefsteak hall at the brewery. A large company assembled, and were entertained with a royal beefsteak and squab supper, music and dancing. The Maier parties are always the jolliest imaginable, and on this occasion many gifts showed the esteem in which Mrs. Maier is held.

Yellow Luncheon.

Amid a profusion of goldenrod, forming a carpet down the long board, accentuated with fetching tulle bows and four yellow-shaded candelabra holding pale yellow tapers, Mrs. James Harry Brown presided over an enjoyable luncheon Thursday at her home, No. 1986 West Washington street, assisted by her daughter, Miss Marion Brown. Gold-monogrammed cards marked covers for the hostess, Mrs. Margaret Hawkins, Mrs. Edward F. King, Mrs. V. A. Humphries, Mrs. Frank Harbert, Mrs. Theodore Docker, Mrs. George Hale, Mrs. Harriet Squires, Mrs. Harry Rose, Mrs. P. P. Greppin, Mrs. Robert Hardy and Mrs. Nellie Meigs. Following luncheon auction bridge was played, the winning contestants being Mmes. King and Greppin.

Home from Eastern Trip.

Mrs. E. W. Robinson and little daughter Virginia have returned to their home, No. 820 Stratford avenue.

SOCIETY.

South Pasadena, after spending a most delightful three months in the East. The most of the time they were the guests of Mrs. Robinson's mother, Mrs. Richard K. Fox, at her summer home, "Fox Lodge," which comprises fifty-two acres at Red Bank, N. J. While homeward bound they stopped in New York, Buffalo, Niagara Falls and Chicago.

Musical Luncheon.

Mrs. A. Weilheimer, who for the past four months has been living with her mother, Mrs. W. Grim, No. 115 South Commonwealth avenue, entertained a few friends Thursday afternoon with a musical luncheon, the first of a series of like affairs. An effective centerpiece for the table was formed of crimson carnations and ferns arranged in a wicker basket and tied fetchingly in tulle bows. The musical programme was given by Mrs. von Heidenberg, soprano.

Returning Home.

Mrs. B. F. Casebeer of Cleveland, who has been the guest of her sister and brother, Dr. and Mrs. V. A. Humphries, Thirty-ninth and Main streets, left Wednesday via San Francisco for home. While in the city many enjoyable affairs were given in her honor, among which was a large reception by Mrs. Humphries.

Birthday Anniversary.

Honoring the ninth birthday anniversary of her little daughter Helen, Mrs. Albert Kingsbury entertained yesterday afternoon with a merry party at the Dick apartments. Pink was the prevailing color used in the decorations. The table held as a centerpiece a wonderful birthday cake, with nine burning pink tapers nestling in a bed of ferns and enchantress carnations, the accessories and place cards harmonizing with the blossoms. Games and dancing made a happy afternoon, and bidden were Mildred Hutchenson, Helen Hixon, Edna Moyer, Betty Moyer and Marion Marsh.

On Eastern Trip.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Butterworth and small son left yesterday on an extended eastern and Canadian trip. They are traveling via San Francisco and the Canadian Pacific.

Italian Dinner.

Dr. and Mrs. Frank T. Howenstein of West Thirtieth street, who are spending the summer at their shore home in Venice, entertained last evening with an Italian dinner. Those going were Mr. and Mrs. Clem Creveling, Mr. and Mrs. Gustav W. Saurret, Mr. and Mrs. Ira Sidney Chapman and Mrs. Jane Hart.

Pretty Luncheon.

Twenty-eight guests were entertained by Mrs. M. E. Armstrong at luncheon Wednesday last honoring her sister, Miss Sylvia Bee of Ogden. A centerpiece of small Dresden baskets filled with lily of the valley, forget-me-nots and Cecile Brunners greeted friends as they entered the dining-room of the Bryson, where the hostess' charming young daughter, Miss Dorothy Armstrong, presided.

Dinner at the Beach.

Among the summer residents at Ocean Park is Mrs. Dorothy Severson, who last night entertained dinner guests at the King George, those motoring down to accept her hospitality being Mrs. O. P. Clark, Mrs. W. H. Jamison, Mrs. Margaret LaGrange, Mrs. Harmon Ryus, Mrs. K. K. Althouse and Mrs. Frances Nellis. The table was done in pink, with a central mound of baby rosebuds and fern fronds.

Answering Exposition's Call.

San Francisco and the fair has lured Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Burnham and daughter, Miss Beatrix Burnham, who have closed their home at the Bryson apartments for several weeks of fun in the north.

A Satisfying Outing.

Mr. and Mrs. U. T. Clothfelter and Maj. and Mrs. Harry J. Scott of the Bryson apartments have just returned from a month's outing in San Francisco. The trip was made in a motor car, and en route stops were made at Santa Barbara and Del Monte, while the homeward journey brought the travelers to the Sequoia National Park.

In Gold and Yellow.

One of the prettiest marriages of the summer was that of Miss Lillian Mabel Knudson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. B. Knudson of No. 2120 Seventh avenue, who at the hour of 4 o'clock on Thursday afternoon became the bride of John Leslie Bowman of Waterloo, Iowa, before an assemblage of thirty-five relatives and intimate friends.

Twelve attractive maidens in summery frocks of white and pale yellow—the Misses Muriel Male, Nan Truchel, Iva and Ima Wilson, May and Belle Hall, Margaret Jay, Belle Macomber, Susan Bechtel, Esther Snyder, Clara Duclos and Ethel Jacoby—formed an aisle for the bridal party with ropes of yellow roses and tulle. A solid background of palms and ferns encircled in gold baskets of pale yellow roses tied fetchingly in lover's knots of tulle formed an effective station for the principals and their attendants, Miss Neva Bowman of Iowa, a sister of the groom, in a gown of yellow satin and real lace, and carrying a large shower of yellow rosebuds tied in tulle, being bridesmaid, while the best man was Arthur LeRoy Knudson, brother of the bride, who is to approach the altar on September, when he weds Miss Faith Guy.

Rev. Fischer of Harvard Heights officiated as clergyman. The wedding march was played by Miss Grace Guy, and following the service Miss Faith Guy sang appropriate ballads.

The bride was becomingly gowned in an embroidered net over white satin, her long tulle veil being caught to the coiffure in pearl bands. Lilies of the valley and a few bride's roses made up her handsome shower bouquet.

The groom is associated in the Trust and Savings Bank of Waterloo, and there he will take his wife to reside. They are at present on a honeymoon in San Francisco, but will return next week to this city to attend Mrs. Bowman's brother's wedding before continuing their journey eastward.

Mrs. A. A. Bowman came from Iowa for her son's marriage.

For Miss Stephens.

A social compliment was extended to Miss Dorothea Stephens, Miss Amy Busch's house guest, by Miss Winifred Maxon, who on Thursday at her home, No. 602 South Ardmore avenue, gave a luncheon for twelve guests.

The function was a farewell, as Miss Stephens leaves on Wednesday for the north with her parents, Mr and Mrs. Albert Stephens, who came from Moline to visit the expositions and take their daughter home.

Miss Maxson is also to go north about September 15, in company with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Maxon, the party planning to stay for perhaps three weeks.

Miss Busch is going tomorrow with the family to San Francisco, and is to be joined by many of her young friends during her stay in the Bay City.

Back from Motoring Trip.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. de Mund and Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Toolen have returned from San Francisco, where they spent ten days. Mrs. De Mund motored the party down, coming by the perilous Refugi Pass. She made rather a record for a woman at the wheel en route north, leaving Los Angeles on a Saturday morning at 5 o'clock and reaching their destination the following noon, though they traveled all night.

Mrs. De Mund is president of the International Sunshine Society.

Receiving Courtesies.

Miss Virginia Goodsell, who, with her mother, Mrs. Virginia Goodsell, has gone to San Francisco to visit their sister and daughter, Mrs. Charles Camm, are being much entertained in the north. Dr. Osler on Tuberculosis

Sir William Osler, Regis Professor of Medicine at Oxford, says in his "Practice of Medicine" (1892,) on page 249: "The healing of pulmonary tuberculosis is shown clinically by the recovery of patients in whose sputa elastic tissue and bacilli have been found. . . . In the granulation products and associated pneumonia a scar tissue is formed, while the smaller caseous areas become impregnated with lime salts. To such conditions alone should the term healing be applied."

The success of Eckman's Alterative in tuberculosis may be due partly to its content of a lime salt in such combination with other valuable ingredients as to be easily assimilated.

It is worth a trial, unless other treatment already is succeeding. We make no promises concerning it any more than do reputable physicians with their prescriptions, but since it contains no opiates, narcotics or habit-forming drugs, it is safe. From your druggist or direct.

How You Can Remove
Every Trace of Hair.

(Toilet Talks.)

A stiff paste made with some powdered delatone and water and spread on a hairy surface about 2 minutes will, when removed, take every trace of hair with it. The skin should then be washed to free it from the remaining delatone. No harm can result from this treatment, but be sure it is delatone you get and you will not be disappointed.

San Gabriel.

WITH the shady avenues and historic lanes the Mecca of many sojourners in our midst and many hospitable homes open for the entertainment of guests who are enjoying California sunshine and flowers, the missions, the orange groves and the expositions, society has been exceedingly active although all entertainments have been marked with simple informality. One of the most interesting events of the week was the meeting of the ladies of the First Methodist chourch on Friday at the home of Mrs. J. M. Garren on San Gabriel boulevard. The attractive social was well attended by the ladies who were intent upon their social plans during the fiesta to be held in the plaza on September 16. SOCIETY.

[illegible] guests of relatives in San [illegible] last week. On Wednesday the happy coterie spent a charming day in the historic environs of the old [illegible], attending the Mission Play in the afternoon. The party who are from West Virginia were delighted with the many attractions that Southern California offers her many guests.

[illegible] a merry party was given by Mr. and Mrs. Frank McCarty to a number of their friends on Wednesday evening at their home on Sunset [illegible]. The guests were bidden to come bringing the relics of their school days, not forgetting the school attire. Many of the costumes were provocative of great hilarity which was heightened by the playing of many of the almost forgotten games of childhood. A dozen guests were entertained at the McCarty home and the evening was one of the pleasantest of the week's social activities.

Azusa.

THE star-bedecked skies, and the limpid inspiring beauty of the silver moon, have been largely responsible during the last few weeks for the departure of many of the most enthusiastic of the vicinity for San Diego, where it is said the southern sky now in the fullness of its triumph is adding the lure of a perfect summer's silver moon throwing its shadows across the southern sea. Among the many who have availed themselves of a delightful motor jaunt to the hospitable and beautiful city of the south are the Hummels; Mr. and Mrs. A. Hummel, their charming daughter, Miss Lolah Hummel, their son, Roy Hummel and Mrs. B. Bowles, all of whom are revelling in the beauties of the exposition this week. Miss Christine Rury is another member of the social set who has flitted south to enjoy a visit with friends and incidentally the exposition.

One of the most delightful, although informal affairs, of the past week was the entertainment provided for the members of the men's training class which was tendered them by the members of the Women's Bible class at the home of Mrs. S. BLISTERS ON BABY'S HEAD

HEALED BY CUTICURA SOAP AND OINTMENT

"My baby was about a week old when his head, just above the ear and on the top, began to break out in blisters which dried up in a few days and made a crust. His scalp must have itched and burned as he did not rest well. It looked bad and lasted about two weeks.

"I began to use Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I washed his scalp in the morning with the Cuticura Soap and then applied the Ointment and again in the evening I applied the Ointment. After a few applications I could tell he was getting better, and in about two weeks he was entirely healed." (Signed) Mrs. Ruth Whitehead, Barton, Ore., March 10, 1915.

TODAY'S BEAUTY AIDS.

To clear up and whiten the skin and secure that charm of pink and white youthful freshness so much desired by all women you will find it far safer to rely upon a good face lotion rather than powder. To get rid of that shiny and muddy appearance in your complexion, dissolve four ounces of spurmax in one-half pint hot water, and add two teaspoonfuls glycerin. Apply this to your face, neck and arms, rubbing gently until dry. This lotion does not show or rub off like powder and is much better. It is splendid for removing tan, freckles, pimples and sallowness.

You can make a delightful shampoo for a very trifling cost if you get from your druggist a package of canthrox and dissolve a teaspoonful in a cup of hot water. Pour a little at a time on the scalp and rub briskly. This creates an abundance of thick, white lather that thoroughly dissolves and removes all dandruff, excess oil and dirt. After rinsing, the hair dries quickly, with a fluffiness that makes it seem heavier than it is, and takes on a rich luster and a softness that makes arranging it a pleasure.

Use Cocoanut Oil
For Washing Hair.

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, the less soap you use the better.

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Just plain mulsified cocoanut oil (which is pure and entirely greaseless,) is much better than soap or anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in. One or two teaspoonfuls will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanses the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily, and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulsified cocoanut oil at most any drug store. It is very cheap, and a few ounces is enough to last everyone in the family for months.

in song. The singers included Misses Gertrude and Dorothy Utt, Grace Hatfield, Emma Thorman, Lillian Martin and Myrtle Bowman, and Mrs. Philip Ebel was the accompanist. Mrs. Kate Ebel and Mrs. A. Thorman contributed interesting articles and talks, and Mrs. Minnie Childs gave an interesting account of the recent women's congress of missions in San Francisco. Mrs. James S. Rice delighted the large company with a beautiful rendition of "The Land o' the Leal," prefacing a delightful social hour, during which delectable refreshments were served by the hostess, the young ladies present assisting her. Mrs. Rice will be hostess to the society at the last meeting in September, an event looked forward to most pleasurably, as Mrs. Rice is a past mistress in hospitality.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Smith gave a charming dinner for Mr. and Mrs. M. O'Brien of Santa Ana and their daughter, Miss Ada O'Brien, who lives with them in their Santa Ana home, and Miss Myra O'Brien, N. C. O'Brien of Deer Creek, Ill.; Miss Nellie O'Brien and Mr. and Mrs. Will O'Brien and three children of Santa Ana; Edward O'Brien of Hanford, Cal. The table was prettily decorated with fragrant carnations and ferns, and the dinner, which was given on Thursday at midday, was a family affair, that was greatly enjoyed by the participants.

Half a hundred of her friends surprised Miss Edna Brown most delightfully on Wednesday evening, assembling at her home for a miscellaneous shower of gifts in honor of her marriage, which is to take place in the near future. The unexpected guests soon adorned the house with carnations and greenery, and then launched an already-arranged programme of amusements.

THE social calendar of the O.P.Q. Club was marked with red letters on Friday evening when Mrs. D. B. Horton entertained the members at her charming seaside cottage, The Breakers, at Laguna Beach. The ladies of the club were taken to their destination by Messrs. G. B. Darnell and D. A. Lowman, husbands of two of the popular club members, their automobiles making the trip in speedy time. The day was filled to the brim with the pleasures offered by the sea and beach, surf bathing being the favorite diversion. A clam chowder feast with incidental dishes that made up a three-course repast was served at noon, the visitors' appetites being sharpened by the long ride and the dip in the sea. Mrs. Horton was assisted by her charming daughter in the honors of the table, and Mr. Darnell, the only gentleman fortunate enough to be present, was seated at the head of the table. A mass of the radiant golden glow that enriches the hills of beautiful Laguna at this season of the year centered the table. Snapshots of the company were souvenirs, and those for whom places were marked were Mr. and Mrs. G. B. Darnell, Mmes. G. M. Loggins, H. O. Garlock, W. A. Lowman, Frank Cannon, Charles Winans, Charles Mitchell and the hostess.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Crookshank delightfully entertained on Wednesday evening, the event being a dinner party at which the guests were the capable and charming young women employed in the First National Bank, of which Mr. Crookshank is cashier and heavy stockholder. Mrs. Crookshank, a charming recent bride, was more than graceful in her hospitality, and the exquisitely arranged table over which she presided was decorated with yellow gladioli, arranged in a dainty Dresden vase as a centerpiece. Places were marked for Mr. and Mrs. Crookshank, Miss Lena Thomas, Gertrude Potts, Alice Trickey, Louise Potter, Minnie McClellan, Jessie Dungan, Rae McLean and Lena Potter. The evening following was whiled away with music and conversation.

Mr. and Mrs. O. G. James, hosts to a couple of charming young women of Los Angeles, Miss Evelyn Smith and Miss Beulah Bable, entertained on Wednesday evening in honor of their house guests. Yellow and green developed a pretty decorative scheme for house and tables, where dainty refreshments were served after an evening of dancing and music. Miss La Rue Fipps, Miss Emily West and George West were those who contributed vocal and instrumental numbers for the pleasure of the company. Those invited to meet the Los Angeles guests were Misses Jane Babbitt, Emily West, Vivian Talbert, Mattie Benedict, Messrs. George West, J. R. Mayer, Robert Graham, Harry Baade, Ivy Stein, J. E. Livesey, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Lee Daniel and Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Trudeau.

Mrs. Ida E. Dunphey entertained the ladies of the Past Matrons' Association most charmingly recently at the Main-street home of Mrs. P. L. Tople. Fancy work, sprightly conversation and a delicious collation offered pleasing entertainment to the following ladies: Mmes. George Balderston, W. D. Barker, D. W. Crawford, H. H. Reeves, Theo. Winbigler, P. L. Tople, Sherman J. Evans, W. L. Tubbs, J. R. Medlock, O. M. Robbins, W. S. Peek.

GERMAN SPIES IN CATACOMBS.

INVADE REFUGES OF EARLY CHRISTIAN MARTYRS.

Italian Soldiers Discover Germans in the Underground Galleries of Rome Equipped with Provisions for Months and Supplied with Plans of Italian Fortifications.

[Cleveland Plain Dealer:] The world has heard many strange accounts of the exploits of German army spies in all parts of Europe, but surely the strangest of all is that they have concealed themselves in the catacombs of Rome in order to spy on the operations of the Italian army.

Where the earliest Christians constructed these wonderful secret hiding places in the rock to escape the bloodthirsty tyranny of the Roman emperors, these efficient moderns have concealed themselves for the purposes of war. Where the earliest Christians sought refuge to conduct their sacred services in safety, the modern militarists have made a stronghold for the most subtle and deadly objects of the gospel of war. Even the construction of gun emplacements in factories on French soil and the storing of munitions in disused French quarries by the Germans can hardly equal this exploit.

Both before and after the outbreak of war the Italians conducted their military preparations with a secrecy remarkable even when compared with the precautions of this character taken by all the other powers.

Before the war they started to weed out and expel all the German and Austrian spies and secret agents, who swarmed from one end of Italy to the other, and followed every occupation, notably those of hotel waiter and professor.

Still they found that remarkably accurate information concerning Italian plans was going to Austria and Germany. It was then that an officer of the Italian army "intelligence department" caught sight of a spectacled, very Teutonic-looking person living in an obscure hovel near the Catacombs. He watched him and found that he was making use of one of the many secret entrances of the Catacombs.

The Italian War Office was aware of the significant fact that recent explorations of the Catacombs have been mainly in the hands of alleged German scientists. The Catacomb of San Sebastiano, for instance, was until a month ago the scene of busy German operations, and this happens to undermine an important Italian military post.

The Italian soldiers made a descent in force and captured a number of Germans who had concealed themselves behind a rampart of ancient skulls in the depths of the Catacombs. They were supplied with provisions for months, and portable electric lamps with which they could find their way in the darkness. The Italians are stated to have seized a quantity of papers in which the Germans had made plans of Italian fortifications and notes of military preparations. Some of these had been cleverly concealed behind the altar of the oldest chapel constructed by the early Christians.

The Germans had also made many sketches of religious decorations in the Catacombs, which are unrivaled in the field of early Christian art, but whether they had done this from pure love of art or to cloak their other operations may be questioned. It is equally uncertain whether the Italians have captured all the Germans who were concealed in the Catacombs.

It seems that the Germans used this place as a kind of headquarters, where they could spy on the plans of the War Office in Rome and on local movements of troops, assemble information, dispatch messengers to Germany when there was a good opportunity, and perhaps make an attack at a critical moment on the local defenses. The Italian War Office naturally refuses to reveal all that it has found out concerning the German espionage operations.

Iron in Water.

[Youth's Companion:] Iron can be detected in water by taste when there is one-half unit of it to a million units of water, and more than four or five units would make the water unpalatable. In some mineral springs iron is the constituent that gives the water its medicinal value, but, ordinarily, it is undesirable. If more than two and one-half units in a million are present in the water that the laundress uses for laundering, the clothes will be stained. If more than two or three units in the million are in water that the paper maker uses, his paper will be stained. The ice made from water that contains iron is cloudy and discolored. If much iron is in the water that the engineer uses for making steam, it will do harm, for it contains acids that, when set free in the boiler, corrode the boiler plates. The amount of iron carried in solution by most waters is, however, so small that the damage it does to steam boilers is generally not great. Water with a good deal of iron in it has in many instances caused great trouble and expense in city waterworks, for iron so favors the growth of crenothrix, a stringy bacteria, that the pipes in a little while become clogged with

THOROUGHNESS OF GERMANS.

An American Helped the War Preparations.

Tested Out Plan of Armored Automobiles.

And Developed the Bombs of Thermite.

[London Correspondence of St. Louis Globe-Democrat:] "Early in October, 1913, I noticed an unusual sounding want ad in the Detroit Free Press," said Charles Bertwood Pray. "It said, as near as I can remember now, that what was wanted was a draftsman and machinist for a model engine works, and the unusual part of it was that nobody need bother about applying if he wasn't 'fully, thoroughly, substantially capable.'

"The first day I didn't think much about it, but when it appeared the second day and the third day, my curiosity began to make it uncomfortable. So I went to my chief and told him about it and asked him if he thought maybe it was some sort of a 'catch,' a practical joke, or something of that kind. He thought it over and said it would not hurt me any to find out for myself—gave me a day off to go over to Detroit and satisfy my curiosity.

"The ad said to call in person at the Pontchartrain Hotel and was signed O. J. Fultz. Before I asked to see him I had a look at the hotel register and discovered he came from Zossen, Germany. Of course, right then I understood all those funny adjectives, or rather adverbs. It was a regular German way, and that was enough to satisfy my foolish curiosity. But I decided I might as well see the man, and I did. The minute I laid eyes on him I knew he was no plain mister. He had the title look. But when I asked him if he was Mr. Fultz he said he was—in perfect English. Then the next minute he made the queerest proposition I have ever heard—up to that time. I had mighty little idea then how many queer propositions I was going to hear him make."

After a test of his drafting skill, Fultz took Pray to New York, where six other American engineers were found at the Marlborough Hotel, who had been engaged by Fultz at various places. They were all compelled to produce their birth certificates, which Fultz took over, and which, according to Pray, have since been used by German spies. They were then taken to Germany, where the police took their measurements, photographs and finger prints.

THEORY OF DUPLICATION.

These, with the birthday certificates, according to Pray's theory, were duplicated and used by dozens of German spies of the same physical attributes, and who, by the production of the papers, could get American consuls all over Europe to issue duplicate passports on the representation that the original had been lost. They were taken first to a model machine works, ostensibly owned by Mr. Fultz, at Zossen, where they worked six months under eminently satisfactory conditions. At the end of the six months all the Americans except Pray and a man named Wyman decided to return to the United States. Then, Pray continued:

"Fultz told Wyman and me early in April he wanted to go to Wustrenhaussen—to another one of his model machine works. When we got there we found our work was to experiment with armored cars, motor lorries of 1000 kilos and upward. Some German had worked out a new theory regarding light armament practicable for automobiles, and we were to test it. The scheme was to use plates of Harveylized steel on the outside, thin boiler iron on the inside—and in between the two pulverized glass. I have found out since that the result of our original tests have been amply proved in actual service. The pulverized glass stops any kind of steel jacket projectile as effectively as three times the thickness of any other material would.

"So it was, even as late as May, we were hard at work building equipment for the German army and being paid by the German War Department—without having an idea of it.

"And after I had wasted several days and worked up a great deal of valuable material—and they had decided it was useless to go on—nobody seemed to care at all. 'Never mind,' Fultz would tell me, 'if not today, tomorrow. You are very clever. You will find the way. And then nothing else that has gone before will matter.'

"That is the German way. The American or the English manufacturer counts the cost first and the result last. The German—or in any event, the government in the matter of war munitions—counts the result first, last and all the time and the cost and time and trouble and wasted experiments as nothing."

Pray's next task was to install a dynamo on a lorry so close to the engine the lorry motor could operate it when the lorry was stopped. This he succeeded in doing and thousands of lorries so equipped have since been built. Subsequently Pray worked out a scheme by which the searchlight and a machine gun on the lorry could be operated by the same lever.

GOES TO KRUPP WORKS.

His next task was at the Krupp works, where he fixed a machine for pulverizing cotton. It was here Pray definitely learned Fulz was very close to Von Sahnelwan of the German Secret Service.

This was affixed to a machine which carried the pulverized cotton through a mixture of sulphuric and nitric acids, thus producing a powerful explosive. Thousands of these machines were made and sent to Turkey, where they are now in use as portable powder mills for the Turkish army, capable of being taken anywhere, even to the immediate rear of the firing line. This was in June, 1914, which indicates how clearly the Germans foresaw and prepared for the allies' attempt to force the Dardanelles.

Continuing, Pray said:

"Fultz came along one day and asked me if I knew anything about thermite. I told him I did. We use it in America in a welding process where great heat is required. He asked me if I could make thermite and I told him I could—if I had some willow charcoal, magnesium and iron filings. These were forthcoming at once and it was now up to me. After I had made a quantity of thermite, my next job was to make a canister to hold it. The yarn Fultz told me to account for this job was a marvel—viewed in the light of what I know now.

THE YARN FULTZ TOLD.

"He took me over to one corner of the works and showed me a cistern, out of which pipes ran to a boiler. His scheme was to drop canisters of thermite into this cistern and thus heat the water in it so it would require less coal to convert the water into steam when it reached the boiler. It was about the fishiest yarn I ever listened to, but he had done so many weird things by this time I was less surprised than I should have been otherwise. Of course, the cost of this thermite was so great as to make this method of heating water in the cistern ridiculous. However, I presently had a half-dozen canisters completed and filled.

"It had been explained to me that the canisters' contents were to be dropped out of the bottom of the canister as it was suspended by a rope over the cistern. It was necessary for me to affix a detonator at the top end of the canister, so the thermite could be ignited and expelled through the loose bottom by a pull of the rope. All unconsciously I was making a devilish contraption that a few months later was to be used by German airmen in Zeppelins in their raids on the English coast.

"The very same thing I made there in Witenberg was quickly reproduced by the hundreds and put aboard Zeppelins for dropping on unfortified English towns. And thermite gets hot enough to make a thermometer stagger. That which I made registered between 4800 and 5200 degs. Fahrenheit on my pyrometer in the cistern. It raised the temperature of water passing through the cistern in a steady flow to almost 200 degs. But, of course, it was absolutely ridiculous to try to heat water for commercial purposes in any such fashion.

"Later I saw them firing a slightly different canister that was put inside a 3-inch shell and shot out of a gun.

"The havoc this liquid fire caused on the testing grounds was plenty to convince any one of its hellish character.

"And this, remember, was in May, three months before war was declared."

When with the development of the war Pray saw he was being utilized to build war machines to be used contrary to all his sympathies, he announced his determination to quit and go to England. He made a few remarks about the Kaiser which braught about his arrest for lese majeste. His papers were confiscated and for months he was kept traveling from one prison to another, always being taken away when the various investigating commissions were due at a prison, his Yankee Americanism being so obvious the Germans would have been hard pressed to tell why he was being detained.

At last he reached the Rottenberg internment camp, where he was made a water carrier. So constantly joking about his intention to escape, he got the guards to believing he was harmless, and finally one night when he went for water, he ran off, wading a stream a couple of miles to keep the camp dogs from picking up his trail. He finally had the luck to hide in a freight car which carried him over the border into Switzerland, where a kindly Italian picked him up and took him into Italy in the guise of a mechanician.

He sneaked across the frontier into France, worked in a roundhouse at St. Michaels until he made enough to get to Paris, where American Ambassador Sharp sent him to Boulogne. Here he got a passage on a horse ship and reached England and has now been employed by the British government to tell what he did in Germany and to do likewise for England, an occupation for which he has a greater heart.

Value of Good Address.

[Philadelphia Telegraph:] Joseph E. Widener, the millionaire sportsman, was talking in Newport about homes.

"Philadelphia is the city of homes," he said, "but if your home is north of Market street you are considered, socially speaking, out of it. Your home must be south of Market street—you must live downtown—if you would be a social personality in Philadelphia."

"And yet, after all," said an Englishman, "what difference does it make where a man lives?"

"It makes all the difference in the world," said Mr. Widener. "A fact that is well remembered about Diogenes today is that he lived in a tub."

Where War is Unknown.

[New York Times:] There is one place in the world which has probably not yet heard of the war. This is the British island of Tristan da Cunha, in the South Atlantic, the secretary to the British Postmaster-General recently stating that the island has not received a mail since the outbreak of hostilities. The island is dependent on chance communications from the Cape of Good Hope, 1500 miles away. The inhabitants number about eighty, and are mainly descendants of shipwrecked sailors. They are of mixed origin—English, Scotch, Irish, American, Dutch, Italian, Asiatic and negro.

SAN DIEGO BAY.

A BIT of heaven, turned upside down,
Is San Diego Bay—
With the sky on top of the bluest blue,
Where the sea gulls scream at play.
Coronado peeps over one blue edge
In her bonnet of trailing green,
And golden Loma throws kisses back,
And the sail boats dance between.

THEN the big ships come and laugh at them,
Splashing white o'er the robe so blue;
And a war gun roars a bold salute,
And a bird ship dips to woo.
But the spell goes on and the waves come back,
And the screaming sea gulls play,
And their graceful shadows like phantoms fall
On the blue of the blue, blue bay.

THE USE OF CAUTION.

The New Reporter Found Too Much Caution had Too Much Kick About It.

[Puck:] "My boy," said the editor of the Billsville Bugle to the new reporter, "you lack caution. You must learn not to state things as facts until they are proved facts—otherwise you are very apt to get us into libel suits. Do not say 'the cashier who stole the funds;' say 'the cashier who is alleged to have stolen the funds.' That's all now, and—ah—turn in a stickful about that Second Ward social last night."

Owing to an influx of visitors it was late in the afternoon before the genial editor of the Bugle caught a glimpse of the great family daily. Half way down the social column his eyes lit on the following cautious paragraph: "It is rumored that a card party was given last evening to a number of reputed ladies of the Second Ward. Mrs. Smith, gossip says, was the hostess, and the festivities are reported to have continued until 10:30 in the evening. It is alleged that the affair was a social function given to the ladies of the Second Ward Cinch Club, and that, with the exception of Mrs. James Bilwiliger, who says she comes from Leavits Junction, none but members were present. The reputed hostess insists that coffee and wafers alone were served as refreshments. The Smith woman claims to be the wife of John Smith, the so-called 'Honest Shoe Man' of 315 East State street."

Shortly afterward a whirling mass, claiming to be a reporter on the Bugle, flew fifteen feet into the street and landed with what bystanders assert was a dull, sickening thud.

WHY NERVES SNAP.

Hard Mental Work Brings Stress on the Brain Centers and there is Need to Reduce the Tension.

[New York Sun:] "Modern man is a top-heavy being, whose brain is disproportionately superior to his other organs," remarks the New York Medical Journal in a discussion of the war from the psychologic standpoint. "This is an age of hard mental work, which brings stress on the highest and most recently-developed brain centers; it was inevitable that something should snap, and something has snapped; there is a temporary reassertion of primitive human impulses. In America, reaction was taking milder forms; the automobile, the baseball diamond, the gridiron, relieved the tension, particularly the dancing mania which swept over us like an obsession. Dancing is the most primitive form of reaction and tends quickly to re-establish equilibrium.

"Probably man does not want peace and tranquility, which are too close to ennui, his greatest dread. Prof. James was dreadfully bored by a visit to Chautauqua, with ice cream soda as its utmost offering and its 'atrocious harmlessness.' He knew man wanted something with more zest and adventure.

"Alcohol and tobacco relieve in an artificial way the tension upon the brain by slightly paralyzing temporarily the higher and more recently-developed brain centers. Were the use of these drugs suddenly checked no student of psychology or of history could doubt that there would be an immediate increase of social irritability, tending to instability and social upheavals."

INGERSOLL'S FAITH.

Beautiful Tribute He Paid to His Brother was Really a Belief in Immortality.

[Dayton (O.) News:] A correspondent wants to know if Robert G. Ingersoll, the great agnostic, recanted before his death. He says that he has read somewhere that the tribute which Ingersoll paid to his brother at the time of the latter's death was in reality a belief in immortality.

Whether Ingersoll "recanted" before his death, we do not know. Ingersoll never denied a belief in a supreme being. He simply said he knew nothing about the hereafter, but his tribute to his brother expressed a "hope," as many have stated it.

Perhaps the most beautiful part in that immortal tribute reads thus: "Life is a narrow vale between the cold and barren peaks of two eternities. We strive in vain to look beyond the heights. We cry aloud, and the only answer is the echo of our wailing cry. From the voiceless world of the unreplying dead there comes no word, but in the night of death hope sees a star, and listening love can hear the rustle of a wing."

Speaking of his brother, a little further along in his tribute, he said: "He who sleeps here, when dying, mistaking the approach of death for the return of health, whispered with his last breath, 'I am better now.' Let us believe in spite of doubts and dogmas, tears and fears, that these dear words are true of all the countless dead."

Distributing Elk Herds.

[Indianapolis News: The forest service reports that it made two "plants" of elk last year, viz., one of twenty-four head on the Colorado forest and one of twenty-three head on the Sopris forest. Since the distribution of elk began three years ago, a total of about 500 head have been plated in eleven national forests by the forest service, the biological survey and certain States, in nearly every case with successful results.

ELOPEMENTS IN GERMANY.

The Restrictions on Early Marriages Make Runaway Matches a Very Rare Event.

[Baltimore American:] One seldom hears of elopements in Germany, because it is impossible for young people to marry in that country without the consent of their parents or legal guardians.

Certain prescribed forms must be gone through or the marriage is null and void.

When a girl has arrived at what is considered a marriageable age her parents make a point of inviting young men to the house, and usually two or three are invited at the same time, so that the attention may not seem too pointed.

No young man, however, is invited to the house until after he has called at least once, and thus signified his wish to have social intercourse with the family.

In Germany a man must be at least 18 years old before he can make a proposal, but when it is made and accepted, the proposal is speedily followed by the betrothal.

The ceremony takes place privately, shortly after which the father of the bride—as she is then called—gives a dinner or supper to the most intimate friends of both families, when the fact is formally announced, and shortly after it becomes a matter of public knowledge.

Order of the Obus.

[London Chronicle:] The men who work for Krupp's, of whom some thousands have gone on strike, can qualify for a curious decoration known as the Order of the Obus, established by the grandfather of Frau Krupp von Bohlen. This takes the form of a miniature obus fashioned of platinum and mounted in gold. It is bestowed only on workmen with an unsullied record of twenty years' service, and is usually worn as a tie-pin. Krupp's higher employees are also eligible for the Order of the Obus, the insignia in their case consisting of bomb-shaped platinum and gold cuff-links.

[Indianapolis News:] Official statistics show that the vessels of more than fifty-five tons register in the merchant marine of Spain on January 1, 1915, included 217 sailing vessels, with a total tonnage of 29,115, and 640 steamers, tonnage 875,609, compared with 236 sailing vessels, tonnage 32,970, and 628 steamers, tonnage 844,322, on the corresponding date of 1914.

In Ancient Setting.

WONDERS OF OLD SANTA FE CITY.

Has Coloring of Orient Under Andalusian Skies.

Most Picturesque City Built in United States.

Air of Mystery Transferred by Conquistadores.

[Rev. David M. Steele, D.D., in Philadelphia Press:] Among the many matchless scenes of Nature's making and the things of monumental size, the outdoor scenery and sights of modern man's achievement, in the great West—canyons, rivers, plains and parks, Yosemite, big trees, vast reclamation projects, caravansaries and expositions—it is good to find, if only by comparison and for relief by contrast, a historic center that is as important in its way, as unexampled in America as all these others are, for that matte rin all the world. I mean the old city of Santa Fe.

The seasoned traveler of two continents, after he has compared the attractions of both, will make admissions of grandeur in the new world places of his pilgrimage; but he will usually regret that places in this country lack the atmosphere that age alone can give. Well, that depends. It depends upon whether he has or has not seen this region. In this series of articles I have reverted so often to places and things of the former class that it is a joy to find the land I travel through containing at least one of the desired and desirable second class, one that ranks equally with others of the first in its own special manner of importance. Indeed, it is a place not only of historic, but of prehistoric interest.

COLORING OF THE ORIENT.

In this portion of the great Southwest is this one corner with the coloring of the Orient under Andalusian skies, in a setting older than that of Babylon and Damascus.

Something of that intangible air of mystery that the Moors brought from the Far East to Granada was transplanted from Mexico to American soil by the conquistadores. Here, among scenic surroundings that must have reminded them of their Iberian home, blossomed the City of the Holy Faith, the capital of the Sunshine State, and the most picturesque city of the United States. And yet this ancient civilization was built on another, equally as picturesque, but a thousand years older. Far back beyond this old, old Pueblo culture is a substratum that imagination has pushed back to the very birth of mankind, the cliff and cave-dwellers, whose 20,000 cave and cliff dwellings puzzle the archaeologist with their well-preserved ruins and remains.

Santa Fe is the capital of New Mexico. But that is unimportant, compared with the many other things it is. It has fine, large sanatoriums and regal homes for wealthy invalids, in which, as well as being center and distributing point for lesser of the same, it reminds one of Saranac Lake. But that again is not its primary claim to importance. Those who would see three realms at once, without danger and without far travel, Spanish Mexico, our own entire American Indian life, and the best that remains of the whole frontier West, who would learn the history of conquest for three centuries, read the entire romance of their country's early settlement, from the Louisiana Purchase, through the gold fever of '49, and the military occupation of the Southwest in Apache and Buffalo Bill days, and who in addition would rest while they study, and regain health while resting, let them go to Santa Fe.

ITS LINES OF INTEREST.

Here focus an unusual number of lines of interest, each one of which in kind has made some other place world famous. Among them, for example, are at least these things: Its historic background, its romantic story, its monuments and reminders of three wars, its relics of frontier encounters, its reminders of overland trail days, its environs full of prehistoric people's works and worship, its ideal climate, its paradise not far removed for fishermen and sportsmen, its position now as stopping place between the Painted Desert, the Petrified Forest, the scenes and settings of snake dances and other strange orgies of the Indians, the Grand Canyon and last of all, the sunny land of Southern California.

This region, little known as it is, has not gone wholly unobserved nor unappreciated. It will be more heard of and as well known soon as it richly deserves. It will be preserved for one reason alone: On this Jemez plateau, skirting the Rio Grande del Norte, there are found habitations of prehistoric man in great ruin centers, suggestive of cities.

Around these cluster the pueblos of Indians who represent a civilization antedating the discovery of America. The result is an area of greater archeological and ethnological value than any other within the United States. To preserve this area as a field for scientific research and as a recreation ground for the people of the United States bill have even now been introduced in the Senate and in the House of Representatives proposing to create of this area the National Park of Cliff Dweller Cities.

The principal charm of the story of life here written at present is Spanish, but all that is only since it was prehistoric. The tone of its present-day life is Mexican rather than American and the population is Indian rather than either. The architecture is "mission" and the building material is "adobe." But the great point is the wide diversity of its attractions. Here is a city that has scenic, ethnologic, historic and prehistoric interest. Here are stored old Spanish archives covering two and a quarter centuries and numerous paintings of great age. There was outfitted a regiment to serve in the Mexican war. Here stands the ruins of Fort Marcy, on a hill outside the town. Here volunteers from Colorado, together with natives and cowboys, saved the Southwest to the Union in a bloody two days' battle.

Most important of all, here ended, in the old frontier days, before the railroad's coming, the famous, blood-stained, toil-sanctified and skeleton-strewn Santa Fe Trail.

FAMOUS OLD ADOBE HOUSE.

At one corner of the plaza the old adobe house still stands which was once fortress, tavern, trading post and rendezvous for all types to foregather when, with cavalcade to guard them across the dreary plains, the old stages from their trip across the desert with its dangers drew up, inclosed in dust and laden with adventurers.

And yet, early as was that date and long forgotten as are its peculiarities, this city is older by far than this century even. It was an established city before the Pilgrims landed at Plymouth. It was known adown the western portion of the continent before Jamestown had become a permanent abode. For, in 1606, Juan de Onate, one of the Spanish conquistadores, founded his capital here on the ruins of two small Indian pueblos. It was the northermost point to which the Spaniards pressed as long ago as 1540, as it later became the western terminus of the old transcontinental trail.

Nineteen American and seventy-six Mexican and Spanish rulers have successively occupied its palace. Here it was, incidentally, that Gen. Lew Wallace, while Governor of the territory, wrote "Ben Hur." The city has survived all those strange modulations by which a Spanish province has become a State of the Union. The story of the palace stretches back into real antiquity; to a time when the inquisition had power, when zealous friars of the Order of St. Francis exhorted throngs of dimly comprehending heathen, and when the mailed warriors of Coronado told marvelous uncontradicted tales of ogres that were believed to dwell in the surrounding wilderness.

San Miguel Church is believed to be the oldest church building in the United States still used for public worship. Built about 1607, destroyed in 1680, rebuilt in 1710, it has been renovated now in recent years. In the rear of the auditorium stands a bell cast in Spain in the fourteenth century. The altar painting is more than six hundred years old. Adjoining it is the oldest cemetery in the Southwest. Tradition has it that the remains of De Vargas lie under the altar.

A WONDERFUL AREA.

Here, therefore, as a result of these many districts' convergence, is the most wonderful fifty-mile square in America. This palace of the governors is the oldest government building in the United States. The names of the two hotels, the De Vargas and the Montezuma, give hint of the people's pride in their antiquity. And the people themselves are unique. On these streets I was not once asked for alms, pestered for backsheesh, nor was I served by any one obsequiously for a tip. They are a proud and self-respecting lot, these people, with their American thrift and frugality, and with their old-time Spanish pride in leisure. They have new world industry with old world sense of aristocracy.

There are wonderful environs also all about, with this as center, for a dozen or two dozen miles. There are good trout streams in many cataracts of the upper Pecos. That stream itself glides through sylvan dells, to reach which one passes through as many and as picturesque Indian villages. A vaporous view of the sunset, as the train ascends the Glorieta Divide, reveals the reason for the impressive, not sacreligious name, "Blood of Christ Mountains." With an altitude itself of 7000 feet above the sea, the city is yet the center of a plain around which mountains rise on every side towering to heights 10,000 to 13,000 feet. At an altitude of 9600 feet, a scenic highway has been built by convict labor up the canyon, over the Dalton Divide and down Mancho Canyon. All about there are the ruins of historic pueblos, as at Pecos, discovered by Coronado in 1540, at San Cristobal and at San Marcos. There are peublas inhabited to this day, linking the old and the older in one civilization, as at Tesuque, Santa Clara and San Ildefonso.

THE FRIJOLES CANYON.

Points of prehistoric interest are Pajarito Park, the region west of the Rio Grande, with 20,000 cliff dwellings scattered through its numerous canyons. The most interesting of these is the Frijoles Canyon, with the ruins of prehistoric communal houses of which the most important are Tyuonyi, a circular shaped structure; Tsankawi, with deep trail worn into rock by human feet; Otowi, with the largest pottery accumulation found on the plateau; Puye, containing over 1000 rooms on the ground floor of one structure; the Ceremonial Cave; the Painted Cave; the Stone Lions, an important prehistoric shrine, and the Stone Tents, peculiarly shaped rocks in a branch of the Otowi Canyon.

Ultimately this whole region is to be restored. The traveler will be able then to wander through once buried cities older than Pompeii. Just at present, a quite practical and feasible thing is being done and to the advantage of all concerned. A consistent plan is being adopted of having new building, much of which is being done, carried on along the lines of old time architecture, so that the new city yet to be will duplicate in its appearance and design the olden one that was, and this part of New Mexico at least, be a true replica of the old. Santa Fe is coming into its own rapidly, this urban center of the antique time, and for the most modern of reasons; namely, the National Old Trails Highway should naturally follow, as chief course of all, the Old Santa Fe Trail, should it not? And so it does. Today this town is wayside stopping place on the automobile route from Baltimore to Los Angeles. Think of that, ye who count distance in the East.

Types—By Sara Moore

With a mission in life.

Her mother said she had artistic temperament; her dad growled that the child was morbid and her brother described her as "frequently crazy;" Helen Louise characterized herself as a person with a mission in life.

The soul throbs in her diary recorded that at 15 Helen Louise yearned to be an actress. She secretly practiced fainting gracefully into the arms of a handsome stage lover and dreamed of wearing decollete dresses and acquiring a huge fortune through her exalted dramatic art.

When the new rector, young and very spiritual, came to the church Louise blushed at the thought of a low-cut gown and the worldliness of her ambition. She still scorned girls who placidly planned to be school teachers, librarians and stenographers. But she looked upon the saintly face of her youthful mystic and felt herself dedicated to some Good Cause. The benightedness of the heathen touched her and she hoped that her New Inspiration might praise her—after ten or fifteen years devoted to carrying a knowledge of the gospel to foreigners—provided, of course, she was not eaten by cannibals in the meantime. When she discovered her pastor's hobby was home missions she switched to loving less fortunate fellow-beings—the washwoman's family—and read to sick old ladies who were openly bored at her sweetly gracious efforts to brighten their lives with jelly and poetry.

There was an aching void where her religious enthusiasm had been soon after the attractive minister left the church to manage a pin factory. Helen Louise's family went through a distressing period of discomfort and suspense until the girl "found herself" again. An English teacher mildly praised her essays and rhymes and suddenly she knew that all her pulsing, yearning impulses were misunderstood symptoms of a Great Soul. She was to be a poet.

But all American poets have to be Bohemians, and the girl drifted into a set of literary people who dreamed novels and wrote newspaper stories and flocked with artists who copied J. M. Flagg and Helen Dryden, and hoped to turn out to be Rembrants or Sargents at least. They had teas in the studio of a china painter and read things out loud in dreamy, rhythmic voices.

Here Helen Louise met a New Thoughtist, a Socialist and a Settlement Worker. She caught New Thought first, and developed a passionate admiration for the magnetic, poised woman leader of the cult. The Social Settlement Worker aroused her love of action and she found herself teaching settlement classes, visiting despairing tenement dwellers. For the first time in her innocent young life she faced grim actualities—poverty and its offshoot, brutality, sickness, dishonesty, prostitution, insanity and ignorance.

Naturally the work brought the girl in touch with several groups of reformers, men and women who were pouring wealth and service into efforts to cure evil by doctoring its effects. Prohibition, anti-tuberculosis, white slave traffic fights, working-girl's-home-promotion all claimed her in turn. At 25 Helen became one of those who see no help for bad social conditions but legislation. As her horizon widened she felt that special legislation no more corrected big evils than her baskets of chicken broth and tea and second-hand clothes helped to cure the poverty of the families she knew.

Then Helen had nervous prostration and had to be sent West.

Her mother sighed "Temperament."

Her dad cussed "modern morbidity."

Her brother said "Dippy."

And for four years her friends asked idly: "What do you suppose Helen Louise is doing now?

Helen Louise came back to attend her mother's thirtieth wedding anniversary last week. Recollection of her sad, haunted expression, her wild unhappiness and her big emotions prepared her expectant friends for some sublime or tragic climax.

She came accompanied by a wide-waisted husband, mischievous twin boys and a doll-like daughter.

Helen Louise has found her mission in life.

She has a double chin and belongs to a card club.

OVER THE SEA.

Senor Bernardino Machado, the new President of Portugal, has long been the head and front of the republican movement, even under the monarchy, and was the logical choice for President on the establishment of the republic, that honor, however, being denied to him. As Premier under Braga and Arriaga, he has done much to rescue the new republic from the shameful mal-administration of Costa and other extremists.

Sir David Beatty, who has been promoted to be Vice-Admiral, commanded the British fleet, which, in August, 1914, sank four German warships off Helgoland and won a victory over a German squadron on the North Sea the following January. He is only 45 years old and is the youngest officer ever promoted to the rank of Vice-Admiral in the British navy.

Speaking of narrow escapes and charmed lives, a soldier in the English army, William Clark, not only went through the South African war unscathed, but was serving as fireman on board both the Titanic and the Empress of India when those liners went down, and escaped without injury.

For several weeks Queen Amelie of Portugal, incognito, has been working as a trained nurse in the Third London General Hospital at Wandsworth. Queen Amelie has been working eight hours daily, performing the same heavy tasks as those assigned to other nurses.

Queen Wilhelmina is now often seen taking her little daughter, Princess Juliana, for a boating trip on the small lakes in the vicinity of the House in the Wood, her summer palace near The Hague, and Her Majesty needs no waterman to row her skiff. She is quite at home with a pair of sculls and delights in the exercise.

Gen. Beneckendorff von Hindenburg, who planned the great Russian campaign and has since been leading a command, was born in Posen in 1847, and spent his boyhood in the small garrison towns of Pinne and Glogan, until he went to the cadet school. He first saw active service in 1866. At Rosberitz he was wounded in the head. It is said of him that he was ever most abstemious, seldom smoked, and never touched a card. He felt something for art and for all questions of moment. There are said to exist water-color sketches from his hand which show great promise. Nevertheless the military element prevailed. As a teacher of tactics at the military school he always dealt most fully with the chapter on the Mazurian Lakes.

Horatio Bottomley, editor of the renowned weekly, John Bull, is one of the best, if not the best, maker of recruiting speeches that the war has brought forth. He began life as an errand boy, and is today a national figure. A born orator, he has been described as "the best lay lawyer in England," having learned more law than most legal big wigs know, while working as a stenographer at the Royal Courts of Justice, though he never took the trouble to gain admission to the bar. For years he was one of the greatest company promoters in the city of London. He sat in Parliament for six years and was one of the most picturesque figures in the House. He is renowned as an owner of race horses, and his weekly journal, John Bull (one of his many journalistic ventures,) claims the biggest circulation of any weekly in Great Britain, probably with justice, for it is read by the working classes, who swear by Horatio, as a kind of modern gospel, though it is not exactly that.

MEN AND EVENTS.

Donn M. Roberts, ex-Mayor of Terre Haute, Ind., now in the Federal penitentiary at Leavenworth for election frauds, works in the prison laundry washing the prisoners' clothes. He was first assigned to clerical work, but complained that his laundry was not done to suit him.

"Do you think it could be done any better?" the superintendent asked.

"I see no reason why not," the ex-Mayor replied. "I'd think anybody could do better than this."

"Well, then, you're just the man we want. Get to work."

After missing a train, Rev. A. M. Rich walked from Valdosta to Quitman, Ga., a distance of seventeen miles, to keep an engagement. Mr. Rich arrived ten minutes late, and none of his congregation was aware until afterwards he had walked.

Rudolph Ulimer of the Adjutant-General's office, War Department, is in the fifty-fourth year of his service in the government. He celebrated his fifty-third aniversary in the Federal employ last week, taking a day off. Mr. Ulimer first entered the service of the United States in 1857, when he became a drummer boy of the Second United States Infantry. He was then but 12 years old, but after the recruiting officer had looked him over he was admitted to the ranks, and soon thereafter participated in campaigns in North Dakota against hostile Cheyenne and Sioux Indians.

Young Old Men.

[Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph:] The late John Bigelow, the patriarch of diplomats and authors, and the no less eminent physician and author, Dr. S. Weir Mitchell, were together several years ago at West Point. Dr. Bigelow was then 92 and Dr. Mitchell 80.

The conversation turned to the subject of age. "I attribute my many years," said Dr. Bigelow, "to the fact that I have been most abstemious. I have eaten sparingly and have not used tobacco and have taken little exercise."

"It is just the reverse in my case," explained Dr. Mitchell. "I have eaten just as much as I wished, if I could get it; I have always used tobacco, immoderately at times, and I have always taken a great deal of exercise."

With that, Ninety-two years shook his head at Eighty Years and said: "Well, you will never live to be an old man."

She Scored.

[Baltimore Star:] Small boy (to stout old lady who was hauling herself into the tram with difficulty)—"If they'd given yer more yeast, missus, when yer was young, you'd been able to rise better."

Stout old lady—"An' if they'd a-given you more yeast, my boy, you'd a-been better bred."

THE UNCHLOROFORMED.

Dr. J. M. Peebles, for many years a resident of Battle Creek, Mich., is now living in his 94th year, and enjoying excellent health, the result, he says, of regular habits of life, early hours for retiring, with plenty of exercise, and strict attention to matters of diet. He also discards from his daily menu all condiments, such as vinegar, pepper sauce, mustard, catsup and similar appetizers.

I., editor of the Republican Watchman of that place, and who is one of the oldest editors in the United States, being 88, has recovered sufficiently from an operation to be back at his post. Mr. Reeves was in the hospital for nearly three months and at one time his recovery was in grave doubt. He is Supervisor of his town.

Police Justice Milton C. Lowden of Elizabeth, N. J., 91 years old, recently asked to be relieved of his duties "in order to make room for a younger man." He says he will probably marry again, as he desires to leave some good woman his fortune.

The combined ages of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel G. Hills, Mr. and Mrs. William Besse and Mr. and Mrs. Augustus L. Jones, all natives of Union, Me., total 507 years, and only Mrs. Jones is less than 80 years. Mrs. Jones and Mr. Hills are sister and brother.

Mrs. Esther Dees of Montgomery county, Alabama, 108 years old, and widow of a Confederate veteran, has been placed on the first-class pension roll of the State. An Alabama law provides that widows of Confederate veterans who are more than 70 years old shall be entitled to draw a first-class pension.

Mrs. Lydia Miller of Mt. Carmel, Pa., 101 years old July 18, is still hale and hearty and reads, sews and attends to household duties. She proudly exhibits among her most prized possessions a telegram sent her by President Woodrow Wilson on her 100th anniversary extending the birthday greetings of the nation.

Alexander Bates of Bolivar, Miss., 120 years old, has made application for a pension. He is a Mexican war veteran.

POLITICIANS, STATESMEN.

James B. Forgan, president of the First National Bank of Chicago, is forming an organization to be known as the National Marine League, for the purpose of arousing the nation to the necessity of American marine development. Representative business men of the Middle West have been enlisted in the movement and are seeking to enroll the leaders in the biggest commercial enterprises in the country. Plans have been made to raise a campaign fund of $125,000. It is proposed that the central Federal reserve banking district be reported by 150 members, each of whom has been asked to subscribe $250. Branch leagues are to be organized in each of the twelve Federal banking districts.

Samuel Alschuler, the Democratic nominee for Governor of Illinois in 1900, is to be appointed judge of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals to succeed Peter S. Grosscup, resigned.

W. W. Russell, former Minister to the Dominican Republic, who was removed by Secretary Bryan in favor of James M. Sullivan of New York, is to be reappointed to the office he had filled so well. Mr. Russell has been in the diplomatic service for almost a score of years.

Secretary of State Lansing will abolish the grape juice custom of Mr. Bryan when he begins his receptions to the foreign diplomats in Washington.

Thomas R. Marshall, Vice-President of the United States, is worrying about what he is going to do when his term of office expires, he told an audience at a Chautauqua lecture in Salina, Kan. He intimated he would not return to the practice of law. Politics, he declared, was so quiet it was uninteresting, the duties of Vice-President being too easy, but he did not like Chautauqua lecturing, because it was too hard.

Thomas Taggart, Democratic national committeeman of Indiana, must go to trial with more than 100 others for conspiring to corrupt the Marion county (Indiana) elections. Forty-three counts in the indictment found against him were sustained by Special Judge Eichhorn. Among his companions in trouble are Mayor Joseph E. Bell and Chief of Police Perrott of Indianapolis.

Gov. Rye of Tennessee and Gov. Brewer of Mississippi are among the leading Prohibitionists of the South. Once more recalling the old inquiry, what's in a name?

Five of the men mentioned in connection with the Republican nomination for President hold Congressional commissions. Messrs. Weeks, Borah, Cummins and Sherman are members of the Senate, while Mr. Mann is a member of the House. While the four Senators are all prominent in the labors of the Senate, Mr. Mann is the Republican leader in the House, and will thus be more in the limelight during the coming session of Congress.

OVER THE SEA.

The Russian Grand Duke, commander-in-chief of the Russian armies, is described as having a voice not only very deep, strong and clear, but as having a peculiarly satisfying effect upon the ear. He is a tall man, standing far above every one else, and has a very [illegible], sincere and [illegible] expression. He is a man of quick decision in emergencies; he has the faculty of gathering round him the best and strongest men in the country, and he has the modesty and humility which is the mark of real greatness. He has no desire for popularity or applause; he does not care who gets the credit so long as the thing is done.

Dr. Unokichi Hattori, professor of Confucian classics in the Imperial University of Tokio, will arrive in America next month to take up the Japanese lectureship at Harvard for one year in succession to Prof. Anesaki, who lectured there for two years on the history of Japanese religion and literature and Buddhist ethics. Prof. Hattori will expound the Oriental philosophy, or rather, the Chinese system of ethico-political teachings.

Prof. Goldstein, the German physicist, is said to have discovered a new kind of ray which he calls bottle rays, because they are produced from the Leyden jar. These rays belong to the same class as the famous X-rays, but when exposed to certain gases they reveal a different color than the other rays in the same gases. The bottle rays are very long and are shaped variously. At their end they seem to dissolve in forms like clouds of gases.

MEN AND EVENTS.

Speaker Champ Clark has found in his Congressional district the banner twin-producing zone of the entire country. This zone is High Point, Montgomery county, Mo. In the last few years twelve sets of twins have been born in a radius of two and one-half miles from High Point. The twins in the neighborhood are: Eugene and Josephine Jones, Robert and Shell Harvey, Mattie and Maggie Conley, Emmett and Marion Hickerson, Minnie and Maggie Hereford, Ella and Ethel Hart, Irene and Josephine Scholl. The following persons, now dead, were parents of twins: Henry Terence, Joseph Hudnall, W. Nicholls and J. Adams, the latter the father of two sets of twins.

Jack Cardiff, one-time pugilist, who has been Billy Sunday's trainer for several years, has quit his employ and signed a contract with Rev. Henry W. Stough, whose evangelistic methods are the same as Sunday's. He was in the fight game for eighteen years and boxed 257 fights, and lost only four or five decisions.

Two pairs of twins in a period of twelve months is the record of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Creighton, of Ferry Pass, Fla. The announcement was made a few days ago that [illegible] the parents of a boy and a girl. Twelve months ago a pair of boys were born to them.

NEW TYPE OF AEROPLANE.

British Will Try Out a New

[St. Louis Globe-Democrat:]

One of the features of this new ma-great thing claimed for it is the of remaining practically motionless of bomb-dropping raids by aeroplanes up to now is due to the high rate of speed at which aviators have been obliged to travel over the objects which their attacks have been di-

Now Are the Days Children Need Care

Summer Heat Dangerous to Little Ones if Bowels Are Neglected

A mother cannot do better for her child than to train it from early infancy to regular habits, not only as a preventative against much of the illness to which children are more or less subject, but also to insure their health in later life.

Normal activity of the bowels is the basis of sound health. This is especially true with children in hot weather. Do not neglect any tendency they may show to constipation, but promptly administer a gentle laxative, that will carry off the congested waste without shocking the system.

An excellent remedy for this purpose is the combination of simple laxative herbs with pepsin known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin and sold in drug stores for only fifty cents a bottle. It does not contain opiates, narcotics, or harmful habit-forming drugs of any description, acts easily and naturally without griping, or other discomfort and is positive in its effect.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin has been the standard remedy in homes for a quarter of a

FICTION.

JOHN GALSWORTHY.

THE FREELANDS. By John Galsworthy. Charles Scribner's Sons, New York.

IN NO PLAY or novel has Mr. Galsworthy turned with more serious attention and sincerity to the social conflict than in "The Freelands."

Many a zealous author has futilely striven for an effect similar; that is, accurately to project the various dissonant opinions; without losing artistic value to present seriously and deeply the controversial aspects, and without disclosing bias, prejudice or preachments to win attention for the unpleasant phases of class strife.

Though the title—"The Freelands"—refers directly to the families of the Freeland brothers, each of the four representing distinctly a social class, yet it may seem to have something of a symbolic significance, since the freedom of English lands for the masses is the problem upon which the novel is built.

Stanley Freeland, the manufacturer of plows which are not adapted for use in English fields, has the capitalistic outlook and deplores the revolutionary agitation. John is high governmental officer and is somewhat wedded to the fatalistic conception that "whatever is, is right"—and couldn't be changed. Felix is an author of distinction, brilliant but hardly fearless and has sympathies rather than convictions. Instinctively, in dress as well as theories, he clings to the compromise, always the painless, noiseless, undecisive compromise.

But Tod, wedded to one whose black eyes and fiery character cause his relatives to speak of her as a gypsy, is a lover of the land and with his handsome, spirited son and daughter lives close to the land. His brothers are exasperated that he should not only sympathize with laborers' movements, but should lend a hand in stirring up strife against the Mallorings.

It so happens that Mrs. Malloring has views on the morality of marrying one's dead wife's sister, and a tenant, otherwise acceptable, is evicted for this offense against what Mrs. Malloring considers to be God's pleasure.

Skillfully, very skillfully, Mr. Galsworthy manipulates the numerous characters of importance, and evades the tedium of monologues, but clearly establishes the opinions and convictions of each. Quickly, seemingly without effort, contrasts are imposed, dramatic contrasts. Each character appearing, whether but a peasant limping across the field and speaking but a word or so, is endowed with personality, quite distinctive.

But for all of the intense love between Nedda, the daughter of Felix, and Derek, son of Tod, the book lacks the warmth of which Mr. Galsworthy is capable. In the choice between two methods he has chosen the intellectual. Even the passion of Nedda, seeker of knowledge, and of Derek, whose soul is harrowed by the suffering and injustice of the peasant, is an affinity of minds, a strong, loyal affectionate sympathy.

"The Freelands" seem to be something of an alembic for many of the problems Mr. Galsworthy has put into his plays. A faint echo of "Strife" is here; a closer resemblance to "Justice" is perceived in the trial and conviction of the incendiary laborer; and in the ineffectual paternalism exercised by the Mallorings over their dismissed tenants there is a reminder of the "charitable futilities" so notably presented in "The Pigeon."

But here, as in those plays, the author is deliberately impersonal. "The Freelands" is typical of Mr. Galsworthy's more serious work, a strong book, written with a grace possessed to the same degree by no other modern novelist. But in this book, though objectivity is, we may say, rigorously sustained, there is no question but that he has disclosed, in a way that cannot be misinterpreted, his own sympathies, if not even given a glimpse of his own conclusions.

ROMANTIC CONFESSIONS.

ME. A Book of Remembrance. (Anonymous.) The Century Company, New York.

THE author of this unmothered confession admits repeatedly that at the age between 17 and 18 she was very, very beautiful, very fascinating. And at that age she went blundering from one scrape into another, always landing on her feet or on some man's pocketbook, getting herself engaged because she hadn't the heart to refuse the nice men who wanted to marry her, precociously selling stories to magazines, and doing all manner of erratic things that make interesting reading. Perhaps the colors of her imagination have heightened the dramatic effects of the innumerable amusing and serious situations. It seems that way. But the accuracy of incident has no literary interest "per se." And "Me" is interesting; and whether it is fable or fact has nothing to do with it.

"Me," who is Me, equipped with more self-confidence than wisdom, slipped from her Canadian home when 17 to become a "journalist" at Jamaica. Practically all the men in sight fell in love with her, and she fled from the island when a wealthy negro planter proposed to her.

In America she struck up a casual acquaintance with a millionaire, became the secretary to a physician who wanted something more, fled on the millionaire's money to Chicago, became a stenographer and had all manner of embarrassing experiences, most of which, however, did not embarrass. The millionaire, jealous but considerate and very proper, showered clothes and jewelry upon her and she returned his kindness with a love that could not understand why he would not consider marriage. But when she understood—and burned all the [illegible] butts and cakes of soap which he [illegible] and were cherished by her as mementoes.

It isn't an absurd story, nor realistic for all of its claim to truth, a claim supported in an introduction by Miss Jean Webster. It is essentially romantic, told with almost breathless speed, tinted with humor. And there are a hundred thousand words which bear between the lines evidence that the author of "Me" is probably much more lovely and fascinating than during the immature maidenhood of which she writes with naive conceit, egotistical frankness.

COLORFUL WESTERN STORY.

THE RAINBOW TRAIL. By Zane Grey. Harper & Bros., New York.

IN "THE RAINBOW TRAIL," Zane Grey returns to the desert, laying a romance of some complication, involving the Mormons and the practice of polygamy, in the land of the Navajos. The story was originally published serially as "The Desert Crucible," and though independent and complete in itself bears a relation to a previous book, "Riders of the Purple Sage."

Mr. Grey is a stirring romancer, a bit too stirring and strained perhaps for some who are not particularly entranced by western fiction; but, though his books are filled with action and complication, he keeps his story well in hand, succeeds largely in the palpable effort to avoid the flashily melodramatic and carefully, with a degree of real art, infuses color into his scenes and personality into the characters.

While it seems the epitome of unreality to relate that Shefford, a former minister and an upstanding man, comes from the Middle West seeking a girl about whom he has woven day-dreams and whom he knows was lost with friends in a walled valley many years before, yet under the author's handling the note of absurdity is largely eliminated by the skillful development.

Shefford, of course, discovers her; but in a way that surprises and under conditions that twist his heart-strings and force much excitement into subsequent developments. Fay Larkin, being driven into an unconsecrated marriage with a Mormon whose face she has never seen, is a member of the polygamist colony hidden away from prying Federal officers.

Mr. Grey shows plainly, however, that he has not sought a pretext to flaunt a prejudice against the Mormons.

His descriptions, both scenic and of persons, are good, vivid, full of color and seldom drawn past the effect desired; in other words, are brief and effective. And without being a particularly strong or striking story, it is signally without the usual defects attending stories based on improbable plots and whipping the action furiously forward for dramatic effects.

AUTHORS AS CRITICS.

ARNOLD BENNETT. By F. J. Harvey Darton. Henry Holt & Co., New York.

H. G. WELLS. By J. D. Beresford. Henry Holt & Co., New York.

ANATOLE FRANCE. By W. L. George. Henry Holt & Co., New York.

Any author will gladly tell you that critics are stupid nincompoops—lack appreciation, mouth inane praise or roast like the devil for insignificant defects. Bad lot, these professional critics. Conceited. Pigheaded. Dull.

Comes now a phalanx of authors, reputable authors, among them some remarkably good authors, to take the bread from the mouth of critics. Authors are to be judged by their peers, not by garreteers. Henry Holt & Co. have carried the wooden horse into the critical citadel, and we find in our midst the "Writer of Today" Series presenting studies of prominent contemporary writers by others who are not so prominent.

Arnold Bennett receives the courteous attention of F. J. Harvey Darton, whose name so far has scarcely been spoken above a whisper into Fame's trumpet. And we can't believe that this critical treatise will inspire Fame to yell. Mr. Darton has practically limited himself to reporting Mr. Bennett's achievements, and to paraphrasing Mr. Bennett's confessions in "The Author's Craft" and "The Truth About an Author." Attention is called to the influence of "Five Towns" on Mr. Bennett, and the fact that most of men are not heroes, but scalawags when not scoundrels. Mr. Darton's critical study can scarcely be of value, beyond a few chronological and obvious facts, to any one who is not familiar with Mr. Bennett's work; and is certainly of little value for anyone who is.

H. G. Wells is the prisoner of J. D. Beresford. And while it seems that Mr. Beresford is a bit awed by the fame and dignity of Mr. Wells, yet a firm, though rather hurried, analysis is made.

Mr. Beresford has failed, failed, failed to infuse into his criticism anything of the charming style or personality characteristic of his own novels. He is one of the very best of the younger novelists, in many respects better than Mr. Wells himself.

"I am willing to maintain," he says, "that H. G. Wells is second to none as a writer of romances of the type ("the War in the Air," "The World Set Free," etc.) I have just examined. I am less certain of his position as a novelist.

But though "less certain," Mr. Beresford neglects to go far into details as to why. His compliments are strong; he credits Mr. Wells with accuracy of observation, objectivity and sincerity. Also, he has considerable praise for the philosophical Mr. Wells, the essayist cutting out holes of one pattern in the social state for round and square pegs alike. But one knows a good deal about Mr. Wells and his work when the book is finished; information is correlated, points are made and there is much which shows the result of burrowing inquiry.

Now then: We come to Anatole France, the brilliant. And W. L. George, himself an author easily in a class with Mr. Beresford, and that is one of distinction, has handled his subject with ease, respectful familiarity, facts well arranged. It is a charming and enlightening disquisition, a discourse that does credit to the greatest of living satirists and to Mr. George.

Facts are adorned with style; accuracy, however, is not sacrificed for vivacity, nor is vivacity absent.

Anatole France's books are ably expounded, though briefly. One gets a perspective on the development and work of the great Frenchman; one gets both a guide and an interpretation. It may be said that this is a notable critical study; all of the salient points in Anatole France's philosophy and achievements are touched, his mental character unveiled, and the whole of it is written without either much praise or censure.

THE WAR IN EUROPE.

A POIGNANT RECORD.

IN A FRENCH HOSPITAL. By M. Eydoux-Demians. Translated by Betty Yeomans. Duffield & Co, New York.

THE actual horrors of the war in Europe, the personal sorrows and sufferings, are largely being presented to the world with the emphasis of understatement. The emphasis of moderation, the simplicity of fact, are alone adequate in the recital of things in themselves astounding, terrible, anguishing. Telescopic adjectives serve to vivify somewhat the distant horror, but when it smashes like a fallen meteor at one's feet, no stress of emphasis can add to its magnitude.

And "In a French Hospital" the simplicity of statement is signally striking. The translator's note too modestly says: "The only merit of these notes is their profound sincerity;" which being interpreted subsequent to reading the small book means their unaffected, unstrained descriptions of actual conditions in a French hospital.

Here, for instance, is a tragic volume condensed to one sentence. An unhappy father found on the dead body of a son who had distinguished himself in action a will written in one line, thus: "If we are victorious, I beg my parents not to put on mourning for me."

The nurse who has so artlessly recorded her sentiments and impressions glows with admiration for the poor, broken and shattered men who come back from the firing line; and we submit that this paragraph has an epic strength: "Our wounded! Those, in a word, who have brought back in their very flesh the frightful scars of the enemy's iron, those who have cemented with their own blood the human wall that is now our frontier. They have come back, not with their courage drained, broken down, horror-stricken, stunned—not at all. They forget themselves to talk smilingly of the great hope in which we all share. They are touched, deeply touched, by the few hours of fatigue we undergo for them each day—for them who have given almost their lives."

It is the quiet heroism, sacrifices of the soldiers, and, unconsciously, revealing that of the nurses also, that these sketches disclose. A vivid book; and in the merit of it, the translator, Betty Yeomans, has, as translators always have where the result is felicitous, considerable credit.

"GERMANY'S POINT OF VIEW."

GERMANY'S POINT OF VIEW. By Edmund von Mach, A.B., A.M., Ph.D. A. C. McClurg & Co., Chicago.

ONE fact, scarcely visible when the European governments with an air of impetuous frankness published their "official" diplomatic documents, has since emerged and by now has assumed mountainous proportions. There is much behind the war which has been deliberately suppressed.

In "Germany's Point of View" Edmund von Mach shows beyond cavil that there have been significant omission and suppression, contradiction and distortion in the colored books of the allies. (And anyone familiar with the Austrian and German papers is likely to feel that these, also, are pregnant with half-truths.)

He has written a forceful controversial volume, breaking through his calm only once or twice, when analyzing Sir Edward Grey's alleged peaceful plotting for war; and adroitly presenting historical records of English atrocities as a contrast to the pious horror which Britishers now represent themselves as feeling toward the Germans.

Stress is laid on the fact—it is a fact; one that the average American doesn't seem able to get into his head—that practically all of the war dispatches published in this country are colored with British ink and sanctioned by the British censor. The English are not so much to blame as we for stupid credulity.

The author reviews the diplomatic history of the war; describes the German constitution and shows that universal suffrage does exist and that the Kaiser has no power of veto over both houses; tells of conditions in Alsace-Lorraine; defines the rights of neutrals on sea and land; gives the German-American's opposition to the exportation of arms; discusses the boundless food resources in Germany; and tears into the French Yellow Book and British White Book with the "deadly parallel."

"Germany's Point of View" is dependable as honestly and accurately presenting just what the title says; and, as such, is a book that deserves attention.

The Riverside Press at Cambridge, Mass., printers for the house of Houghton Mifflin Company, did a record piece of work in getting out C. W. Barron's "The Audacious War," which was published the 20th of February. Within forty-eight working hours of the time the copy was received by the printers, it had been set up in type, proofread, electrotyped, printed, bound, and jacketed.

FOR BIRD LOVERS.

WILD BIRD GUESTS: How to Entertain Them. By Ernest Harold Baynes. E. P. Dutton & Co., New York.

MR. BAYNES is a bird lover, therefore he hates the English sparrow. He argues for the extermination of this little, motled vagrant of the air and tells how best to go about the execution.

Now it so happens that at Meriden, Ct., the visitor is likely to be greeted before he goes two blocks from the station by some wild bird that perches on his shoulder, peeks under his hat and chirps a welcome. Mr. Baynes gives a very interesting description of how this came about in his "home town," of how the villagers protect and feed the wild birds and how, in turn, the feathery guests give song and friendship the year around.

What Mr. Baynes relates of the success of Meriden, the bird-loving village, is incredulous—except that one doesn't doubt it after following his explanations and descriptions. Wild birds are breakfast guests; they eat from the hand; they come pecking at the window, asking to be fed—in fact, these wild birds are more friendly than the pet canaries in the average cage.

How this came about is told with considerable detail; and information is given as to how other communities and individuals may, to some degree, have similar success. The enemies of birds, disease, storms, cats, snakes, foxes, weasels have their records bared, together with instructions in precautionary measures that assist in protecting the wild birds.

Mr. Baynes has gone up and down the country lecturing and organizing bird clubs; and in this book he tells something of that work, aiming always to give practical advice for those who wish to have wild-bird guests. And he lays emphasis on the statement that the English sparrow must go, must be exterminated, as they run out other birds, usurp the houses, eat the food and play havoc with the more timid and less hardy songsters.

SAN FRANCISCO FAIR.

THE JEWEL CITY. By Ben Macomber. (With colored frontispiece and more than seventy-five other illustrations.) John H. Williams, San Francisco and Tacoma.)

MR. MACOMBER has studied the Panama-Pacific Exposition carefully, appreciatively, and in "The Jewel City" gives an account of its planning and achievement, its architecture, sculpture, symbolism, music, gardens, palaces and exhibits.

He has tried to cover, in so far as is possible without encyclopedic freedom, the essential features of the exposition in a manner both descriptive and interpretative, and has done so with more thoroughness than has been shown in any book on the subject that has come to our attention.

Mr. Macomber points out that "the artistic quality which distinguishes this exposition above all others in America or Europe rests on two outstanding facts: the substantial unity of its architectural scheme, and its harmony of color, keyed to Nature's coloring of the landscape in which it is placed."

Each building of importance, each distinctive painting, decoration, piece of sculpture, garden or artistic effect receives comment that does not seem hurried, though it is, and, necessarily so, brief.

The book is admirably classified and indexed, and the appendix contains information not usually assembled; as the list of sculptures and mural paintings, where they may be found; statistics of construction work; the exposition officials and committees; lists of foreign commissioners and those from the States and islands; also a bibliography including the important and valuable works on the exposition.

COMMENT AND OPINION.

Introduction.

We have gone forth and stolen, purloined, swiped, our "Comment and Opinion" for today. It is so much easier, and better, than writing it. Read with care and listen closely: these are comments and opinions by one of the finest of American novelists.

The Epoch of the Novel.

"Today is the day of the novel. In no other day and by no other vehicle is contemporaneous life so adequately expressed; and the critics of the twenty-second century, reviewing our times, striving to reconstruct our civilization, will look not to the painters, not to the architects nor dramatists, but to the novelists to find our idiosyncrasy."

The Mercenary Novelist.

"Yet novelists are not found wanting who write for money. . . . We condemn an editor who sells his editorial columns, and we revile the pulpit attained of venality. But the venal novelist—he whose influence is greater than either the Press or Pulpit—him we greet with a wink and a tongue in the cheek. This should not be. Somewhere the protest should be raised, and those of us who see the practice of this fraud should bring home to ourselves the realization that the selling of one hundred and fifty thousand books is a serious business. The people have a right to truth as they have a right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. It is not right that they should be exploited and deceived with false views of life, false characters, false sentiments, false morality, false history, false philosophy, false emotions, false views of religion, of duty, of conduct and of manners."

The Novel with a Purpose.

"It is the complaint of the coward, this cry against the novel with a purpose, because it brings the tragedies and the griefs of others to notice. Take this element from fiction, take from it the power and opportunity to prove that injustice, crime and inequality do exist, and what is left? Just the amusing novels, the novels that entertain. The juggler in spangles, with his balancing pole and gilt ball, does this. You may consider the modern novel from this point of view. It may be a flippant, paper-covered thing of swords and cloaks, to be carried on a railway journey and to be thrown out of the window when read, together with the sucked oranges and peanut shells. Or it may be a great force that works together with the pulpit and the universities for the good of the people, fearlessly proving that power is abused, that the strong grind the faces of the weak, that an evil tree is still growing in the midst of the garden . . . that the races of men have yet to work out their destiny in those great and terrible movements that crush and grind and rend asunder the pillars of the houses of the nations."

The Province of the Novelist.

"To make money is not the province of the novelist. If he is the right sort, he has other responsibilities, heavy ones. He of all men cannot think only of himself or for himself. And when the last page is written and the ink crusts on the pen point and the hungry presses go clashing after another writer, 'the new man' and the new fashion of the hour, he will think of the grim long grind of the years of his life that he has put behind and of his work that he has built up volume by volume, sincere work, telling the truth as he saw it, independent of fashion and the gallery gods, holding to these with gripped hands and shut teeth—he will think of all this then, and he will be able to say: 'I never truckled; I never took off the hat to fashion and held it out for pennies. By God, I told them the truth. They liked it or they didn't like it. What had that to do with me? I told them the truth; I knew it for the truth then, and I know it for the truth now.' And that is his reward—the best that a man may know; the only one really worth striving for."

Thus spake Frank Norris as is recorded in his "Essays on Authorship" (Doubleday, Page & Co.) Never to our knowledge have finer and stronger words on the duty of the novelist been spoken; never did a novelist cling more tenaciously to his conception of duty; and dead though he has been all these many years—with thousands upon thousands of novels dumped smotheringly upon his own—yet "The Octopus," "The Pit," "McTeague," "Moran of the Lady Letty," remain and are respected.

PUBLISHERS AND AUTHORS.

Maxim Gorky's "My Childhood," which is the story of the great Russian author's life from his earliest memory to his seventeenth year, when he was pushed out of his grandfather's house to shift for himself, is scheduled for publication shortly by the Century Company. The book is said to be an astounding narrative of brutalities and beauties, following one another in unforgettable contrast.

Now when Haiti is again in the public eye and there is a chance that the United States may intervene to restore order, it is interesting to recall that 126 years ago this country was the gem of the West Indies with a white population of nearly 40,000. Sixteen years later, the last white man had been hunted down and killed by the black slaves, and Haiti, or French Santo Domingo, had relapsed into savagery from which it has never emerged. The story of this strange and tragic episode has been told for the first time in English by T. Lothrop Stoddard, son of the famous lecturer, in his recently published "French Revolution in Santo Domingo."

Considering his wide popularity, there seem to be very few books on Bernard Shaw. Henry Holt & Co. have just signed a contract with Dr. Richard Burton, ex-president of the Drama League of America, known throughout the country as a lecturer largely on the drama, author of "The New American Theater," "How to See a Play," for a book tentatively known as "Bernard Shaw: the Man and the Mask," which they hope to issue next March. At the same time, they have concluded arrangements with him for his "Poems of Earth's Meaning," which will appear later.

Houghton-Mifflin Company announce that more than twice as many copies of "K," Mary Roberts Rinehart's new novel, have been sold before publication than were sold altogether of either the "Street of Seven Stars" or "The After House." This is surely a remarkable record in the face of the European war and the general reaction in the book business, and is convincing evidence of Mrs. Rinehart's steadily growing popularity.

Doctor of medicine, successful dramatist, London clubman, wanderer in several countries, student of human society, and now revealed as a realistic novelist of genuine power—such is William Somerset Maugham, who is today only 41 years old. His latest revelation, as novelist, has just come, with "Of Human Bondage," published on August 3—a story so strong and sincere and vivid that it may well outlast his cleverest stage comedies.

In 1908, Mr. Maugham, then the youngster among the playwrights, made a sensation by having four plays running at once in London. He has been successful with many plays, among them "A Man of Honor," "Mrs. Dot," "The Explorer," "The Tenth Man," "Loaves and Fishes" and "The Land of Promise," in which Billie Burke made a furore as star.

Mr. Maugham's experience of life has been far broader than that of most writers. He was educated at King's School, Canterbury, at Heidelberg University, and studied medicine at St. Thomas's Hospital in London. Some of these varied experiences he draws upon in "Of Human Bondage."

Dr. Daniel Carson Goodman's last novel, "Hagar Revelly," published two years ago, was hailed by some critics as the "novel of the year." The Boston Transcript numbered it with the best twenty-two American novels which have "permanent literary significance." Dr. Goodman's next novel will be entitled "The Hunter" and he promises to have it completed by next January. It will be in two volumes and contain over 500,000 words.

At the benefit sale of books, manuscripts, etc., held by the Authors' Club in New York recently on behalf of Belgian sufferers one of the most interesting items was a copy of Cyrus Townsend Brady's last novel, "The Eagle of the Empire," in the copy of which Dr. Brady had inscribed, "It is, I think, rather interesting that a book which treats of the war in Belgium a hundred years ago and the great battle of Waterloo, in which the Belgians bore so gallant a part, and in which all of the parties now engaged participated, although in different combination, should be sold for the Belgian Relief Fund."

CANADA BLACKIE'S STORY.

A rather strange story of reformation is related in "The Story of Canada Blackie" by Anne P. L. Field, which contains an introduction by Thomas Mott Osborne, warden of Sing Sing prison. Canada Blackie was one of the most desperate, hardened and cunning criminals in New York, and sustained solitary imprisonment for some twenty months in a darkened cell. From this he was released and subjected to the more humane treatment introduced by Mr. Osborne, quickly responded to kindness and before his death was one of the most active agents among the convicts for insuring better conduct. He was pardoned by Gov. Whitman and died soon afterward of consumption contracted in prison. The story is told principally through the medium of letters written by Blackie to friends. Published by E. P. Dutton & Co.

"THE PIONEER BOYS."

"The Pioneer Boys of the Yellowstone," by Harrison Adams (The Page Company) is the latest of "The Young Pioneer Series." In this story Rodger and Dick Armstrong (well known to youthful readers of the series) have accompanied the Lewis and Clark expedition to the Yellowstone, hoping to secure the signature of a friend whose statement is needed to prove up on their family's land. The boys have a number of thrilling experiences in what is now the National Park, and are the first of the white men to look upon the wonders of nature there.

Boy-and-Girl Love

is the theme in which the author of "The Dark Flower" excels every other living writer.
This springtime love is the central theme of his new novel, "The Freelands." But, incidentally, there is a brilliant commentary on some of the most absorbing social problems of the day.

A Dental Phillipic Against False Ethics And False Teeth

Author of "Modern Ethics."
Inventor of artificial roots and crown methods.
Recently associated with Doctors Younger and Good of Paris.

Dr. Homer's authorized articles are published exclusively in the Southwest in this newspaper. To the many who have been following and studying previous publications by Dr. Homer, this announcement will doubtless be the most interesting and valuable of those published to date.

If you don't tell people what you are able to do you may not have the opportunity to do anything.

If you don't advertise you may become a sluggard. And what does the proverb say about sluggards? If idleness is a crime, is it not a crime to be idle through failure to let people know you can work?

He who imagines that modern advertising is not good ethics and good morals as well as good business is a bicuspidati diplidocus, and ought to come out of his comatose state and curry-comb his convolutions.

Some men can only do their best amid the buzz of industry, surrounded by a group of congenial souls. For such a man, if he be a dentist, to coop himself up in a cubby-hole of a room and wait for customers to push in the door, is death.

He may have a genius for leadership, but your so-called ethical dentist of Narrowgageville says "nay" and thrusts him back. "Truth," says Dr. Charles W. Elliott, "is the new virtue." Let the truth be known about your business.

Not to advertise is to be nominated for the Down-and-Out Club.

The Adscripts and the Adcrafts are opposition societies to the Mummy Trust. They look to the East; they worship the rising sun. The oleo of authority does not interest them. They want the Kosmic Kerosene that supplies the caloric. A good Adcraftscripter is never either a philophraster or a theologaster—he is a pragmatist—he seeks the good for himself, for his clients, for the whole human race.

The science of advertising is the science of greater service. The successful advertiser of today works to supply human wants. He educates the public as to what it really needs, and shows where and how to get it.

Everything that is useful is sacred. Good dental advertising is useful and therefore it is sacred.

Mastication

The old plan of pulling the teeth that were manifesting too much ego has gone out of fashion.

The very worst use to which you can put a tooth is to pull it, just as the worst use to which you can put a criminal to is to kill him. But through ignorance or neglect, teeth will disappear. Then the proposition is to replace them, especially the molars, which do the most important part of mastication. People without a full set of molars cannot possibly chew their food properly, though they may think they can. They bolt it, thereby throwing too much work on the other organs. The result is seen, sooner or later in diseases of the liver, stomach, kidneys or intestines.

A large percentage of cancer of the stomach comes from this cause, and many cases of appendicitis have been traced to it. Nature's plan is that the first stage of digestion of all food, except fats and proteids, shall occur in the mouth, through thoroughly mixing the saliva with them. To use a medical term, they must be insalivated.

Now note that mastication does two important things—not one: First, it causes saliva to flow; and, second, it mixes it with the food. You won't have enough saliva unless you Fletcherize, and saliva is a chemical production—the invention of God which you cannot omit without paying the penalty. Saliva changes starch into sugar, which the juices of the stomach cannot do. Think of this the next time you eat bread or cake.

Saliva also changes cane sugar, which is very indigestible, into grape sugar, which is easily digested. Remember this the next time you have a box of Huyler's. A noted English authority, Dr. H. Campbell, of London, says: "On starch the saliva acts very potently, and herein mastication plays a special part in promoting digestion of starchy foods. Indeed, if only mastication be persisted in long enough, starch may be wholly converted into maltose (a form of sugar) within the mouth. Provided they be sufficiently insalivated, there are few starchy foods that are indigestible, not even excepting the proverbial indigestible new potato."

A great German professor, Doctor Von Oerfele, has found that so much starch is digested when food is insalivated, that he actually can tell by the excretions whether the patient has molars or not. His investigations included many people who wore artificial teeth. He had these people eat part of the time with their teeth and part of the time without them, and he was able to tell every time by examining their excretions, when the teeth were in and when they were out. When they were in, the starch disappeared because it was digested. When the teeth were out the starch was found in large quantities, because the stomach and intestines could not utilize it when the food which contained it was not insalivated.

Prof. Von Oerfele's investigations prove that we can cure diseases of the stomach, intestines, liver and kidneys, by establishing proper mastication, and that we cannot have normal digestion or realize full food value without the molars.

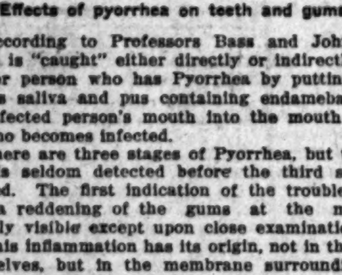
Goodwin Brown, in "Scientific Nutrition Simplified" says on page sixty-four: "While the saliva has no appreciable chemical effect upon the fats and proteids, it is capable of practically completing the digestion of the starches and sugars before they are swallowed into the stomach if they are retained in the mouth long enough and subjected to sufficient mastication."

Horace Fletcher was down and out physically and had been rejected as an impossible risk by the best insurance companies. He put himself on the slide and discovered that his teeth were in bad condition. He had his teeth put in good order and then began masticating his food properly. He not only became well but unusually vigorous for a man of his years, so that any insurance company in Christendom would be glad to insure him. That was the beginning of Fletcherizing.

Page after page might be quoted to show that thorough mastication is indispensible to health and long life.

Next in importance to proper use of the instruments of mastication is the care of these precious pearls. The greatest care should be exercised in guarding against infection of the White Plague of the human mouth, which we will now consider.

Pyorrhea, the Greatest Plague of the Human Mouth, is Contagious and Curable.



Effects of pyorrhea on teeth and gums.

According to Professors Bass and Johns, Pyorrhea is "caught" either directly or indirectly from another person who has Pyorrhea by putting more or less saliva and pus containing endamebae from the infected person's mouth into the mouth of the one who becomes infected.

There are three stages of Pyorrhea, but the disease is seldom detected before the third stage is reached. The first indication of the trouble is usually a reddening of the gums at the margins, scarcely visible except upon close examination.

This inflammation has its origin, not in the gums themselves, but in the membrane surrounding the roots of the teeth. Here is where the germs of Pyorrhea do their destructive work, spreading from one tooth to another, until all the teeth are affected. As the disease progresses the membrane is destroyed, the gums recede and the teeth become loose in their sockets. In advanced cases pus forms around the teeth, oozing out under pressure, the gums become sore, spongy and bleed easily, holes called "pockets" appear between the teeth, and the affected teeth finally drop out.

There is never any pain in the first stages of Pyorrhea, and for this reason the patient is seldom aware that anything is wrong with his teeth until pus exudes or the gums begin to shrink. Then too, the disease usually has its start in a single tooth, and its progress is so slow that the slight symptoms may pass unnoticed for years.

Everyone should have his teeth examined by a Pyorrhea specialist at least twice a year.

The old method of treating Pyorrhea is called "scaling." It consists of scraping the roots of the teeth by means of a sharp instrument, which is passed between the tooth and the gum. This treatment alone is not sufficient to cure Pyorrhea, because the inflamed and spongy condition of the gums needs additional attention to restore them to health.

Under ordinary condition the process of scaling is very painful. However, the use of our Analgesic does away with discomfort and makes the operation a simple one.

Artificial Molars

Common sense will tell that thorough mastication is impossible without a full set of grinders, or molars.

This is such an important matter that if you have any molars missing you had better get busy and study it. Read Goodwin Brown's book mentioned above, or Horace Fletcher's "The A. B. C. of Our Own Nutrition," both published by the Frederick A. Stokes Company, New York. After you have read them you will hike to a dentist and ask him to furnish you with molars, without delay if you are wise.

Now the question is, how can we replace molars after they are gone? The old way was with plates or bridges, but both have disadvantages, plates especially. I have recently perfected a system which is a great improvement over both.

The Homer Replacement System

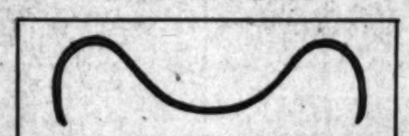
This is more efficient than older forms of artificial teeth, and you can masticate food more thoroughly with it. Heretofore bridge work has been the best method of replacing lost teeth, but the Homer Replacement system is more sanitary than ordinary bridge work, more easily kept clean, more sightly and more durable because there is less strain on the anchor teeth. It is made, inserted and worn without discomfort, and when it is cemented into position it is almost as satisfactory in every way as good natural teeth—much more so than poor ones.

In short, the Homer Replacement System is so superior that you will recognize its superiority as soon as you see it. No technical knowledge is necessary to grasp its merits, or to perceive its advantages when it is shown side by side with other forms of artificial teeth.

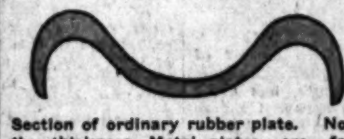
For the purpose of comparison I have models of the old and the new work in my consultation room, to show to friends "from Missouri" and I am always willing to take time to talk about the insalivation of food and its influence on health and longevity.

It is a great satisfaction to know that one does more through his work to add to the health and happiness of the human family than falls to the lot of most mortals.

The Superiority of Metal Plates, or What is Best When All the Teeth are Gone



Section of metal plate. Only one-quarter as thick as rubber plate. The tongue comes nearer the palate, preventing that "whistling" noise so sommon to rubber plates when you talk.



Section of ordinary rubber plate. Note the thickness. Metal plates are free from the offensive odor which all rubber plates have. Metal is a perfect conductor of heat and cold, therefore it keeps the gums healthy and prevents them from shrinking.

Very few people know why a rubber plate becomes loose and wobbly after it has been used a few months. The reason is that the rubber plate does not carry off the heat generated under it, with the result that the tissues become shrunken. The shape of the gums and roof of the mouth are altered and the plate no longer fits properly.

My new metal plate is so moulded that a more permanent suction is obtained than is possible with rubber. This, together with the extreme thinness, helps your speech and prevents the "whistling" noise when you talk. The gums are faced with vulcanite or porcelain to match the natural gums, and can be carved by hand to give them a life-like appearance.

One of the best features is its extremely light weight. It weighs less than half as much as the average rubber plate, is far thinner and yet practically unbreakable.

It will usually last a life-time where a rubber plate, as a rule, can be used for only a few years at best. It is made to fill out the face and eliminates lines and wrinkles. It makes the wearer look years younger and gives pleasure and comfort in eating.

The Way of Conducting a Large Practice

Today we live in an age of specialists. One man may know in a theoretical way, the various departments and branches of dentistry, but when it comes to doing the work and doing it well, no one but a specialist can fill the bill.

Something more than knowledge is necessary in dentistry—there must also be digital skill. It is one thing to write music and another thing to produce it. Richard Wagner was a great composer but he was not a pianist; and when he wanted to hear his productions played superbly, he had to call on his old friend, Liszt. Music was in his head but he could not get it out with his fingers.

While I know the whole theory of dentistry, the science has grown so much that it is now beyond the range of common sense for any one man to attempt to put that theory into practice. Also, it is absurd to send work out of the office to be made up by mechanics who lack artistic sense and who never see the mouth into which their work is to go. I decided years ago to try a new way.

And so I began to look around for dental associates who could do particular tasks in dentistry superbly well. I hired these men and made them secure against economic risks. I also insured them against worry and disturbance in their work. They were experienced, efficient men, each with unusual skill in a special branch.

And now instead of practising in the usual way, I put into the hands of specialists all my work, beyond seeing every patient and diagnosing every case myself. My methods and ideas are passed along to my associates. This does not destroy their individuality; it merely increases their initiative, resulting in constant discovery of new and better methods and a general increase of skill that is impossible in any other way.

There is an excellent and true saying, "Get your happiness out of your work or you will never know what real happiness is." But your work must be congenial; you must cut out the part you don't like; you must specialize. Then you will not only be happier but your work will be better.

The conditions for constant improvement, for congenial work, and for general happiness and helpfulness which are found in my office, explain why some of my fellow-workers have been with me for years. Also, why so many of my patients declare they really enjoy coming to my office, and are sorry when their visits come to an end.

The Abolition of Pain

Anesthetics were formerly used in dentistry, the same as in surgery, to make operations easy. In fact, it was a dentist (Doctor Morton of Boston) who first discovered the principle of anesthesia and used it in extracting a tooth.

The principle of Doctor Morton's discovery was to deaden the entire nervous system of the individual so that pains could not be felt in any part of the body—the patient could be operated on at any point or place in his physical cosmos without feeling it.

As is well known, Doctor Morton's discovery revolutionized surgery. But it is a back number today. I have special local treatments known as Analgesic, that do away with pain in the particular spot only on which I operate, and affect no other part of the body. As the part operated on is small and involves such a minute portion of the human anatomy, no interruption of general bodily comfort is experienced. The patient is not put to sleep and does lose possession of any of his faculties in the least degree.

Sympathy

It ought to be said, however, that much of the pain in dental work is the fault of the dentist. The average dentist, like the average man, is unsympathetic. His mind is riveted on getting the job done—he wants to earn his money as quickly as he can, and he hasn't the imagination or sympathy necessary to put himself in the place of the patient.

Now sympathy is the first requisite of a good dentist, because from it come patience, gentleness, and carefulness.

Of course he must have skill—the ability to do a thing well and do it quickly, but not too quickly. If a dentist has sympathy and skill, many delicate operations in dentistry can be performed without the use of an obtunder. "Obtund" in the old dictionaries meant to pound into a state of insensibility. The word "obtund" now, however, has a new use and a new meaning. It means to cause the local nerves to throw up their job—to sleep. Sensation for the time being is done away with, and the operation goes merrily on without a trace of painful sensation.

Obtunders of the right kind, skillfully used, are wonderful things.

Two things are necessary to abolish pain in dentistry: First, the skill which comes with specialization; second, the gentleness which comes with sympathy. Without the first, obtunders will not do the trick, because the technique of using them is difficult to acquire. Without the second, obtunders will not be used at all, because they require extra time and trouble, which an unsympathetic operator will not give. Speaking of time—this is one of the Homer rules, "take time, don't hurt, forget the fee."

Many dentists have an ambition to alleviate the pain. The ambition of myself and associates is not merely to alleviate pain, but to do away with it entirely.

HARRISON GRAY OTIS

Author, Publisher, Soldier, writes:

"I willingly add that the difficult dental work done by your office for the benefit of my jaws, was thoroughly well done, and is proving altogether satisfactory.

"With good wishes, I remain."

The Late ELBERT HUBBARD,

Genius, Author, Publisher, man of new ideals, wrote Dr. Homer in a personal letter, endorsing Dr. Homer's reasons for dental advertising:

"I heartily agree with every proposition you put forth and expect to quote from you in the near future."

JAMES W. HELLMAN,

The aggressive Los Angeles citizen-business man, says:

"In reply to your request, I will say that the tooth you replaced for my ward can not be told from nature's own. The work was painless."

MME. SAHARET,

Orpheum Star and idol of the [illegible], writes:

"I am delighted to have my teeth cared for without pain. I think your analgesic method wonderful; also, your offices are the finest and most complete I have seen in all my world's travels."

LILLIAN GISH,

Starring in leading roles in the greatest motion-picture productions, the charm of whose art is known the world over, says:

"Your work is artistic and really painless, and I am satisfied it is the best obtainable."

W. M. BAIRD, Banker,

Owner of the famous Mt. Olivet Ranch, Duarte, Cal., and a National Banker, says:

"Where I had formerly a few decayed roots in my mouth, which were affected with Pyorrhea, I now have a full set of solid teeth and the Pyorrhea is cured, as a result of Dr. Homer's painless dentistry."

Dr. Homer's Office is in the Orpheum Theater Building Entrance 636 S. Broadway

the noted palmist, of London, England, may be consulted at 322 SOUTH SPRING STREET, by those desiring CAREFUL, CONSCIENTIOUS AND SCIENTIFIC HAND READINGS, FROM ONE OF THE FOREMOST PALMISTS OF THE DAY.

The earnest student and thinker will soon learn in his investigations along psychological lines that that which pertains to occult phenomena proper can readily be distinguished from crude and oft-exposed SLEIGHT-OF-HAND TRICKS, the most common of which is the telling of the subject's name, age, etc., AFTER HE HIMSELF HAS WRITTEN THAT information.

PALMISTRY HONESTLY PRACTICED WILL NOT tell your name, but it WILL give you information of considerably greater value in every-day life. Your vocation, your present line of work, matters of health and domestic life, financial conditions and ways and means of climbing out of a rut of ill luck into wide paths of success and prosperity, can all be told you through scientific palmistry, WITHOUT A SINGLE QUESTION, WRITTEN OR VERBAL.

MRS. MASSON DOES NOT APPEAL TO IGNORANT SUPERSTITION, BUT TO THE FINEST INTELLIGENCE.

HIGH-CLASS PATRONAGE SOLICITED.

And remember, every used car we sell carries with it the copyrighted Earle C. Anthony, Inc., service coupon book, good for service labor at any one of our 117 service stations in California.

POULTRY—POULTRY SUPPLIES—
For Sale, Exchange, Wanted.

FOR SALE—MR. POULTRYMAN.
Do you have late hatched chicks, pullets that are maturing too slow, old hens that are off feed or young cockerels that are not eating enough? If so we have a limited supply of special food which we find especially valuable as an appetizer. During the hot weather the birds become languid, they lose interest in their old rations, they don't eat enough, consequently they don't develop as they should. This condition is recognized by all caterers to poultrymen's troubles and the market is burdened with tonics, laying foods, mustard and wonderful restorations. Practically all of this 20c to 50c per lb. truck, if effective at all, operates as an over-stimulant and a destructive irritant on the fowls' system, which eventually breaks down the reproductive organs.

The Poultrymen's Co-operative Association has always stood strong against condiments in food. We believe skill in feeding food is the solution for most ills of the flock.

Experiments have shown that it pays to induce the flock to eat more mash at this season of the year. This is easily accomplished by wetting a portion of it. See Mr. Schofield's comment on wet or dry mash in our feed circular. A new mash can be introduced to the flock by the use of an extra feeder, thus giving them a choice, rather than an abrupt change.

Our latest product:
"P.C.A. special," is an appetizer, an invigorator and not a laying ration. It is to be fed in connection with co-operative dry mash and not in the place of it. It may be fed wet or dry, preferably a portion moistened at the start.

Price on "P.C.A. Special," viz.: 90-pound sack, $2; 5 sacks, 450 pounds, $1.95 sack; 10 sacks, 900 pounds, $1.90 sack; 22 sacks, 1980 pounds, $1.85 sack.

All prices f.o.b. Los Angeles. Above prices subject to membership and cash discounts, viz.: 5 per cent. to members, 2 per cent. off for cash. We believe poultrymen will welcome this mixture as a deviation along the lines suggested.

Everything for poultrymen. Send for general catalogue and feed circular.

"DEAD SOLDIERS," BUT NO BATTLE.

SCORES OF BOTTLES BUT NO LIQUOR FOUND BY RAIDERS.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

MONROVIA, Aug. 28.—Although the greatest secrecy was observed, "dead soldiers" were the only pieces of evidence secured in a "blind-pig" raid here this morning. Two automobile loads of officers, under the direction of County Captain of Detectives Hunter, Constable Quiggle and Marshal Bovee, descended upon three Mexican homes shortly after 10 o'clock, but in every case the man of the house was strangely absent.

Although the most positive evidence of bootlegging had been secured, no trace of liquors could be found. Empty bottles in scores were lying about, but the children who swarmed under foot protested that they had collected them from other houses to sell.

Capt. Hunter said the recent Duarte raid had undoubtedly frightened away the Mexicans and caused them to suspend operations temporarily. The men wanted are Juan Asebes, Ramundo Oropesa and Jose Espinosa.

WILL FIX TAX RATE.

The Budget Committee of the City Council will meet next week to fix the tax rate and make out the various appropriations for the new year. No announcement is made at this time other than the tax rate will probably not exceed $1.40, a drop of 17 cents from that of last year.

"SPEND MONEY AT HOME."

A committee was appointed last night by the Chamber of Commerce to prepare a circular letter to the citizens of Monrovia, asking them to trade at home whenever possible during the next month. It is believed that if the majority of Monrovians buy at home as much as possible, several thousand dollars will be put into weekly circulation here that would otherwise go out of town. The result, it is hoped, will be to relieve the financial tension.

MODEL CITY AT PLYMOUTH.

Plans for Habitation for 100,000 People are Considered in Boston to Commemorate the Pilgrims.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

BOSTON, Aug. 28.—Plans for a permanent model city to shelter a population of 100,000 to be erected at Plymouth, in connection with the celebration in 1920 of the 300th anniversary of the landing of the Pilgrims, are being considered by municipal experts, it was announced today. The idea is to eliminate the waste of money usual in the construction of temporary exposition buildings. The purpose is to build a permanent city that will be fire and smoke-proof and with zones for factories and industries.

ROARING MOTORS.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

MENTONE, Aug. 28.—"We must have sleep" is the cry of the noise-ridden citizens of this place. But how to get it is the question. The trouble is caused by the big trucks used by the Highway Commission in moving crushed rock from the railroad here to Yucaipa. The roar of the exhausts of the monster engines is so great that no one in the town sleeps, god, bad, or indifferently. The trucks run day and night. This is necessary in order to keep material on hand for the crew of sixty men at work in paving the road. "We are for the improvements, but we must have sleep" say the people of Mentone. And the problem now before the Highway Commission is how to tame the growl of the great engines. It must be done for it will take six months to complete the road being built.

A Beautiful and Growing Suburb.

SOME PRESENT URGENT NEEDS BEING SUPPLIED LAMANDA PARK.

Opportunities for a Bank, Moving Picture Theater, Laundry, Hotel, Home Cannery, City Water Works, Building Company and Other Enterprises.

[SPECIAL CONTRIBUTION.]

LAMANDA PARK is located twelve miles northeast of Los Angeles and one mile east of Pasadena's boundary. During the past year improvements in the district aggregate more than $400,000, and the coming year has promise of much more.

About eighteen months ago a wealthy gentleman, who then resided in an eastern city, decided to come to California, and now lives in Lamanda Park. The reasons given for his decision in favor of Lamanda Park cover twofold. First, he considered it one of the best localities he could find where local developments were lying dormant, combined with which was an ideal climate with surroundings of much artistic beauty that would appeal strongly to men of wealth to locate and build beautiful homes. Second. He believed every dollar he invested in land in Lamanda Park would increase threefold in value in a few years. For a period of six or more months this gentleman, with his wife and two grown sons, toured Southern California by automobile, looking for a favorable location in which to invest and make a home. One year ago they came to Lamanda Park. Lots and even blocks of vacant land were purchased and the erection of buildings was commenced. In one of his brick buildings is now a new drug store, in another a grocery and in a third, a fine garage. Then a dozen or so bungalows were erected, which are now all occupied either by tenants or purchasers, with still a demand for more. Finally, a lovely home was built, costing about $10,000, which the family now occupies. Other property owners caught the spirit of progress and erected store buildings and residences, so that during the past year the city of Lamanda Park has seen a very substantial building boom. The number of registered voters increased from 1019 in 1912 to 1675 in 1914, indicating a population in the Lamanda Park section of about 5000 persons.

Stock subscriptions for a local bank have nearly all been pledged, and a Lamanda Park Bank will soon be a reality.

Street and sidewalk improvements to the amount of about $60,000 were made during the past year, and half as much more will be expended during 1915, including about $20,000 for ornamental electric lamp posts and lamps. A $30,000 Methodist Church will also be built during the coming year. Nearly $40,000 was expended last year for a new grammar school building.

THE NAME LAMANDA PARK.

The name Lamanda Park is misleading. It does not refer to either a public or a private park, as usually understood, but to a section of country about twenty square miles, divided into three voting precincts. The name Lamanda Park also applies to a post-office and collection of business houses and residences in a thriving community of about 1000 population, not yet incorporated into a city, but located along Colorado street directly east of the city of Pasadena. This Lamanda Park business center will be referred to in this article as a "city," while the surrounding country will be designated as Lamanda Park "section." The name "park" applies to it because of the many thousands of magnificent live oak trees which shade many thousands of fertile acres of the lands gently sloping upwards towards Mt. Lowe and Mt. Wilson. As an asset of the land these trees are now figured at a value of $1000 each, on account of their beauty.

SECURELY ANCHORED.

The Lamanda Park business center is securely anchored through being a station on the Santa Fe Railroad; also the terminus of a branch electric line from Pasadena, and on the Sierra Madre electric line from Los Angeles. Lamanda Park city is also intersected by five improved boulevards, these being the San Gabriel boulevard, the Santa Anita boulevard, the Foothills boulevard, the Colorado-street boulevard and the Huntington-drive boulevard. These combined make the "city" of Lamanda Park the natural local commercial center of a large area of thickly-settled country, hence it has prospects of becoming a town of considerable importance.

SOME WANTS.

Among some of the immediate needs at Lamanda Park city are a bank (soon to be supplied,) a commercial hotel, a moving-picture theater, a laundry, city water works, a home cannery and a score or more of bungalows for rent or to sell on installments.

WATER SUPPLY.

The water supply of the Lamanda Park section (20 square miles, is divided among nine local companies, each supplying a part, either from mountain streams or pumping plants. In addition most of the owners of five acres and larger tracts of land have very generally sunk wells, averaging about 200 feet deep, and installed pumps, thus having their own plentiful supply of pure water for both irrigation and domestic use. I made many inquiries to learn why all these companies and private plants might not be combined into one company, under one management, and supply all the Lamanda Park section, but was informed it could not be made to pay since at present rates for irrigation there is scarcely any profit and would be less if large and expensive water mains were laid over such an extended territory. The citizens of Lamanda Park city are clamoring for better fire protection, and in order to have it large water mains are necessary. There is an opportunity for the installation of a water works in Lamanda Park city to provide adequate fire protection as well as supply an increasing population. These mains should be not less than eight inches in diameter, and a hydrant for fire and irrigation purposes should be located on each block, covering an area of at least thirty blocks. Such a system might be installed for $20,000. The average minimum water rates are $1 for 4500 gallons per month, and 10c per month for each additional 750 gallons used.

ANNEXATION OR INCORPORATION.

The water problem, and others, are possible of solution in three ways: 1st: By annexing Lamanda Park section, including the city, to the city of Pasadena and using the Pasadena water system. 2nd: Incorporating all Lamanda Park section into a city, and bonding it for a water system, or 3rd: Incorporating Lamanda Park in a small area of about six blocks wide and ten blocks long and installing a system for fire protection and domestic use covering that territory. From inquiries made among property owners outside the city area, I learned most of them are opposed to being annexed to either Pasadena or Lamanda Park city, preferring to remain as they are, so that forming a city out of the business center of Lamanda Park seems the present solution of certain local progressive movements. The water supply of the Lamanda Park section is of a superior quality being from melted snows in the mountains, and can be developed in abundance by pumping from wells which reach strata of water-bearing gravel. The nine present leading water companies supplying Lamanda Park section are: The Precipice Canyon Water Company; the Mountain Water Company; the Michillinda Water Company; the El Campo Water Company; the Consolidated Water Company; the Vosberg Water Company; the San Gabriel Water Company and the city of Pasadena water works. The assessed value of this district is about $16,000,000 and population of about 5000.

The commercial hotel asked for at Lamanda Park should be one of about thirty rooms, with rates of 50c and $1.00 a night, on the American plan, with meals at 25c each.

There are several fine sanitariums in and near Lamanda Park. The elevation above sea level of from 700 to 1000 feet, and the dry, bracing atmosphere free from extreme variations of temperature provide climatic conditions which are beneficial to persons afflicted with nervous prostration, insomnia, mental over-work or worry, heart troubles or kindred ailments, consequently they find speedy relief in these restful hostelries, some of them surrounded by extensively parked grounds with magnificent live oak forests, where many guests assemble during both summer and winter months. Although called sanitariums, they admit neither insane nor consumptives, being designed more especially for those not ill enough for a hospital nor yet well enough for the ordinary hotel.

The principal products of the Lamanda Park section are navel and Valencia oranges, lemons, walnuts and grapes. The association packing-house is one of the principal employers of labor, having at times as many as 200 persons on the payroll. The aggregate output of the district averages $500,000 yearly, exclusive of the wine industry from about 2500 acres which aggregate $150,000 a year more.

The residents of Lamanda Park city will welcome a good moving picture theater, and a local steam laundry. Proper parties can have special buildings erected for the purpose.

HOME CANNING CLUBS.

Lamanda Park city has an active Board of Trade which is alive to any movement that will advance the interests of the community. Its secretary is Mr. C. W. Faulkner. It has been suggeseed that the Board of Trade might have a committee to secure permission for the cultivation of vacant lots and acres not yet ready to be improved by the owners, and by planting them to hay during the winter months and such canning vegetables as peas, beans, corn and tomatoes during the summer, produce crops that would employ local labor and bring a return into the community of many thousands of dollars each year. By means of what are known as "canning clubs" with plants costing only a few hundreds of dollars each, these now unproductive lands can be made to produce a revenue reaching as high as $250 and $300 an acre. The capital for the canning plants is available wherever the supply of vegetables is assured. These "canning clubs" are very successful in just such localities as Lamanda Park close to two large cities where the market is practically unlimited at good prices, for these clean and superior products. With the proper management a quarter-million dollars income could be added to the Lamanda Park section from the sale of locally canned goods.

The prices of town lots in Lamanda Park range from $500 upwards, being 50x150 feet in size. The acres sell for from $1500 upwards.

SCHOOL ADVANTAGES.

The High School groups of buildings in the combined Pasadena and Lamanda Park school district, which cost $600,000, are within ten blocks of the business center of Lamanda Park city, and are the latest models of artistic beauty and educational advancement. They are free to the Lamanda Park residents and easy of access for pupils, thus giving Lamanda Park exceptional school facilities. In addition Lamanda Park city has just completed a $40,000 grammar school building, the grounds surrounding embracing several acres of land.

RAPID TRANSPORTATION.

The cost of transportation for passengers by electric cars from Los Angeles to Lamanda Park is only 35c for a round trip, or on commutation tickets about 12c each way. There is a ten-minute service via Pasadena and an hourly service via the Sierra Madre electric line. Several daily passenger trains over the Santa Fe railroad also furnish accommodations. The dozen or so jitney busses over the splendid boulevards do a thriving business to Lamanda Park from many directions, the ones from Pasadena giving a three-minute service.

Among the recent additions to the population of Lamanda Park is a gentleman from Dublin, Ireland, a retired merchant, who purchased six acres of orange grove, among which are seven magnificent old live-oak trees. He has already made improvements, including a $5000 residence, that combine to make a producing orange grove with a beautiful home park, where he will probably pass the remainder of his days amid these pleasant surroundings.

A gentleman who has a $20,000 investment in a five-acre orange grove with a beautiful residence in Lamanda Park city gives as his reasons for locating, the delightful climatic conditions, combined with the fact that he can live among a superior class of people with all advantages of city life—water, electricity, gas, daily mails, etc.—in a growing community, where his investment is not only safe but is prospectively profitable.

A short distance from Lamanda Park city a Los Angeles company has lately purchased a tract of land in a foothill valley called Pasadena Glen, where native live-oaks and planted trees of many kinds afford grateful shade, and are selling lots on the easy payment plan. Many thousands of dollars are being spent in beautifying the grounds, there being a natural waterfall tumbling over a high bluff at the upper end of a rocky gorge, while a large swimming pool is being provided and also tennis courts, croquet grounds, picnic tables and dancing pavilions.

There are two wineries in the Lamanda Park section whose business aggregates $150,000 annually, consuming the grapes from 2500 acres. Employment is given to about 75 men. Extensive improvements are contemplated provided no hostile legislation threatens

LOCAL INDUSTRY.

A lady in Lamanda Park started in several years ago manufacturing home preserved fruits, with such success that she now has a trade extending from California across the continent to New York. The principal items in the list of preserves, jellies, jams and marmalades, are oranges, figs and small fruits. This lady finds great possibilitiec in the business and believes it is but in its infancy. She gets repeat orders from the East, one large order recently being from Connecticut.

LAMANDA IMPROVEMENTS.

The following is a partial list of the improvements made during the past twelve months in Lamanda Park section: A. J. Cuneo, brick store, $5000; Miss Belle Chandler, frame store, $1500; R. Seeger, brick store, $1500; J. E. Coombs, brick store, $5000; N. B. Vanderhoof, brick block, $15,000; same, 12 bungalows, $20,000; same residence, $10,000; V. King, store, $3000; E. Shepherd, store, $2000; improvements packing-house, $10,000 ($5000 more contemplated;) sidewalks and streets, $60,000; grammar school, $40,000 (contemplated;) ornamental street lamps, 300 of them, to cost $20,00. Residences were built during the past year by H. W. Kennedy, J. F. Burkhardt, Paul Hutchinson, C. W. Ewing, Miss Ambrose, J. F. Clayton, C. Anderson, Osmond Stone, C. Gray, M. Gray, C. J. Fox, F. Crosby, Mrs. M. Beezeley and James Forsythe, a grand total of $413,000 of the various improvements during past twelve months.

The rapidly growing city of Lamanda Park has been designated as the "foothill town of opportunity." It is located twelve miles northeast of Los Angeles and three miles east of Pasadena's business center, on the Santa Fe railroad and at the junction of five important boulevards. Conceded by many to have the most beautiful physical setting in Southern California, amid grand old live-oaks, orange groves and vineyards. Very healthful, with good commercial opportunities for investment of capital. Pure, soft mountain water. Sea breeze every afternoon and the cooling mountain breeze at night. High above ocean dampness at an altitude of 700 to 1200 feet. A summer and winter resort combined. At the foot of Mt. Wilson and Mt. Lowe, whose altitudes are 5000 to 6000 feet. Just the place for an all-year residence.

WOMEN IN KNIFE DUEL; HURTS PERHAPS FATAL.

Rivals for Love of Man Strip to Waist and Clash in Death Struggle in Dimly-Lighted Cellar, Slashing Furiously With Ten-Inch Knives—Both in Dying Condition.

IN A grim and earnest duel for the love of a man, carried on in a candle-lighted cellar of the apartment-house at No. 475 Commercial street, two women were so badly cut by the ten-inch knives they used that both will probably die.

The women, Mrs. Luerda Jaques, 28 years old, and Mrs. Mary Gonzales, 40 years old, were hurried to the Receiving Hospital, both bleeding copiously from several arteries. According to the incoherent stories told by the dying women, they fought over a certain Juan Perez, a handsome Mexican, known throughout Sonoratown for his dashing ways.

It appeared that for several months past Mrs. Jaques has been the [illegible] one of the favored Juan. Then a week ago, Juan transferred his attentions to Mrs. Gonzales. The first love challenged her rival, and a time was set for the accounting.

The women last night met in the darkened cellar of the rooming house where they both lived. They stripped to the waist. Each was armed with a ten-inch knife.

Circling about like cats, they fought fiercely. Mrs. Jaques was cut, and screamed slightly. Neighbors heard it and telephoned the police. When the latter arrived they found the women in a death struggle, each stabbing the other mechanically. The other occupants of the house were gathered in one corner of the cellar, frightend spctators of the tragedy.

ORDER OUT OF CHAOS.

United Railroads Asks the State Supreme Court to Resolve Municipal Line Injunction Case.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 28.—The legal entanglements growing out of an injunction against operation of two municipal street-car lines, obtained from the Superior Court recently by the United Railroads, were termed today "a reproach to the administration of justice in the courts of this State," in an answer filed by the company in the Supreme Court.

The answer replied to a petition for a rehearing of a recent decision which declared stays of the injunction invalid, filed by Matt I. Sullivan, former Chief Justice of the State Supreme Court, now appearing in the contempt proceedings filed against Mayor James Rolph, Jr., and four other city officials as "amicus curiae," or "friend of the court."

The answer of the United Railroads asks the Supreme Court to "clear up speedily" conditions arising from a series of stays of the original injunction issued by the Superior Court, the order of the Supreme Court invalidating these stays and the present contempt proceedings, instituted upon the failure of the city to obey the injunction.

INSUFFICIENT NAMES.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

WATTS, Aug. 28.—The recall petition filed August 7 with City Clerk V. R. Franklin against the Board of Trustees and the City Clerk has been found insufficient. R. B. Kyle, who was appointed by the Board of Trustees to check the names and certify to them, has filed his report to the Council. The communication was ordered placed on file and Mr. Kyle was retired from further duties in connection therewith.

CHINESE HUMOR.

Servant Could Not Straighten Out a Simple Problem Developed by Two Pairs of Shoes.

[Philadelphia Public Ledger:] There was a man who was careless and unobserving. Once, when he was going abroad, he hastily pulled on his shoes, ready to hasten away, when, to his surprise, he found that one of his legs had suddenly become longer than the other.

He was both puzzled and frightened, for he said to himself: "What can be the matter? When I last walked my legs were the same length. How—queer it is! I have met with no accident nor has any one cut a piece from my foot palm."

He felt his legs and then his feet to solve the mystery. At last he discovered the mistake to be in his shoes, for he had put on one shoe with a thick sole and one with a thin sole.

"These shoes are odd ones and not a pair," said he. So he called loudly for his servant and ordered him quickly to change his boots.

The servant went into the room to bring the master's boots, but after a little time came back with a much puzzled expression on his face. His master sternly demanded the boots for which he had sent him, but received for his answer:

"Dear master, it is very strange, but there is no use for me to change your boots, for when I examined the pair of boots in the room I found that they are just like the pair you have on, for one has a thick sole and the other a thin sole."

BUS HITS AUTO; CHILD IS HURT.

MOTHER'S CORSET SAVES HER; COLLISION THROWS HER FROM MACHINE.

L. W. Holly, No. 233 South Eighteenth street, was returning home last night in his automobile with his wife and 8-year-old daughter, Ione Holly, when he saw a man fall off his motorcycle just as the car was crossing the North Broadway bridge. Mr. Holly stopped his machine and got out to help the unfortunate one.

Just as he crossed the street, a San Fernando bus, driven by Joe Chaldu and crowded with passengers, crashed into the immovable touring car. Mrs. Holly and her daughter were hurled out, falling beneath the wheels of the big bus. The touring car was thrown across the wide street.

At the Receiving Hospital it was said the little girl had a dislocated ankle and has possible internal injuries. A heavy corset, worn by the mother, probably saved her life, as the machine passed across her body.

TOWN FOR WAR WORKERS.

Special Housing Facilities are Provided the Employees in the Woolwich Arsenal Never Known Before.

[London Tit-Bits:] Other housing problems, besides that of housing our vast new armies, have arisen through the war, and not the least of them is that connected with the workers of Woolwich arsenal.

Since the war started the authorities at the arsenal have been engaging men in numbers never known before, with the results that men have come from all parts of London and Great Britain to get work there.

As a consequence, some of the workers have to travel nearly across the city in order to get to work, the journey taking in some cases as much as an hour and a half.

So hard are the men working now that after the working hours and the time spent in eating and traveling are deducted, some of them can only manage to snatch about five or six hours' rest.

The only remedy, of course, was to build a sufficient number of houses in Woolwich to allow all the extra workers at the arsenal to live near their work.

Builders, however, have not come forward, apparently being scared by the idea that when the war is over half the houses will not be wanted.

So the government is taking the work in hand itself. In order to tide over the difficulty a little, fifty huts are being built with all speed on a vacant space near the arsenal, and have already been snapped up by eager men.

In addition to this, the office of works is proceeding apace with another plan.

On a large tract of agricultural land barely one mile and a half from the arsenal, 1000 houses are being run up. Owing to the huge number of men who are employed on the job, however, the houses are not only going up quickly, but exceedingly well. The work was started in February, and some of the houses, twelve of which are being built to the acre, are now beginning to take shape.

CURE FOR HAY FEVER.

No Dispenser of Drugs Claims the Hundred Thousand Dollars Reward for Discovering a Cure.

[Manchester Mirror and American:] Hay fever sufferers have been holding their annual convention at Ocean Beach. Hay fever is a national malady, although not universal. One touch of hay fever makes a large part of the population kin, so to speak. It is the only disease that ever has been organized and subjected to parliamentary rules, and the Hay Fever Association is perhaps the only deliberative body in the world whose one and only object is adjournment sine die. The sufferers are looking for a remedy and they have offered $100,000 reward to the physician or the chemist who will find a "cure." The cure seems as far away as it did in Henry Ward Beecher's day, and he was a great martyr to hay fever.

The disease has many peculiarities. Its return is in the summer and fall, on the same day. That is to say, if A. was seized with hay fever on the 16th of August last year, the affliction will come on the 16th this year and the doctors cannot prevent it. Why?

May it not be because they devote too much time and energy in hanging votive offerings on the altar of [illegible] and too little time in really looking for causes; or, again, may it not be that hay fever is so definitely specific—so concrete—that the cure can't be fooled with a wise look and a sugar-coated pill?

The victim knows the very day on which he is going to become a burden to himself and a nuisance to everybody around him. And yet medical science, which objects to proprietary remedies, which laughs to scorn anybody with a suggestion, unless he can also show a sheepskin, medical science, which whips Christian Science into court and amerces it—can find no hurdle in the way of a [illegible]

FACT AND COMMENT.

Things are dull in Los Angeles and have been dull for many months. No one outside of those half-baked individuals who cling to the idea that prosperity is something to be conjured up and retained by continual preaching about it is making any concealment of the fact. Conditions are not what they ought to be anywhere and, generally speaking, are pretty apt to remain as they are for some time to come. Who can see the end of the conflagration that now engulfs half the globe? Instead of trying to feed ourselves and the undeceived outside world with a lot of entirely palpable fabrications about how phenomenally fair everything is, how much better it were that we realize and candidly admit the truth. The real truth about Los Angeles and Southern California never looked so good before as it does in the crucible of present world conditions.

There is a reason for these comments. Certain papers of Los Angeles are continually printing highly-colored stuff about our "unprecedented and unparalleled prosperity," articles and editorials absolutely without present foundation, in fact, and entirely uncalled for excepting that they follow out the curious policies of the publishers. Bank clearings and building permits, both sadly affected (as, indeed, they are in every city,) by the general inactivity, are deliberately misrepresented to be the greatest in the history of Los Angeles. Wordy interviews are printed in which individuals working on the same false theory that the only effective boosting is the kind that exaggerates or lies, add their testimony concerning the great "prosperity" that is upon us. The thing has been carried on day after day, week after week, ad nauseam. Actually a poorly conceived scheme to keep their wavering advertisers in line, the efforts of these journals seem more like a silly plot to fool the public.

The Harm It Does.

The harm that such systematic misrepresentation may do was revealed to the Fact and Comment man in a striking way last week, when an eastern business man, who has paid his annual visit to Los Angeles for ten successive years, made in the midst of a conversation the observation that what he termed "boosting by perjury" was bound to discount in many minds all the real and wonderful accomplishments of the past in this city. The point he made (and he knows more about Los Angeles than most persons who live here and is a staunch admirer of and genuine booster for this city,) was that if, for instance, the $1,000,000 a month that is now being expended here for building is to be constantly shrieked about as the greatest thing ever, no one will ever believe that there were years in succession in which the monthly average was over $2,000,000. He applied the same line of reasoning to other forms of activity.

"There was a period of many years before the present dull times began," he declared, "when Los Angeles could back up every superlative its enthusiastic boosters used about their city and its achievements. Nowadays it is a laugh to read such statements as are printed. Such flubdub is beneath the dignity and importance of a city as big and important as Los Angeles and is giving the jealous rivals of your city fine opportunities to indulge in effective sarcasm.

"Los Angeles," he added, "is as healthy and prosperous right now as any of them, but that isn't saying a lot for Los Angeles. Some day we'll all emerge from the more or less gloomy state in which every city and community now finds itself and then it is my prediction that Los Angeles will go ahead again faster than any other city in the United States. In the meantime Los Angeles can afford to bide its time like the rest of them."

Let's Be Honest!

This man knew what he was talking about and there was no question about his friendship for this city and section. If Los Angeles were as comparatively prosperous at the present time as some of the perfervid or ill-advised boosters would have the world think, one might indeed say with another tourist visitor who wrote the editor of this department a few days ago: "If this is Los Angeles prosperity, I'd hate to be cast adrift here when things were dull." Even forgetting, for purposes of argument, the consideration of plain, every-day honesty, it must be plain to anyone who thinks that there is absolutely nothing to be gained through trying to represent that Los Angeles alone out of all the cities of the country has been unaffected by national and world conditions.

Not only the deliberate misrepresentation but the concealment of facts by the so-called boosters is to be deplored. Loyalty to one's city is a commendable quality, but in Los Angeles there is absolutely nothing to hide. With the cards all on the table, the facts are all reassuring if they be intelligently considered. Nothing could be more natural or expected than that Los Angeles should feel the general depression. We have every reason for congratulation that conditions are no worse. The very worst, in fact, that can be said of the situation here is that everything is quiet. The failure of the top-heavy Los Angeles Investment Company has been the only real calamity since the dull times began and this was foredoomed by a mismanagement which required only a hint of financial stress for failure.

Business generally has experienced a slowing down, but it has been a situation that has filled business and financial men with boredom rather than with alarm. Everyone wants a return to the good times to which Los Angeles had become so thoroughly accustomed, nearly everyone is practicing various economies and most persons are inclined to shy at the suggestion of new expenses of any kind, but, when all is said, there is nothing panicky about the present state of affairs. Such are the facts and no one need be ashamed of them.

That which is most calculated to interest the intelligent investing public at this time, is not an imaginary prosperity conjured out of big words and exaggerated facts, but the normal and certain good times ahead. The war and other detrimental influences which cannot possibly have a permanently bad effect on Los Angeles, have created here a situation that is not likely to be duplicated in all the future. The real truth is that business and development have halted to such an extent that the prices of innumerable pieces of desirable real estate have slumped below actual values and that these prices will rise again to old and then higher levels as soon as the inevitable improvement has become pronounced. That is the message that should be driven home to both the local and the outside public—that and not the artificial stimulation of prosperity bunkum. Boosting that is not based on the firm foundation of truth and reliability defeats its own ends—especially in such times as the present.

BUYS EAST SIDE SITE.

Investor Acquires Industrial Frontage and Will Build Extensive Warehouse.

The W. Ross Campbell Company, through its sales department, reports having sold a parcel of East Side industrial property to a local investor at a consideration of $12,750. The property consists of two lots, having a frontage of 100 feet, and located at Nos. 441-45 East Jackson street.

At present the property is improved with two small residences, but it is the intention of the new owner to commence construction in the near future on a two-story fireproof brick warehouse, for which plans and specifications have already been made. The new building will be used as an auxiliary warehouse by one of the large dry goods concerns, to take care of its increasing business. The site is supplied with Southern Pacific trackage.

Expansion.

BREAK GROUND FOR FACTORY.

CROWD SEES CULVER CITY PLANT STARTED.

Growing Automobile Concern to Erect Group of Buildings in Short Line Town—First Unit will be Rushed to Completion—Other Activities.

One of the growing industrial enterprises of Southern California, the Beardsley Electric Automobile Company, broke ground yesterday afternoon at Culver City for the first unit of what is eventually intended to be a large and important manufacturing plant. The event was witnessed by nearly all the citizens of the Short Line town and its vicinity and was marked by a short and interesting programme, D. W. Pontius, Traffic Manager of the Pacific Electric Railway, being the principal speaker. At 6 o'clock all were served with dinner by the ladies of Culver City on the new Culver City public playgrounds. This was followed by an informal reception and dancing party at the residence of Harry H. Culver, "father" of the thriving community which bears his name.

The Beardsley concern is now located in leased quarters on North Main street in this city and has completely outgrown its present facilities. The plant and its fifty employees are to be moved bodily to Culver City as soon as the first of the company's new buildings in the Short Line town is completed. The company has secured a large enough site in the new location to provide room for needed expansion.

Plans for a considerable factory group are being planned by the architect, A. S. Heineman, and the exact spot where each future structure will be erected is now being determined. The first building in the scheme will occupy a ground area of 60x200 feet and will be two stories high. All the departments of the plant will be housed under the one roof for the time being. Later, each department is to have a building to itself.

OTHER ACTIVITIES.

Another important industry to secure a location in Culver City is the Culver Manufacturing Company, which plans the early erection of a plant for the manufacture of a small friction drive car for boys. The company, which was only recently incorporated, is now having plans drawn for a brick building to stand in the industrial district of the town.

Several Los Angeles concerns are now making preparations for expansion, their activities even during the past rather dull year having been sufficiently large to warrant additional space and equipment. The Bradford Baking Company has just let a contract for the construction of a three-story brick building on the grounds of its present plant on Avenue 20. The Great Western Milling Company has had plans drawn for a new brick building at its site on McGarry street. The structure will be of the most substantial construction and will occupy a ground area of 100x 125 feet. Work will be started this week on extensive additions to the plant of the Keystone Iron Works on North Main street. The equipment will also be increased.

Other and new projects are now shaping in Los Angeles and in the industrial communities around it. Persistent rumors that important eastern and middle western industries are laying plans to establish large branches in this vicinity continue to be heard.

AT THE HARBOR.

One of the new improvements of the harbor district is a two-story brick mercantile building to be erected by Edward Mahar on Sixth street near Beacon street at San Pedro. The structure, which is being planned by Edelman & Barnett, will occupy a ground area of 25x75 feet.

CORONA FARMS SALES.

Several sales in its Corona Farms tract are reported by the Janss Investment Company. William Kirk of Dennison, Tex., purchased fifteen acres of citrus land in the subdivision for a given price of $5500. The property is improved with a five-room bungalow and has six acres planted to Valencias. S. Slocum, another eastern visitor, bought ten acres in the alfalfa and deciduous fruit section of the property for $3200 and plans to engage in diversified farming. Twelve acres on the Foothill boulevard was sold to S. J. Shaw for $2500 and will be planted to lemons. John Olson purchased six acres of foothill land for $1500. Delwyn Daniels, who recently purchased thirty acres for $7500, has started to install a hog and alfalfa ranch. James Long has just finished setting a twenty-acre Corona farm tract to lemons.

SCHOOL CONTRACTS.

The contract for the construction of the new South Park school, which is to stand at the corner of Manchester and South Park avenues, was awarded during the past week to the F. O. Engstrum Company. The building, which will contain six rooms and an auditorium, was planned by Walker & Vawter and will be of brick and concrete. G. W. Gilbreth & Co. have been given the contract to build the new Amelia-street school, a two-story structure of six rooms. Both schools are provided for under the school bond issue of last fall.

STRAWS TELLING HOW WIND BLOWS.

SIGNS OF GREAT PROGRESS IN SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA'S BROAD DOMAIN.

An important new industry in Los Angeles is the Venetian blind factory of the Hannibal Company at No. 1919 Raymond avenue. The concern, which only recently installed machinery for operation, has just received a contract to equip all seven floors of the new J. W. Robinson store at Seventh, Grand and Hope with its products. The making of this order of blinds is being rushed and some of them will be put in place this week. The head of the company, T. W. Hannibal, was associated with his father in the manufacture of Venetian blinds in Manchester, Eng., for forty years. Mr. Hannibal came to Los Angeles two years ago.

The McCarthy Company has just finished the grading and oiling of some three and a half miles of streets in its Garden Acres tract east of Inglewood. This completes the general improvements to the subdivision.

Plans are under way for the repaving of all the streets and driveways in Brentwood Park under the supervision of the County Board of Supervisors. The project is being fostered by the Brentwood Park Improvement Association, which was organized some time ago for the purpose of furthering the interests of property owners in the Santa Monica-San Vicente subdivision.

Jacob and Gustave Stern, owners of the Leffingwell Heights citrus lands in the East Whittier district, report that they have a large force of men at work grading roads on that property. Pipe lines for both domestic and irrigation uses are now being installed on the tract.

INCOME IMPROVEMENTS.

Permits Issued or Contracts Let for Several Flats During Past Week. One to Contain Stores.

William Durflinger, a local builder, took out a building permit yesterday for a frame flat which he will erect at No. 4462 Sunset boulevard. The structure will cost about $6000 and will contain four suites of four rooms each. J. M. Williams has secured a permit for a brick store and flat building he will erect at No. 4161 West Washington street. The improvement will represent an investment of about $7000.

The Cooper-Pyle-Clopine Company has just completed plans for a $6500 flat building it will construct for Charles Allen at No. 2137 Canyon drive. W. H. Bray is about to start work on a $7500 flat on Sunset boulevard near Highland avenue. Mrs. F. Gugenheim has had plans prepared for a flat she expects to erect on Oregon avenue near Euclid.

Encouraging.

HOME BUILDERS IN EVIDENCE.

Private Dwellings Springing up Everywhere.

Activity is Reminiscent of Livelier Times.

Numerous Contracts Awarded During the Week.

Home-building activity of a volume reminiscent of livelier years is the only feature of the local construction situation at the present time. There has been an almost total let-up on down-town building operations and the larger types of structures elsewhere are few and far between, if flats be excepted. Large numbers of persons, however, are taking advantage of the present low prices of building materials and the comparative cheapness of labor to erect private homes.

Contracts were let or work begun during the past week on numerous houses and bungalows in all parts of Los Angeles. Of the larger places the following may be mentioned: Nine-room residence for L. C. Schalk at Franklin avenue and Morgan place; ten-room house for W. A. DeGroot at No. 316 South Arden boulevard; nine-room house for Mrs. Burton Tremper, No. 302 South Mariposa avenue; nine-room house for H. P. Hood, No. 4648 Mascot avenue; nine-room house for T. A. Lewis, No. 729 North Mariposa avenue; eight-room house for Max Siegelman on Kensington road; eight-room house for Frank E. Stitely on Serrano avenue; eight-room house for H. W. Little on Normandie avenue; eight-room house for Mrs. J. B. West in El Campo Court; eight-room house for H. J. Leland, No. 6419 Harold way; seven-room house for Edward Scherman, No. 7318 Sunset boulevard; seven-room house for M. S. Small, Harvard, near Forty-first street; seven-room house for A. F. Clark, No. 961 Westchester place.

Following are bungalow projects now taking definite shape in different parts of the city: Eight-room double bungalow for N. Gruden, No. 826 North Soto street; two eight-room double bungalows for Grace Love, Nos. 1334-1340 Milton avenue; seven-room bungalow for Jacon Hendel on Cortez avenue; seven-room bungalow for Ira Marshall, No. 554 North Ardmore avenue; seven-room bungalow for F. E. Hopkins, No. 1943 West Vernon avenue; seven-room bungalow for Catherine Robinson, No. 1937 West Forty-third street; seven-room bungalow for Henry Dangers, No. 1821 West Forty-third place; seven-room bungalow for L. E. Best, No. 5756 Harold way; seven-room bungalow for Eliza B. Atwood, No. 4319 Halldale; seven-room bungalow for J. B. Smith, No. 4228 South Harvard; six-room bungalow for Joseph Ince, No. 751 East Forty-third street; six-room bungalow for K. Tillman, Warner avenue, near Pico; six-room bungalow for A. J. Waknitz, No. 1323 Las Palmas avenue; two six-room bungalows for M. A. Keran, Alvarado and Court; three six-room bungalows for John Paul, Nos. 1216-1222-1226 North Normandie avenue; four five-room bungalows for W. F. Markham on Cahuenga avenue, and two five-room bungalows for Miles Youman, Nos. 3216-3220 Granada street.

Four of the many residences of Los Angeles are pictured on this page. The home of G. B. Schuler in Laurel Canyon is an interesting hillside type, the garage being under the house itself and communicating by stairway with it. The Needham residence is a six-room bungalow of plastered exterior and fits admirably into its hill-setting in Hollywood.

The Foote place has just been completed in the Beverly Hills district and is a twelve-room house of stucco exterior. The interior is elegantly finished in mahogany. The Witherall house is now under construction in the midst of an acre-and-a-half plot at the corner of Hollywood boulevard and Martel avenue. The dwelling will contain twelve rooms.

LIKE THE SOUTHLAND.

New York Physician and Denver Capitalist Buy Fine Residence in Wilshire District.

The sale for J. B. Althouse to Dr. R. A. Walker of a twelve-room house at No. 420 South St. Andrew's place is reported by R. O. Williams, with the R. C. Mitchell Company, who acted as agent in the transaction. The dwelling contains three baths and is finished in selected hardwoods on the first floor and in white enamel on the second. The purchaser, who is a retired New York physician, acquired the place as a permanent home, paying a given consideration of $12,500 for the property.

The F. E. Woodruff Company reports having sold for C. C. and S. J. Chapman a ten-room house at No. 336 South Kenmore avenue, W. E. Burns of Denver being the purchaser. The consideration is stated to have been $15,000.

EAST WHITTIER WAY.

Charles J. Claussen, sales manager for the Leffingwell Heights citrus property in the East Whittier district, reports sales in that tract as follows: W. B. Spencer, 7.52 acres, for $3760; J. W. Park and J. D. Park, 6.93 acres, $2465.

Will erect a six to ten story Class "A" loft or office building, containing from 45,000 to 75,000 square feet, on Broadway, in the heart of the business section.

25 to 99 year lease

The rental is remarkably low, on account of the owner having acquired this property a number of years ago, and also the fact of the extreme low cost of building at this time. This proposition merits immediate investigation, as it is certainly a great opportunity for the merchant who desires a permanent location with a low rental for a long term of years, or for the investor who appreciates the inevitable future of Los Angeles.

RESIDENCE

LOCATED AMONG THE LIVE OAK TREES

SOUTHWEST CORNER

LARGE LOT 117x200
ONEONTA PARK—SOUTH PASADENA.

This is a residence that will appeal only to those looking for a superb home, refined and dignified, and having every luxury and comfort. The settings and surroundings of this property are beautiful beyond description. Four large oak trees on this property; many stately, expensive palms and three very fine Japanese gardens. The grounds are a lovely park with their lawns, the many large rare shrubs, the varieties of bright flowering shrubs, the bulb plants and the riot of countless other flowers. The house is a large 10-room bungalow, built by the owner for his home, thus individuality and architectural beauty are expressed all through the house. All rooms are very large. The spacious living-room, den and dining-room are finished in oak, the dining-room paneled high to plate rail. The library is a long room, standing out somewhat from the rest of the house, finished in tobasco mahogany. A very inviting room for reading because of the large plate-glass windows on three sides and the French door on the fourth side opening onto the rose garden. All through the house the large circle or bay windows add to the beauty of every room, including the four bedrooms. The view from every window will charm and rest the eye. Walls of these main rooms are covered with exquisite imported silks and tapestries that blend in most artistically with the hardwood finish. In the bedrooms, walls are covered with the daintiest of imported papers, giving individual color schemes to each room. Some of the closets are as large as rooms. They are fitted with drawers, hat boxes, and the doors leading into the closets are fitted with full-length plate mirrors. There are three baths, two of them being very luxurious, with tiled floors, the most expensive plumbing and several large mirrors in each one. Pedestal bowls, heavy roll tub. The breakfast room is often said to be the most charming room in this house. It is built out in such a way that it forms almost a perfect circle of solid windows. Can you imagine a more cheery, attractive room with its ivory finish? Its built-in buffet and center light is silver and chintz. It is indeed a lovely room. The most approved indirect lighting system is used through the house, several of the fixtures, being very expensive alabaster bowls imported from Italy especially for this home. This makes the house particularly beautiful at night when lighted. There is every convenience and comfort of modern times everywhere evident, and in building the owner has always kept in mind the artistic beauty of arrangement, color and finish. Large porches both at front and rear, cement basement 16x38 feet. Here is a very large furnace; also automatic water heater. From the rear of the house to the garage is a heavily-built, long pergola practically covered with climbing roses. From the side of the house to the edge of lot runs a garden lattice fence with hood over the gate. The large two-story garage, built to conform to the architecture of the house, has room for two autos and above has roomy servants' quarters with bath, built-in closets, sinks and other conveniences. There is a Bowser underground gasoline tank. The house itself is of cobblestone, clinker brick and frame construction. A retaining wall running around the entire two sides of lot is of clinker brick and cobblestone, with a wide cap of blue brick which corresponds to the walks at both rear and front of house. Because of its wonderful grounds and architectural beauty this house attracts much attention from passers-by. No word description of this residence can give you any idea of what it really is. If you are looking for a home of such proportions and comforts you will find this will meet your every desire. JOHN B. ALTHOUSE, Owner, 701 Hollingsworth Bldg. A3529.

FOR SALE—
[illegible] SELL MY 4000 ACRES OF TROPICAL LAND IN THE STATE OF VERA CRUZ, MEXICO.
I have a large equity in this land and cannot meet the balance of the payments.
This is not arid land; it is covered with fine oak and mahogany; vegetation grows profusely the year around; it is rolling and easily cultivated, with plenty of water; no better hog, cattle or fruit land in the republic of Mexico.
The railroad runs right through the land. The climate is unexcelled, the rainfall is abundant.
I will sell the whole tract for $12,000, $4000 cash or clear Los Angeles property, balance on terms. I can show any well-informed man that the price is $10,000 below cost to me, and $15,000 below its real value; title is absolutely good, going back through Mexico's oldest families. I am willing to prove every statement contained in this ad.
Will take buyer to see the land, and guarantee the expenses of the trip if he buys.

Can you use an alfalfa ranch?

This 60-acre stand, with reasonable water lift, right at loading switch, but two miles from heart of near-by progressive inland city, is now in PRIME RUNNING ORDER. The owner, unexpectedly obliged to locate in San Francisco, would, of course, like to sell, and if you can buy with money, on any kind of terms, will make you a price that the closest dealer will consider low. He will do almost as well for clear property, taking mortgage back for difference. In brief, if you really can use a going alfalfa property and have something worth while to exchange for part or whole, SUBMIT YOUR OFFER.

HARRY CHASE,
Suite 636 Mer. Nat. Bank Bldg., 6th and Spring.

Complete farming equipment. This property is worth $100,000; will accept two-thirds of the value in property in or near L. A. and give a splendid deal, as the owner's business necessitates his living here.

WEST COAST SEED HOUSE—
116-118 East Seventh st., Los Angeles.
Is offered for sale.

A good, growing business, central location, low rent, no debts. Will sell stock at less than cost, fixtures at a big discount, and nothing for the good will. Business established for years and has a good reputation. Sales about $20,000, profits good and a good business man can greatly increase the business. I have not been able to give it much attention. Also sell poultry supplies and manufacture poultry foods and proprietary articles that have good sale. The name "West Coast" is well and favorably known. Stock inventoried July 1, at $9832, but somewhat less now, and can cut out some raw materials if not wanted.

I would prefer selling as above for cash, but if you haven't all the money and can give good security I will give time. Or will trade for good, well-located real property at present cash value, or for good securities. I have other business that takes my time. If you do not really want to get into a good business but merely want to get rid of incumbered property, please don't bother me. Have had lots of offers of that kind; but I have time to give full particulars to anyone really in earnest. T. S. TOMPKINS, 116 E. 7th st.

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—Copper firm; electrolytic, 18.00.

INCREASED EARNINGS.

The Great Western Power Company, one of the largest hydro-electric corporations in the United States, has reported that for July its earnings aggregated $170,648.02 and with the addition of other income amounted to almost $188,000. The surplus account was $15,698 greater than for the same month in 1914. Comparing this year's figures for the six months' period ending June 30 with those for the same space of time in 1914 we find that net earnings have increased $134,747.56 and net surplus $97,692.43. It should be borne in mind that the Great Western Power system comprises three distinct companies, the Great Western Power Company, the California Electric Generating Company and the City Electric Company. Of a total outstanding bond issue of over $23,000,000, over $10,000,000 is held by Southern California investors.

SELL LOTS AND LANDS.

The McCarthy Company reports the following sales: To Mr. and Mrs. Parrent, house and lot on West Sixty-second street; to N. P. Rouzee of Bakersfield, parcel of land at Garden Acres, $710; to Mrs. E. Wilson, house and lot in the McCarthy Company's Bungalow Home Tract on East Seventieth street; to Frank Hoffman, house and lot in the McCarthy Company's Greater Los Angeles Tract on East Sixty-third street, and to E. Bear, two parcels of land at Garden Acres.

PLANS FINE VILLA.

The Braly-Janss Company reports the sale of a large scenic villa lot at Brentwood Park to W. H. Code, a consulting engineer of this city. The site is 100x262 feet, and faces on Park drive a short distance from San Vicente boulevard. Mr. Code plans to shortly commence the construction of a villa type residence on the property.

WAREHOUSE PLANS.

Plans are being completed at the present time for a two-story concrete warehouse to be built on North Main street near Marguerite street for the National Transfer Company. The building will be 50x110 feet in size and completely equipped for storage purposes. A two-story brick building 30x75 feet in size is being planned for the Pioneer Truck Company. The site is on Alameda near Jackson.

The first use of the treadmill was in China, where it did service in remote times in irrigating the land. It was introduced into English prisons in 1817 as a means of punishment.

Boom Days of Gold Mining are Revived in Rich New Field Near Los Angeles.

Bright as Ever.

GOLD'S LURE DRAWING THRONGS TO ARIZONA.

Great Riches are Uncovered in Mines of Tom Reed-Gold Road District.

Country's Large Mining Interests are Turning Their Eyes Toward Discoveries, Which Come Like Culminating Event in Paving Way for New Era in Production of Yellow Metal.

GOLD'S magnetising gleam, which has never lost one whit of its brightness in the eyes of men, has flashed forth a message from a point within twelve hours' ride by railroad from Los Angeles. Hundreds of men have already answered the signal, and that hundreds more will quickly follow seems assured from the rapidly-increasing attractiveness of the new district, which is located at Oatman, just across the Arizona line, and is known as the Tom Reed Gold Road mining section.

Within the past few weeks the growing importance of the new mining field has made itself quite forcibly felt, not only on the Coast, but its fame has also penetrated to the East. A deal has just been closed whereby the Hayden-Stone interests of Boston, with D. C. Jackling, the prominent western mine operator, invest $500,000 in the development of the United Eastern mine, which was the property which first brought the Tom Reed-Gold Road district strongly into the limelight about half a year ago.

Many other smaller deals have been undertaken within the past few days. The O'Meara-Wilson interests, Mr. O'Meara being well known as a pioneer of Tonopah, have purchased 200,000 shares in the Arizona Tom Reed property. Niel & Co. of Chicago have bought 200,000 shares of stock in the Oatman Mining and Milling Company, for 40 cents a share, which will be put out on the Chicago curb, it is announced. United Eastern stock is to be listed on the New York curb.

The Pioneer Consolidated is under option to Allen Burris of Cripple Creek, president and general manager of the El Paso mine, who has associated with him in the deal Howland Bancroft, the well-known geologist of Denver. Another deal recently closed was the transferring of the Old Moss mine under bond and lease to the United States Smelting and Refining Company. The Tom Reed has just taken over a controlling interest in the Crown City Mining and Exploration Company's property for a consideration of $40,000.

It seems as if a mining boom is never really a mining boom until it has centered around the discovery of some new district. For months rumblings of the coming of a new era in the industry, especially the gold producing part of it, had been heard. Efforts were made to push development in some of the older sections, with a greater or less degree of success, but nothing like a real rush was approximated.

The first real flame in the smouldering reawakening of interest in mining burst forth in the shape of the excitement aroused by the discovery of ore in the United Eastern mine in the Oatman district. Immediately an invasion of the district was started. The gold seemed to have a new sparkle, and it has been only a short time until some of the largest interests have been drawn into the new section by its bewitching power.

Until six months ago the section around Oatman was what might be termed a two-property district. There were only two enterprises which deserved the name mine, as for that matter there are to this day, although a number of other holdings are practically on the verge of becoming mines.

YIELD BIG PROFITS.

The two properties referred to and controlled respectively by the Tom Reed Gold Mines Company and the Gold Road Mining Company, which in turn, is controlled by the great American Smelting and Refining Company. Both these companies have yielded extraordinary profits to their owners. The Tom Reed is known to have produced over $5,000,000 in bullion and to have paid over $2,000,000 in dividends.

Despite the great record of these mines for the past decade none of the large interests nor prospectors manifested much concern as to the developments which were taking place within a short distance of their own holdings. Three causes might be assigned for this situation, namely, the belief that ore values did not persist to depth, the fact that there was practically no surface ore, which principally affects the prospector, and lastly, the fact that interest had veered from gold mining to other industries.

ORIGINAL FIND.

It was some thirteen years ago that the Gold Roads Mining Company made its original discovery in the district, and about a year thereafter Eli Hilty and Joe Anderson, well-known prospectors, broke into values on a claim which, through subsequent changes, became the property of the Tom Reed Gold Mines Company.

The first company to operate the Hilty-Anderson claims was the Blue Ridge Gold Mines Company, headed by Charles Grimes, who is now president of the Tom Reed, D. A. Davis and Charles Mushrush. After more or less difficulty in mining and handling the ore and keeping on the trail of the vein, this company was sold under the Sheriff's gavel, only to be revived as the Tom Reed Mines Company, with Mr. Grimes at the helm, having as his principal lieutenants Mr. Mushrush, W. C. Mason and C. M. Simpson, all of Pasadena, where the main part of the company's stock is held to this day.

This was some eight years ago, and thereafter the pendulum of luck swung in favor of the owners of the mine. Their record during the past few years has been one which has made history in the mining world of the Southwest. Twice the capital of the company has been paid out in dividends and the stock has hung around $2.50 to $3 a share most of the time. The recent cutting of the dividend is only a temporary measure.

EXTENT OF SECTION.

The Oatman district, as at present considered, embracing the Tom Reed and Gold Road mines and the adjacent properties, is about five miles long by four miles wide. It extends from the Gold Road to the Leland mine, going north and south, and from Silver Creek to Boundary Cone, the core of an extinct volcano, where respectively the sun rises and sets.

Of course, the area which has been tested out in this section is comparatively small, but the district wherein preparations are being made for development is contrastingly large. There are altogether some twenty-four companies now busy, or preparing to get busy in the near future, and several hundred claims are staked out within a radius of five miles.

It is figured that there are nearly 1000 persons in the district in its entirety, of which perhaps 500 are engaged in the mining business. The rest are busy at all those necessary forms of employment which belong to just such a camp. Oatman has its butcher, its baker and would perhaps also have its electric light maker, were it not that the power is brought in from the Desert Power and Water Company's plant at Kingman. Incidentally Oatman enjoys the metropolitan distinction of having two telegraph and two telephone systems.

SINKING BIG MONEY.

Estimates place the amount of money invested in the Tom Reed-Gold Road mining district to date at $3,000,000 to $4,000,000. About half this amount has been put in by the Gold Road mine. The Tom Reed has put in a cool million, while $500,000 would probably cover expenditures already made and projected at the United Eastern mine.

The present owners of the Orion property have expended about $150,000 on their holding. A great deal of money was spent on this mine in the past, however, by interests affiliated with the Lima Locomotive Works, of Lima, O., who subsequently sold out for a nominal sum. They went so far as to build a water pipe line to the Colorado River, and install a pumping plant and other equipment with which to secure a supply of water. They are the only company which has thus far attempted this, although the Colorado River lies only about ten to eleven miles distant.

Other mines on which expenditures of $100,000 or over have thus far been made are the Treasure Key, headed by Dr. Glen G. Miller, C. E. Duvall and E. C. Carter, $150,000; the Leland mines, $150,000; The Pittsburgh Mining and Milling, headed by Col. L. P. Hansen, Mr. Walsh, James McLachlan and S. R. Porter, $100,000; the Old Moss Mine, recently taken over under bond and lease by the United States Smelting and Refining Company, $150,000, part also spent by original owners. A portion of the money sunk in the Leland group was furnished by the former owners, a syndicate made up of J. A. Graves, vice-president of the Farmers and Merchants National Bank, Judge Erskine M. Ross and others.

Among those prominently interested in the district besides the persons mentioned above are the following: George W. Long, W. K. Ridenour, James L. McIver, Seeley Mudd and Frank Keith, of the United Eastern; H. E. Woods and Frank Woods of the Lexington Arizona Mining Company; Carl F. Schader, R. G. Tryon, A. R. Marquis and others of the Pioneer Consolidated, besides many others. The Clark interests have just invested in the district, which has lent new zest to the belief in its possibilities on the part of the mining fraternity. This is one of the most important of the recent events.

OTHER OPERATORS.

Among the mining companies which have entered the field besides the leading ones already mentioned are the Big Jim Gold Mining Company, which is listed on the local stock exchange and is now selling for two and a half times its par value; the Black Range Mining Company, the Boundary Cone Gold Mines Company, the Carter Gold Mining Company, the Cone Mining and Milling Company, Gold Cliff Exploration Company, Gold Giant Mining and Milling Company, Gold Ore Mining Company, Gold Reed Mining Company, Gold Reed Mining and Milling Company, Gold Road Red Top Mining Company, Hercules Mining and Milling Company, Mazona Mining Company, Oatman Gold Mining and Milling Company, Telluride Mining, Milling and Development Company, Tom Reed Junior Mining Company, Tom Reed Annex Gold Mines Company, Vivian Mining Company. Besides there are a large number of partially developed groups of claims, and a number of other companies, which are selling stock if they are doing nothing more.

In many cases the concerns mentioned have as yet done little or no work, although a great number of them possess promising holdings. Real development is concentrated in the Tom Reed, Gold Road and United Eastern and a few other mines. The United Eastern is just entering the ranks of producers, having shipped a little ore within the past few weeks to the Gold Road mill. The company has its own plant under construction.

In the Tom Reed territory, according to experts, it has been demonstrated that the most promising ore horizon near the surface lies between the 400 and 600 levels, where values run from $10 to $15 per ton ordinarily. Above the 300 level little or no ore is found. The enrichment falls off a little in quality between the 600 and 800 levels, values running between $8 to $12 a ton, but they pick up between the 800 and 1075 level, which is the present limit of exploration, running as high as $25 a ton in places. The average last year is computed at $21 between the 800 and 1075 level.

The latest strike in the Tom Reed holdings has been in the Black Eagle workings, where a crosscut on the 400 level has intersected a sixteen-foot ledge running $10 a ton, according to President Grimes. The company has decided to continue the shaft deeper.

PROHIBITION'S EFFECT.

One of the striking features of all Arizona mining at the present time is the remarkable effect which prohibition is having on the various camps. It has ushered in a new era of prosperity, according to many recent visitors to the State.

"The merchants and bankers say that they have never experienced such good business," said Carl Schader, the well-known local capitalist and real estate man, who has just returned from the district, yesterday. "Everybody has money to pay his accounts, and laboring men and miners are opening savings bank accounts and investing money in the various mines in which they are working. This money formerly went into the coffers of the saloon-keeper."

Mr. Schader has known Arizona from its earliest days, having gone down the famous Black Canyon trail between Phoenix and Prescott before there were any railroads. He states that he has seen the famous whisky row of Prescott in what was known as the halcyon days of the Hassayampa State (the 80's,) when the customary dead man for breakfast in the real live communities was considered a credit.

"Arizona went dry the first of the year and instead of seeing drunken men, tin-horn gamblers, whisky rows and redlight districts, one notes conditions which are marvelously different," he continued. "Evidences of prosperity may be seen everywhere. The miners' wives and children look happier and better clothed. The miners themselves, some of them, too, who voted wet are more prosperous than ever before.

"The Sheriff of Mohave county, who voted wet, explained that the County Jail was now empty most of the time and that the Federal officers, who in former years had anywhere from a dozen to two dozen cases all the time, had not had a case of boot-legging or selling whisky to the Indians since the State went dry, and the Sheriff said that if he had to vote again, he would surely vote dry.

"The curse of the mining camps throughout Arizona in past years has been the liquor traffic. The men were rendered restless and dissatisfied with their work through the persistent campaigns which agitators saw fit to wage in the saloons, while the laboring man's inability to put any money aside helped to nourish the spirit of discontent."

Regarding the development of the district Mr. Schader stated:

"Some years ago there was quite a controversy as to whether the big fissures of this camp would continue to great depth and whether or not ore of commercial value would be found below the top flow of green chloritic andesite. This controversy kept the big mine operators out for many years, but now the Tom Reed has penetrated the upper flow and gone into the andesite on the 1075-foot level and has as good ore as ever. The United Eastern started on the surface, went through the upper flow and on the 565-foot level of the lower andesite found the best ore shoots of the entire camp, while the Gold Road has reached a depth of 1100 feet. The Pioneer Consolidated only last week commenced cross-cutting to open their shoot of ore on the 400.

"The geological theory that frightened people out of this district has been exploded. The camp looks like Goldfield during its first year. Twenty-four companies are operating; over 500 miners are at work; hotels, lodging-houses, drug store, banks, etc., are going up on all sides. Twenty-mule teams and automobile trucks are hauling supplies to the mines. Auto stage lines are running between Needles, Cal., Topock and Kingman, Ariz., and the camp and are all loaded with people."

And this great new mining camp lies almost at the door of Los Angeles. If the rosy predictions regarding its future are realized, it will place this city securely on the map as gards its importance as a the industry.

Gold has lost none of its ring. Its lure is just as great as even if the six-shooter is not so nent as it once was, as an the camp follower. And the brawl, at least in Arizona, of the past.

Four-mile radius sweeps host of gold searchers.

The Tom Reed-Gold Road mining district, which lies only twelve hours distant from Los Angeles, has been attracting wide interest in the Southwest during the past year, and is paving the way for a new era in the history of mining in this section. The two chief properties in the field are the Tom Reed and the Gold Road. The United Eastern was scene of a strike which brought the district directly to the front, and started the present wave of development.

HEAVY TRADING IN WAR SHARES.

IRREGULARITY OF PRICES IS MARKET FEATURE.

Both Groups Display Variable Tendencies, Probably as Result of Contract Settlement—Weekly Reviews of Business are All Again of an Optimistic Tenor.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—Moderate activity with the usual week-end irregularity of prices were the principal features of today's stock market. The bulk of the trading was in war shares and coppers, both groups displaying variable tendencies, probably as a result of contract settlement. Tennessee Copper was again the chief feature among the metals, declining almost at the outset to 55⅝, 3⅛ points from yesterday's close and making only fractional recovery. Other coppers were consistently strong but showed few material changes at the end. There was again heavy trading in Pittsburgh Coal common and preferred, the latter making a net gain of 5⅛ points to 105 on persistent reports that plans have been completed to pay back dividends. Other stocks, including fertilizers and chemicals, rose and fell within 2 to 3-point limits. United States Steel repeated yesterday's high quotation of 77 but yielded slightly at the close on further profit taking. In the final dealings there came a demand for such obscure stocks as Western Maryland and a few other minor railroads. On a single sale of 100 shares Bethlehem preferred dropped 9⅛ points to [illegible]. Total sales amounted to 345,000 shares. Weekly trade reviews were again of optimistic tenor, with a broadening of demand in mercantile lines. Bank clearings at leading centers confirmed this improvement. The final bank statement fulfilled popular estimates, reserves increasing by over [illegible] and placing the excess reserves at the high figure of almost [illegible]. Interest was manifested in the further imports of British gold by way of Canada, but bankers identified with the transaction declined to disclose the amount of the gold and securities involved. Demand sterling broke to the new low record of 4.62¼ or ⅛ of a cent to the pound under the low record established yesterday. Rates on Paris and Rome also were weaker. Bond dealings were light with a lower tendency. Total sales, par value, aggregated $1,320,000. All United States bonds and Panama 3s were lower by ¼ to ½ per cent. on call during the week.

LOCAL PRODUCE MARKET.

Secretary Pickrell of the Produce Exchange is in receipt of a letter from the San Francisco Wholesale Dairy Produce Exchange which gives an excellent summary of cheese conditions in California.

"The condition of the cheese market, in so far as the California product is concerned," says the letter, "is unsatisfactory in the extreme. California cheese sells at a discount here in competition with Oregon, Wisconsin and New York cheese. It should be understood that California cheese is not manufactured by the same process that is used in making the cheese which comes here from other States. There is a demand in California cities for California-made cheese. Formerly there was a demand in the Hawaiian and Philippine Islands and the Orient for California-made cheese. Such is not the case today; those markets have come to prefer Oregon and eastern cheese. The reason for this preference is not that the cheese comes from other States, but because it is manufactured by a different process. Over 99 per cent. of California cheese is what is known as "hand stirred" or "stirred curd" cheese, while all the cheese that comes to San Francisco from other States and which is exported from this market is made by what is known as the "cheddar" process. The result of this condition is that all cheese made in California by the hand-stirred process must be consumed within the boundaries of the State. It is impossible to find a market for it elsewhere. This explains the difference in market prices and why cheese making in California is becoming unprofitable. Cheese makers can obtain a higher price for their cheese if they will adopt the cheddar process and the industry can be increased by the merchants regaining the export trade which has been lost in the last few years. The difference in price between "California old-style" and "cheddar type" cheese at the present time is about 1½ cents per pound, but the average difference based upon a year's figures is from 3 to 4 cents a pound.

Realizing that a continuance of present conditions must result eventually in the elimination of California cheese, the San Francisco Wholesale Dairy Produce Exchange has established a classification for California cheddar-style cheese whereby cheese made by the cheddar process, such as is used in the manufacture of cheese in Oregon and other States, may now be purchased and sold at its true value on the San Francisco market. The cheese factory on the farm of the University of California located at Davis has been making some cheese of the cheddar type. This exchange has carefully investigated and has tested the quality of the cheese made at University Farm. We are pleased to be able to state that the result of our investigations satisfies us that cheddar-type cheese can be made in California of a quality equal, if not superior, to the quality of cheddar-type cheese made in Oregon or the eastern States."

No price changes of importance were noticed in the local produce market yesterday. Navel oranges have dropped off the market and Valencias are expensive and scarce. The call was dispensed with on the exchange and receipts were 169 cases of eggs, 42,930 pounds of butter, 9140 pounds of cheese, 2720 sacks of potatoes, 88 sacks of sweet potatoes, 2720 boxes of apples and 2173 boxes of peaches.

WHEAT SHORTS COVER HOLDINGS.

WHEAT REGISTERS LOW VALUE AT THE OPENING.

Corn After Nervous Bidding Firms up on Forecast of Unsettled Weather in the Northwest—Oats Sag—Little Business in the Provisions Market.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CHICAGO, Aug. 28.—Lowest values for the crop were registered by wheat today at the opening. There was a temporary rally on covering by shorts but offerings became freer and the market declined again, closing irregular, ⅛ lower to ¼ higher at 97¼ for September and 95⅝ for December. Corn, after a nervous opening, a shade higher to ⅛ lower, firmed up on forecast of unsettled weather in the northwest and closed strong ⅛ to ⅝ net higher with September at 73⅝ and December at 63¼@63⅜. Oats after a little early strength, which followed a weak opening, declined and closed unchanged to ⅛@¼ lower. Provisions closed dull and easier, 7½ lower to 2½ higher. The low prices which marked the opening of the wheat market was the signal for a rush of buying, mostly on the part of shorts. The later half of the session in the wheat pit was marked by a steady decline. The strength manifested by corn in the first hour continued to the finish except for a slight decline after the top point had been reached. Oats sagged at the opening to the lowest prices recorded by the crop. There was little business in the provision market.

A USEFUL VOLUME.

Eastern Authority on Interior Decoration Produces Book Full of Valuable Hints.

"The Decoration and Furnishing of Apartments" is the title of an interesting and useful book by B. Russell Herts, recently issued by Putnam. The author, a well-known eastern authority on interior decoration, has succeeded in compressing into one volume about all there is to know on the subject he has selected for his latest work. The book is enlivened by some forty color prints showing attractive interiors of the author's own designing, and with many photographs of ideally-finished and furnished rooms and suites.

The volume deals with the artistic treatment of apartments ranging in size from small two-room suites to elaborate duplex and triplex apartments in the luxurious metropolitan apartment hotels. Mr. Herts discusses his subject from both a decorative and architectural point of view and gives valuable advice for all who are confronted with the problem of getting the best artistic and utilitarian results in the appointment of rented living quarters.

PLANS FINE HOME.

Local Physician to Build Mansion in Windsor Square—Realty Man Another Recent Purchaser.

One of the finest residences yet projected in the Windsor Square tract at the western edge of the Wilshire boulevard district is to be started within the next few weeks on Windsor boulevard between Third and Fourth streets by Dr. Ralph Williams, a recent purchaser in the subdivision. Dr. Williams has a site 100x180 feet in size and intends to carry out an elaborate landscaping plan. Plans for his house are now being prepared by Eisen & Son.

O. A. Vickrey, a local real estate man, is having plans drawn by the Milwaukee Building Company for a house of the southern colonial type to be erected on a lot on Plymouth boulevard in the same subdivision. Mr. Vickrey also will lay out extensive grounds.

In the same tract two attractive places are now nearing completion, these being the residences of J. B. Van Nuys and J. R. Page. Fine homes in Windsor Square have just been occupied by and Sam Behrendt.

STUDEBAKER SIX REPLACES STAGE COACH ON CALIFORNIA HIGHWAYS.

JOHNSTON AND GRIFFIN PLAY BRILLIANT TENNIS.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SOUTHAMPTON (N. Y.) Aug. 28.—Watson M. Washburn of Harvard defeated Theodore Roosevelt Pell of New York in the finals today for the Meadow Club cup.

It took Washburn four sets to dispose of Pell. The latter won the first set and made a desperate fight in the third, but his rally failed of success. The other sets were comparatively easy for Washburn. Scores: 4-6, 6-3, 6-1, 6-2.

The victory of the final in the doubles, in which William M. Johnston and Clarence J. Griffin of San Francisco, the Pacific Coast champions, defeated George M. Church and Walter Merrill Hall at 6-2, 4-6, 6-4, 7-5, was due to form.

The pair, comprised of the Princeton captain and the former Middle States champion, took desperate chances and extended the challengers for the national titles much more than had been expected. The lobbying and smashing of Church and Hall often had the Californians fighting on the defense.

So fast and furious were many of the rallies that the crowd that sat in the stand wrapped in blankets, furs and overcoats, forgot to shiver as they applauded the lightning drives and the all-around fine playing of Johnston, who was easily the most brilliant player on the courts.

The summary:

Meadow Club cup singles, final and cup rounds:

Watson M. Washburn, New York, defeated T. R. Pell, New York, 4-6, 6-3, 6-7, 6-3.

Meadow Club cup, men's doubles final and cup round:

William M. Johnston and Clarence J. Griffin, San Francisco, defeated George M. Church and Walter Merrill Hall, Englewood, N. J., and New York, 6-2, 4-6, 6-4, 7-5.

Meadow Club mixed doubles, semi-final round:

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Leroy defeated Mr. and Mrs. Howard Brokaw, 6-2, 6-3; Miss Lee and William Rand III, defeated Miss Jones and G. W. Burgwin, 6-2, 6-2.

Final round: Mr. and Mrs. Robert Leroy defeated Miss Lee and William Rand, III, 7-5, 6-1.

Men's consolation singles, final round: Charles S. Garland defeated Harold Wainwright, 6-0, 6-3, 6-2.

SERVICE SUCCESS.

That the new nation-wide Hupmobile service plan is a practical success has been demonstrated by the number of owners of the 1916 model Hupmobile, who have availed themselves of the opportunity offered by the company to keep their cars in good condition. This plan, which allows for fifty hours' service for each Hupmobile, calls for a stipulated amount of monthly service. The new Hupmobile owners have immediately taken to the idea as is demonstrated by the fact that 97 per cent. of the coupons available so far, have been sent in to the factory for redemption by the individual Hupmobile service stations. This percentage ratio will probably be increased by coupons in transit.

SEALS DEFEAT TIGERS TWICE.

The Second Combat Goes for Eleven Innings.

Biff Schaller Busts it up with a Single.

Fitzgerald and Jones are Extremely Active.

BY HARRY A. WILLIAMS.

In the presence of a large and sticky gathering, the Seals bet the Tigers all the afternoon, winning 5 to 2 and 4 to 3.

Adding to the other well-known horrors of double-headers, the second combat slopped along for eleven full innings. Just as the sun was setting in the West, the same place that it always sets, Biff Schaller busted one of Charley Check's mud balls for a single that drove in the winning run. Percontra, the Tigers could do nothing with Skeeter Fanning's mudder in the last half, and the giddy throng went home to cool off.

LOAM DELIVERY.

This was the first time that Chech had shown the loam delivery in public, and it was so effective that it looked like the Tigers might win until Biff struck the fatal blow. It is no longer proper to say that a man fought his way through blood to victory. To be strictly down to date, one should say that he fought his way through mud. That's what Biff did.

It was hotter blazes, and the condition of the weather had a big influence on the food market. Trading was slack in peanuts, and the hot dog market was weak. Popcorn was dull and featureless, with hardly and bidding. Ice cream preferred was strong, while there was heavy buying in coca-cola consolidated. Lemonade went up several points, but quickly went down again. Buying in hot dogs became brisker along toward evening as it grew cooler, and the market closed strong.

Only eleven pitchers were needed to handle the two games. Smith, Decanniere and Chech were so keen for work that they managed to get into both combats.

TOUGH LUCK.

C. Honkus Baum was forced to retire at the end of the seventh in the first game. This was because he tore one of his ribs loose from the place that it is fastened to the spinal column. The injury is not paining Baum greatly, but he does not like the idea of having a loose rib flapping around inside of him. Therefore, ways and means are now being sought by which the rib can be welded to the backbone again.

FIRST GAME.

As per advertisement, Ellis Johnson faced Baum in combat No. 1. Johnson tried out the mudder for the first time. Theoretically, meaning in practice, he has a fine mudder, but it fails him in public. He gave it up after passing the first two guys, and returned to the pure and high ideals of his youth. Neither of the

GIBBONS IS ON THE JOB.

ST. PAUL (Minn.) Aug. 28.—Mike and Tommy Gibbons will leave tonight at 8:40 for New York and Tommy will be Mike's principal sparring partner in the training he will do in New York for his match with Packy McFarland at the Brighton Motordome September 11.

Mike finished his preliminary work today with a long run this morning and some light gymnasium work this afternoon at his new gymnasium. The phantom is within four pounds of the 147 he has to scale on the afternoon of September 11 at 3 p.m.

He says he will not have much trouble making the weight, but that he will never make it again for any one else unless the inducements are as tempting as they have been made for this bout, which will pay Mike $15,000 in real money to be deposited with a New York sport writer a week before the date set for the battle.

Transportation.

MOTOR STAGES COVER STATE.

POSSIBLE TO TRAVEL LENGTH OF PACIFIC HIGHWAY.

California Routes Once Used by Romantic Stage Coaches Now Know Sound of Exhaust and Smell of Gasoline—Thousands of Passengers Carried in Comfort.

From New York to California by motor stage may soon be a possibility. It is now possible to travel from the Mexican line to the Canadian boundary by regular automobile stage lines, and all the main highways of California are traveled daily by auto stages doing a heavy interurban transportation business.

Where once the old Concord and Studebaker stage coaches bounced along over dusty roads, the auto stage now glides over paved boulevards, plows through desert sand or climbs into the highlands over excellent mountain roads. In Southern California alone there are more than 100 Studebaker automobiles covering on an average 60,000 miles per year on stage runs.

The growth of the interurban motor stage business has been almost as rapid in Southern California as the development of the jitney. In the past three months this motor stage business has developed until it is no longer a factor in the motor car industry, but an industry in itself with almost unlimitable possibilities.

Students of transportation claim that with the completion of the Lincoln and other transcontinental highway systems, the transcontinental motor stage will travel the routes once covered by the old "prairie schooners."

It is claimed that California will always lead in motor stage transportation on account of the favorable climatic conditions. It is possible to travel with comfort in open automobiles in almost any part of the State, twelve months in the year.

The types of stages used vary according to the nature of the roads covered. In the mountains light trucks or touring cars with special bodies do the service. On some short runs the cars used are heavy busses with increased seating capacity; but in a great many of the lines the regular touring car is in service.

The lines operating between Los Angeles and San Diego are almost all equipped with regular Studebaker cars. It is claimed that on every line in the State there are from one to twenty Studebaker cars in service. There are Studebakers on the run from Los Angeles to San Francisco over both the valley and coast routes.

On practically all the runs the fare is as low or lower than on the railroads. The roads are generally in such excellent condition that one experiences little discomfort in traveling in an auto stage.

For seeing the country there is no comparison between the automobile and the railroad.

The motor stage has opened up country which the railroads could not touch. The motor car has invaded the districts where transportation facilities were inadequate, and with the motor truck carrying great quantities of freight throughout the State, it is almost a fact that California is nourished by gasoline.

It is also a fact that with the Los Angeles, San Diego and San Francisco Harbors, our excellent highway systems and thousands of motor cars and motor trucks, California could prosper for an indefinite length of time with all railroad connections cut off.

Aha!

MOTOR RESERVE MEN TO SHOOT.

Will Practice Today at the Rifle Range.

Are to Meet Scottish Marksmen Next Sunday.

Officers to be Elected in the Near Future.

BY AL G. WADDELL.

Members of the Los Angeles Motor Reserve are to engage in the first rifle practice of the organization at the Los Angeles Rifle and Revolver Club range at Glendale today. The automobile men are to be instructed in the use of the government rifle by Edward C. Crossman, G. L. Wotkyns and E. D. Neff, among the greatest rifle shots in the West.

The shoot today is in preparation for the match with the Los Angeles Scottish, scheduled for next Sunday. Both the Los Angeles Motor Reserve and the Los Angeles Scottish are taking a keen interest in rifle practice and will engage in it under the regulations of the National Rifle Association.

Some lively competition is promised when the motor men and the "kilties" meet on the range. In both the Scotch battalion and the Motor Reserve there are some excellent marksmen and from the first the scores should run high.

Notices have been sent out by the acting secretary of the Motor Reserve calling a meeting next Wednesday night. At that time the officers of the command will be elected and other business transacted.

Prominent automobile men of the city have become interested in the organization and with a large membership at this time, the command promises to attract nation-wide attention from its inception. Already the fame of the organization has spread across the continent and similar organizations are brewing.

Many of the greatest military experts in the United States have indorsed the patriotic move on the part of the Los Angeles automobile dealers. It is generally admitted that in time of war, the men who make up the Los Angeles Motor Reserve, all experts in that branch of the service, would be of greater value than any other volunteer forces.

When Secretary of War Garrison heard of the action of the Los Angeles motor car dealers in organizing the Los Angeles Motor Reserve, he said that he approved very heartily of the spirit which prompted the action.

"Without having their full plan before me," said the secretary, "it would be impossible, of course, for me to say whether this organization would fit into the general scheme which has been worked out by the War Department.

"Of course, a vast amount of transportation is required in times of war, mostly freight trucks, however. I can very freely say that the department is pleased to learn of any kind of co-operation with plans for national defense, and I am entirely in favor of the spirit actuating the automobile owners of Los Angeles in working up an organization which, in case of necessity, would undoubtedly prove of very great utility. It appears, from what I have been told, that this example is worthy of emulation."

That the motor reserve as an adjunct to the National Guard will prove a great benefit is the opinion of Maj.-Gen. Murray, commander-in-chief of the Pacific division of the United States Army.

Discussing the plans of the Los Angeles corps, Gen. Murray said:

"The war now in progress in Europe has shown the efficiency and the great value of the motor in warfare.

BAKER'S RIDE DARING FEAT.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SAN DIEGO, Aug. 28.—E. G. Baker, accompanied by his pilot, Paul Derkum, reached the Mexican border at 8:15 last night. His elapsed time from Vancouver is three days, nine hours and fifteen minutes, which beggars all records ever attempted for cross-country driving. Baker rode an Indian motorcycle and calls his trip the "three flag ride." He beat his suit case into San Diego by hours. It is still coming by express.

SCRIMMAGES AT BERKELEY LOOK LIKE REAL GAMES.

UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA, Aug. 28.—There were ten hours of football practice today. Squads were in operation all day and the scrimmages took the form of games before the day was over.

Now that a week's preliminary work is done, the men are getting some of the rougher training. Practice in blocking, falling on the ball and other kinds of heavy work have begun.

All during the past week the coaches have been busy teaching the men the game, and now that the rudiments are instilled the time has come for some of the more technical details. The theory is being expounded in a series of nightly lectures, but real practice is only just arriving.

INTERCLASS GAMES.

A schedule of interclass games to start on Monday has been drawn up by Manager Stroud. In order to give as many as possible a chance to play the game, three teams from each class are to be put into the field.

By elimination the poorer ones are to go out, while the interclass championship is to be settled by the remaining elevens. Such an arrangement will encourage the largest possible number to play and will furnish material for another year.

GOOD-BY, RUGBY.

The old Rugby linings and goal stakes went down today. The field has been re-marked and laid out for the new "old game" which has come to take the place of the English game. It was not without some feeling of regret that the lovers of Rugby saw the last vestige, the goal posts, removed from the field.

NO CUTS SOON.

This is to be a no-cut season. Everybody is to be given a chance to learn the game and the cuts will not come until the coaches have exhausted the possibilities of every man.

HAYES OUT.

"Kennie" Hayes, the wing on the last three varsities, is not out for American football. Hayes's parents object to American football and have refused to allow him to join the squad. All other ruggers are out, however, and in addition a lot of men who have always had the idea that they were too heavy for the Rugby game.

ROWDY SIGNS UP INFIELDER DUDDY.

Duddy is at Los Angeles. He will report to the Oaks next week at Salt Lake. Elliott said Duddy would be given a regular berth at short or third if he makes good.

Miss Florence Boquette,

Maiden motorist of Grand Island, Neb., who piloted a powerful Paige six across continent, accompanied by her father and baby sisters.

Papa's Daughter Papa's Chauffeur.

YOUNG WOMAN PILOTS CAR ACROSS CONTINENT.

BECAUSE his three sons would not consent to make the transcontinental trip with the automobiles he had purchased them, M. F. Boquette, hotel proprietor of Grand Island, Neb., bought a powerful six-cylinder Paige machine for his 17-year-old daughter Florence, and after she had received four lessons from the agent started for San Francisco with the girl as mechanician and chauffeur.

Although Mr. Boquette has never driven an automobile in is life, the three boys were left home, and taking Florence as driver, and his three smaller daughters, Violet, 13 years old; Frances, 12 years, and Birdie Bell, 10 years old, as passengers, the intrepid tourist left Grand Island August 1, arriving in Los Angeles last Monday afternoon.

Mrs. Boquette will meet her husband and daughters in San Francisco. The three boys will accompany her there. But they missed the fun that Mr. Boquette and the girls had.

Florence has driven the entire distance. The big Paige six gave her no trouble at all, and the tires on which they started from their home town were intact when they rolled down Broadway.

"When I decided to make the trip to the fair by automobile, I asked my boys if they wanted to drive me out," Mr. Boquette said yesterday. "I never drove a car myself, but I own four machines. I bought them for my boys, all three of whom are now young men.

"But they didn't seem to like the idea of the tour across the country. So when they refused to go, I bought another machine for my girl. She learned how to run it in four lessons, and we started at once for San Francisco. We have had no trouble at all, and the trip has been one grand joy ride."

The three smaller girls are having the time of their lives, and "Mr. Bumps," their pet dog, has also enjoyed the trip immensely.

Santa Barbara After Bonds for Road Construction.

BOND VOTE AT SANTA BARBARA.

Santa Barbara county today stands on the brink of good or bad roads. If it carries a proposed bond issue tomorrow another step will have been taken toward the completion of a system of highways on the Pacific Coast which cannot be equaled anywhere in the world.

Automobile club officials, good roads boosters and sister counties, led by Ventura, which have passed bond issues, will eagerly watch Santa Barbara tomorrow, hoping for the best. In a way, the eyes of the 151,000 motorists of California will be on Santa Barbara.

It is of vital interest to every automobilist that the Santa Barbara county bonds carry. Ventura county took the plunge and brought forth bonds to the total of $1,000,000, which will make boulevards to connect with the Los Angeles county system of roads, built at a cost of $3,500,000.

Working among the reactionaries of Santa Barbara tomorrow will be the spirit of the Automobile Club of Southern California, represenetd by Carl E. McStay and Ralph Coane. The Auto Club, as pointed out yesterday by Secretary Mitchell, is back of the Santa Barbara issue with the full force of its moral support because the roads there are a necessity at this time.

BEAUTIES THERE.

Santa Barbara county, it is pointed out by the Auto Club, is one of the most beautiful potential touring grounds in the State, and one of special historic interest. It is also a link on the chain of coast counties which are providing highways for local and visiting motorists.

To open this wonderland of natural beauty, it is necessary to have good roads, and these only can be built by bonding the county.

But even more necessary than the scenic routes in Santa Barbara are the utility roads, connecting towns and commercial centers, as well as county points on the coast route between San Diego and San Francisco. These utility roads come first and then the scenic roads.

Ventura county, after a stormy campaign, came into the fold. Word received at Auto Club headquarters yesterday from workers in the field states that Santa Barbara is to have an even more stormy campaign before the word is flashed that more good roads await the motorist.

It is predicted that twice as much motor travel will visit Santa Barbara in the winter months with the building of good roads than has stopped there heretofore. Whether this travel stays will depend upon the passing of the bonds.

OVER THE PISTON.

Locating the spark plugs on the motor has always had very careful attention of automobile engine designers. In the L head motor the conventional design places the spark plug over one of the valves in the L. The manufacturers of the Marmon car have deviated from this practice by placing the spark plug in the center of the combustion chamber directly over the center of the piston. They claim this allows the flame to spread more rapidly and ignite the gas more quickly, giving more power.

HARD TRIP IN HEAVY MACHINE.

"It's mighty good to reach this land of sunshine after our trip across the continent," said L. A. Andrus of the New York Times upon reaching Universal City last Wednesday morning in a Fiat 90.

Mr. Andrus, accompanied by R. C. Ferguson, left New York June 30, the object of the trip being to investigate the condition of roads and hotel and garage service en route. There was no particular time allotted to the duration of the trip and stops of length were made at Chicago, Denver and Salt Lake. From Los Angeles Messrs. Andrus and Ferguson will go to the expositions and at San Francisco the car which brought them on their trip, a ninety-horse-power Fiat, will be shipped back to New York.

When asked why he would not make the return trip in the machine, Mr. Andrus replied:

"The roads are too much cut up and they are full of chuck holes. This is due to the heavy traffic to which they have been subjected. About every hundred miles we had broken springs and I do not care to make another trip under such circumstances. Furthermore, it is a mistake for anyone to attempt to cross the continent in a heavy car until the roads have been placed in more satisfactory condition."

Messrs. Andrus and Ferguson will be guests at the Hollywood Hotel while here.

GOOD ROADS ARE REAL BOOSTERS.

HIGHWAY BONDS HELP IN MANY WAYS TO BETTER THE CONDITIONS.

By attracting so many eastern automobile tourists to the State, the California expositions are having an indirect influence on road conditions in the State that will result in wonderful improvements, according to A. T. Smith, manager of the Los Angeles branch of the Firestone Tire and Rubber Company. Mr. Smith has just returned from northern points in the territory served by this branch.

"Ventura county has just voted $1,000,000 for good roads bonds," Mr. Smith said, "and the interest there is keen. Ventura has been behind the other counties along the Coast route between Los Angeles and San Francisco, but they have wakened up at last and now are going to see things through to the finish. There was more interest in the bond election than is shown customarily on political questions.

"To some it seemed that $1,000,000 was a great deal of money to raise all at once. It was pointed out, however, that the value of property is helped greatly by better roads and the conditions in Los Angeles county was cited as an example. It seems that Ventura county suffers every year from destruction of its road by floods. Advocates of improved roads said the reason was due largely to the effect the roads were in no shape to withstand the water and a system of surfacing and proper drainage would be the remedy.

"When touring between Los Angeless and San Francisco, it is an easy thing to note when Ventura county is reached because of the difference in roads. The Santa Susana route is a good example. It is boulevard all the way in this county, but when the line is passed in the hills at the summit the rough going begins and continues for many miles. Ventura wants to have this State of affairs changed and although a million dollars may seem a burden to some, there is reason to believe the roads will pay for themselves through the increased travel and additions to the value of adjacent property."

WOMAN'S LONG TRIP.

After driving her Maxwell from Long Beach to Dallas, Tex., Mrs. K. L. Kent is now on her return trip. Her only companions are her 10-year-old son and "Buster," a husky bull terrier. Mrs. Kent made her eastward trip in eleven days and expects to beat this fast time on her way home.

The city engineer of Baltimore has begun an inspection of automobile trucks equipped with solid rubber tires. There are about 1200 such trucks in Baltimore. The purpose of the regulation is to protect the new pavements.

At least 1000 alleged violators of the traffic and speed laws of Pittsburgh were served recently with summons, as a result of a crusade instigated by Mayor Armstrong against speed-mad drivers.

MOTOR CARS WITH MANY LICENSES IN YOSEMITE.

MOTOR car travel in California has been more varied and extensive during the last three months than in any two seasons previous. Cars have come from all parts of the United States to visit California's two expositions, and the national parks of the State.

Attention to the extent of the travel is brought before one by a letter recently writtten by David A. Curry, stentor of the Yosemite, to Mack Irwin, Los Angeles business man.

"I have been amazed all summer at the extent of out-of-State travel into California," he said. "Practically every car which comes from other States visits the Yosemite, and already four times as many cars from the East as last season have visited the valley."

Mr. Curry goes on to state that recently he walked through the parking space allotted to motor cars at Camp Curry and counted motor cars from sixteen different States gathered there in ont evening.

TOURIST SHOWS NEW CAR FIRST.

CROSSES CONTINENT WITH THE FIRST MODEL DELIVERED AT RETAIL.

The new Jeffrey four, the first models for delivery of which will be received by the Carlton-Faulkner-Bowles Company in the near future, has been seen by a fortunate few on the streets of Los Angeles. The owner of the car is Garford Peterson, who drove to Los Angeles from Chicago immediately after accepting delivery on the first of the new Jeffrey fours to be delivered to a retail purchaser. He received the car August 5, which was purchased especially for a trip to the expositions, and the following day he was on the way to California.

The National Old Trails route was followed, Mr. Peterson driving from Chicago to Kansas City, thence to Trinidad, Colo., and Santa Fe. From Santa Fe the route led through Albuquerque to Springerville, Holbrook, Flagstaff, Williams, Kingman, Needles, Barstow and San Bernardino to Los Angeles.

After several days in Los Angeles Mr. Peterson drove to San Diego and will return from there tomorrow to continue on his way to San Francisco. The return journey will be made via the Lincoln highway.

According to Mr. Peterson, there are many cars still on the road from the East, despite the fact that most tourists who planned the trip to the Coast already are here or on their way home, and he expects to see no decrease in touring for a fortnight.

INCOMPLETED ROADS COSTLY.

HUNDREDS OF CARS COULD HAVE BEEN SOLD HAD WORK BEEN COMPLETED.

The incomplete condition of the State highway between San Diego and San Francisco has cost the automobile dealers of California hundreds of thousands of dollars, Ralph E. Hamlin, Franklin and Scripps-Booth distributor, writes from San Francisco. Mr. Hamlin and a party of friends in three Franklin cars are spending a month touring the State as their vacation outing.

"Dealers I have met in the cities between Los Angeles and San Francisco are a unit in declaring that the lack of a through road [illegible] proved has been a serious handicap to their business," Mr. Hamlin writes. "They say there is no question but that several hundred more cars would have been sold during the [illegible] year had not California [illegible] known that the coast road is not in condition to be regarded as [illegible] for touring.

"From what I have seen on my trip, I would say it will take another year to make such a thing as a boulevard between San Francisco and San Diego possible. Many easterners have said they were of the understanding the boulevard was already built. It seems the magnitude of the undertaking was underestimated. Hundreds of men and teams are now working every day but nature's barriers were too stubborn to be removed so easily. We have to feel a sense of pride though at what has been done when we realize what it will mean in the end."

NEW PLANT.

The Willys-Overland Company has bought land in St. Paul, Minn., and will erect a $250,000 building, to be used either as an assembling plant or a warehouse, from which the northwest territory will be supplied. The land is between University avenue and the Wabash railroad, and is in an excellent location. Construction of the building is to be started within a month.

San Francisco is the latest city to plan a modern mile and a half wooden automobile speedway.

THE STIMULATORS OF MOTORING

DEER season, quail season, trout season and duck season are considered "stimulators" of automobile travel over the $30,000,000 highway system of Southern California. Southern California has spent $30,000,000 for roads and several more millions will be spent for more roads.

Out of 80,000 motorists in the southern part of the State, some ten per cent. are supporting the work of the Automobile Club of Southern California. Considering the four seasons as "stimulators" of motor travel, there has entered the field a fifth factor, and that is this same automobile club which, by unusual activity, has become the most remarkable organization of its kind in the world.

According to statistics collected at the office of County Highway Commissioner Joyner, motor travel in 1915 has been distributed over various highways not so much according to the game seasons as to the Southern California climatic seasons. In the summer the travel has moved beachward, as always.

THE WHITTIER ROAD.

However, the Whittier boulevard saw an unusual amount of travel in March, April and May, as did Huntington drive and the Foothill and Valley boulevards. This distribution of motor car travel is directed through the inclinations of the motor car owners, who, after the winter season are drawn irrisistibly toward the awakening foothills.

But more concrete in its distribution activities than any of these is the stimulation given to travel by the signposting system of the automobile club. These signposts have now been [illegible] take as a matter of course, and motorists seldom stop to realize the service given by the club members in supporting a system which is without equal in any country in the world.

These signposts, then, working with the touring bureau, are the fundamental "distributors" of Southern California. It is not so much that they are the distributing medium now as that they will be more of a medium in the future when the system is elaborated and expanded as is now planned by the club officers following the completion of various boulevards throughout the counties.

ON THE MAP.

As each county completes its good roads they are "put on the map" by the auto club in two ways—first, by being signposted and officially labelled, and second, by being charted and actually mapped by the club's drafting department. These maps are then "distributed" to the tune of approximately 300,000 per year.

In addition to this system of distribution of travel there is another. This is found in the way of one motorist telling another of special tours which are found agreeable. Already the effects of this system are being felt in the growth of transcontinental travel to Southern California.

Eastern motorists visiting here are sending word to their friends at home of the excellence of the roads and the improvement of the signposted transcontinental routes with the result that travel is increasing as the summer draws to a close.

The only cause of a grinding noise in the differential would be first, a serious misalignment or maladjustment of the two gears, and second, a foreign substance in the gear case. Any such noise as this is more apparent when the car is coasting ahead of the motor, as this allows the rear wheels to take up the back lash in the driving gears. This should be taken to a first-class garage where a mechanic can take up the play and put the gears in proper mesh.

With a full load of passengers, the Haynes "Light Six" will pick up and maintain a speed of 60 miles per hour—yet you can throttle it down and creep along silently and smoothly at one mile per hour on high—slower than a walk.

Press the foot throttle and the car picks up and gets away instantly. It has made 30 miles per hour in 7½ seconds from a standing start. No matter how suddenly you open the throttle you can't choke the high speed motor of this wonderful new creation.

New Beardsley Factory.

GROUND BROKEN FOR CULVER CITY PLANT.

Growth of Business Makes Move Necessary—With Large Site Local Electric Builders Start on Construction of First of Modern Buildings—Will Retain Service Station in City.

ONE of the most important industrial developments in Los Angeles is the announcement made by the Beardsley Electric Company, that the company has closed a contract for the erection of the first of a number of new buildings for its new plant in Culver City. Ground was broken yesterday.

This company is a home industry. Its president, Volney S. Beardsley, and its stockholders are Los Angeles business men.

When the sales department worked faster than the manufacturing department, something had to be done, and the result is the announcement of the new factory. A larger working capital was required in the new and ambitious plans of the company, which has been readily supplied by the sale of a limited amount of treasury stock, to a group of well-known Los Angeles business men.

ROOM FOR MORE.

Ample acreage has been secured for future enlargement and erection of additional buildings. This first building will be 64x200 feet and work of construction will be started immediately.

All departments of manufacturing will be under one roof, for the present. Blacksmith shops, trimming department, paint and enameling shop, wood-working department, testing department, stock department and a general assembling-room, with salesrooms and offices occupying the front of the building, will comprise the several divisions of the plant.

This building will be within plain view of the thousands who drive or ride to the beach, and an immense electric sign across the top of the building, will be visible for miles. The company will retain their West Seventh-street quarters for their general office, salesroom and service station.

TWO NEW ONES.

The Beardsley Electric Company has been perfecting and is about ready to show two new 1916 models, which will both be much cheaper in price than any car heretofore produced, and it is for this reason that the company is planning on increasing facilities, as the demand for a cheaper electric is bound to bring considerable business.

The first showing of these new models will probably be in the coming Broadway Automobile and Flower Show.

At 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon about 500 people met at the proposed site of the new factory, where appropriate ground-breaking ceremonies took place. The guests were entertained in different ways, and at 6 o'clock a dinner was served in the new Culver City playgrounds, which was prepared by the ladies of the city.

At 7:30 in the evening a programme was rendered in the Culver City Operahouse, after which the visitors were given an informal reception at the home of Harry H. Culver, and those who enjoyed dancing, participated in an open-air entertainment.

"The trade has grown to such an extent that we feel justified in building and owning our factory and grounds," said Mr. Beardsley. "In doing this we will be in a position to take excellent care of our customers, and with the bringing out of two new models, which we propose selling at low prices, we know we are going to need additional room to take care of the increased business that is in sight."

HITTING THE GASOLINE TRAILS

Bad Luck.

Heavy rains in Missouri and Kansas have made long-distance touring difficult. Dozens of parties were compelled to lay over on their schedule and some will have to curtail their trip to the Pacific Coast as the result. This information was brought during the week by H. K. Anderson of Urbana, O., who with three others arrived in an Oakland touring car.

"I'd like to be put on the mailing list for every railroad guide that describes the United States west of the Mississippi River," asserted L. M. Van Zant, an attache of the Ralph C. Hamlin establishment. "It would be a help in patriotism. When I return to Pittsburgh I'm going to outline a special course of instruction for my two sons, and the geography of the western half of our country will be the chief topic."

Mr. Van Zant had driven a Franklin touring car across the continent. He had seen for the first time the scenic beauties of the western wonderland. He declared it is possible in no other way to become acquainted with one's country. Mr. Van Zant's sons have been to Europe twice, but never west of Columbus, O. He said it is his one regret that they were not with him on this year's trip in the Franklin, but promises next year to bring them with him to the Coast.

Also.

J. E. Peck and family of Calexico are touring the Pacific Coast in a Dodge. E. E. Pruess of Globe, Ariz., is making a trip up and down the Coast in a Dodge car. F. Q. Hazleton of Chicago is in Southern California with his family after a trip across the continent in a Dodge. Frank E. [illegible] and family of Plainsville, O., are also touring the Pacific Coast in a Dodge. A. J. Wotishek and family are traveling through the Yosemite and Tahoe regions in a Dodge. R. L. Stringfellow of Shreveport, La.; J. H. Hutchison of Ottumwa, Iowa; Ed Dickenson of Shreveport and W. A. McKennon of the same city arrived in Los Angeles with [illegible] all driving Hudson

Parties.

Long-distance automobile tours are appealing to the motor enthusiasts of this city. According to the reports brought back by the travelers, the roads of the State are in good condition, though it is often necessary to make detours because of State highway work.

Austin Park, the cashier of the [illegible] National Bank, and Mrs. Park have returned from a 2000-mile trip. They went to San Francisco, Lake Tahoe, Donner Lake, Reno and came back to California through the Feather River country. They say that the trip through the Feather River canyon is one of the most scenic and beautiful they have ever taken.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Ogden, Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Patty and Harry Risley Patty have returned from a 1500-mile tour of the State. They went into the Yosemite over the Wawona road, spent several days in the valley, and then went to San Francisco.

Big Bear.

Twenty days on the road sufficed for George Darby of Philadelphia to come from that city to San Francisco over the Lincoln highway in his big Packard "48." Dr. Darby, who was accompanied by his wife and two children, reported a splendid trip last week when he stopped at the headquarters of Earle C. Anthony, Inc. Unlike most of the tourists who have passed through this summer, Dr. Darby found very bad roads through Iowa and Nebraska, due to the terrific rains that have visited that section this season.

"Aside from these two States the Lincoln highway was in very good shape," declared Dr. Darby. "There were a number of days that we approached the 250 mile mark for the day's run without making any effort at speed. A broken leaf in a front spring was the extent of our trouble en route, aside from a few tire changes."

After a visit to the fair, Dr. Darby motored to Yosemite, thence down the valley and to San Diego. His stay in Los Angeles was long enough to permit him to take the trip over the Crest road to Big Bear Valley.

With Maxwells.

S. J. Cochrun, secretary and treasurer of the Oregon Apple Orchards Company of Portland, arrived in Los Angeles last Wednesday, having motored down from San Francisco in his Maxwell "25."

Mr. Cochrun started for the Yosemite country from San Francisco but only went as far as Knight's Ferry as he was informed by tourists that the roads were in such rough condition over that route that there was no pleasure in motoring through. Returning to Merced, he followed the State highway to Kingston, where a detour of thirty miles is necessary in order to get ten miles, on account of work being done on the highway. Mr. Cochrun reports the condition of the roads down through Visalia and Bakersfield as exceptionally good.

"My total expenses on the Maxwell "25" for the trip from San Francisco to Los Angeles via the roundabout route just outlined," said Mr. Cochrun, "were $3.45, all of which went for oil and gasoline. I did not have any tire trouble, not even a puncture; in fact, I only discovered this morning upon my arrival here that I did not carry a jack with me on the trip. I have always averaged 1000 miles to the gallon of oil and my gasoline average for this trip was better than twenty-seven miles to the gallon. I have driven the Maxwell over 4800 miles and have never found a hill that was really hard for the little car to climb."

Owned First Reo.

One of the original Reo boosters on the Pacific Coast stopped in at Earle C. Anthony, Inc., one day last week just to say hello. It was H. J. Blaesing of Portland, Or., the purchaser of the first one-cylinder Reo that was ever shipped to the Pacific Coast. Blaesing, accompanied by his family, had visited the two California expositions and was en route east for Portland in his 1915 Reo. With their numerous side trips the party had covered 2318 miles when they stopped at the Anthony headquarters, and their total "grief" to date had consisted of two tire changes.

"The motor from my one-cylinder Reo is still at work today," said Blaesing. "After I concluded that four cylinders were better than one for a motor car, I took the motor from the old car and put it to sawing wood, and it performs just as faithfully as it did the first day I owned it.

"We really have had a most delightful trip, and I do not see why more motor car owners do not take long trips. We have not had a moment's worry over our car, the roads have almost without exception been splendid, and we have grown acquainted with the Pacific Coast in a way that no other means could have approached."

R. G. Hollingsworth of Coleman, Tex., stopped for a few moments at Earle C. Anthony, Inc., one day last week. The motor visitors from the Lone Star State were circumnavigating the great Southwest on their journey to the fairs, having gone to San Francisco by way of Denver, the Midland Trail and the Lincoln highway, traveled the coast road down from San Francisco to San Diego and were homeward bound by way of the National Old Trails road. They carried a complete camping outfit in their Reo and had stopped wherever night overtook them on their journey.

With the Metz.

M. F. Green of this city, accompanied by his sister, Miss Cora Green, is driving his Metz speedster on a trip up and down the coast, visiting the expositions. Ben Harrison is on his way to San Francisco in a Metz. H. F. Garrett made the round trip to San Francisco last week from this city in a Metz car at a total cost of $5.25 for gasoline, oil and repairs. Lester Garsuch and wife are returning to Mason, O., in a Metz speedster.

HERE you see illustrated the new Paige Six "36."

Here you see the latest addition to a distinguished line of cars—a true Paige every inch of it—a car built to realize an ideal—a car that must not and cannot be judged from the standpoint of its astounding price alone.

When we say that this new Paige Six "36," has been built to realize an ideal we are speaking accurate, literal truth.

From the very beginning it has been the unfaltering purpose and policy of the Paige Company to build high class, dependable motor cars.

It has been the purpose and policy of the Paige Company to achieve a Standard of Quality and Value—not merely a standard of Price.

If you happen to know an owner of our larger, seven-passenger Six "46," you know precisely what we mean when we speak of Value and Quality.

All of the careful manufacturing, all of the painstaking attention to detail, all of the sturdy, reliable qualities which characterize the larger Six and have made it a pre-eminent Six of the year will be found in this newer and smaller five-passenger Paige Six "36."

The New Paige Six "36" Is Here

We realize that there are a vast number of people who do not require a large seven-passenger car.

But all of these people want a "Six," for they know that this is the day of the "Six" in quality cars.

Furthermore, they want a "roomy" car—a luxurious car—a "smart" car—an economical car.

In a word, there is an enormous demand for just such a car as the new Paige Six "36"

Glance at the illustration on this page and you will see that—from the radiator to tire carrier—this car is a five-passenger reproduction of the larger Six "46."

This body design has proved to be a sensation of the year No amount of money could buy more graceful lines or smarter appearance.

Inside the car you will find a great, big, comfortable tonneau and a broad driver's seat with upholstery of genuine leather which means ease and freedom from crowding for all of the five passengers.

Like the larger Six "46" you will find this car equipped with the world-famous Gray & Davis starting and lighting system.

Like the larger Six "46" you will find this car equipped with cantilever springs which insure easy, comfortable riding no matter what the road conditions may be—a velvety acting cork insert multiple disc clutch—forced feed lubrication system and the unequaled Rayfield carburetor.

When you raise the hood of this car, you will see an accessible, powerful six cylinder motor—3"x5"—which is a crowning achievement in motor construction.

We might attempt to tell you about the performance of this remarkable power plant, but we much prefer to have you ride in the car and establish the facts for yourself.

Then, you will realize what true six-cylinder Flexibility and Power really mean.

For the first time, perhaps, you will experience the indescribable sensation of riding in a car that is practically throttle controlled—a car that travels smoothly at a slow walking pace or the speed of the winds without change from high gear.

Low First Cost "Upkeep" Expense

Best of all, this is a car that any man can afford to drive. The Six "36" weighs but 2600 pounds and is equipped with oversize 4-inch tires. With this car you can enjoy true six-cylinder motor comfort without the penalty of excessive "upkeep" expense.

Space will not permit us to name even one-half the surprisingly good features embodied in the latest Paige.

But—accept our assurance—there is a tremendous surprise in store for you when you first inspect this car.

Then—and only then—you will appreciate what a truly great achievement it represents.

Then, we predict, your first query will be—"How is it possible to build such a car for $1095?"

MOTOR NERVE.

For a novice to take delivery on a new car and start away immediately on a 2000-mile trip indicates a self-confidence out of the ordinary.

C. C. Ronnow of Las Vegas, Nev., had sufficient nerve to undertake such a trip and demonstrated his ability to do it by purchasing a Dodge Bros. motor car from Harold L. Arnold, distributor for Southern California, for his vacation jaunt to the exposition at San Francisco.

Ronnow is chairman of the Board of Commissioners of Clark county, in Nevada, and reached his decision to own a Dodge Bros. car when he saw the "Death Valley Dodge" in Las Vegas, when it was making the return trip through Nevada the first week in June, after successfully negotiating the crossing of Death Valley at Stovepipe Wells. At that time Mr. Ronnow closely questioned O. K. Parker, who drove the "Death Valley Dodge" on its strenuous journey, and because of Mr. Ronnow's own knowledge of the extremely difficult route which the Dodge car had negotiated he decided that any car which could pull through the terrible sands of Death Valley and the steep mountain grades of the Panamint and Funeral ranges without mechanical trouble was the machine he wanted.

On the way to San Francisco Mr. Ronnow will drive into the Yosemite Valley, taking the side trip to the summit of Glacier Point, at an elevation of over 8000 feet; then, after visiting the exposition, will drive across the Sierra Nevadas and over the Truckee summit to Lake Tahoe, returning to his home in Las Vegas by way of Reno, Carson City, Goldfield and Rhyolite, the total distance of the trip being somewhat over 2000 miles, one-half of which will be mountain and desert driving.

Play in the all-comers' tournament for the national lawn tennis championship will begin at the courts of the Westside Tennis Club, Forest Hills, L. I., on Monday, August 30.

AMONG THE MAKERS AND DEALERS

McKittrick.

The growth of the auto and motor truck industry in this section of Kern county has been marked during the past few months, and indications point strongly to an even greater increase in the near future. Sales of machines in the cities in the West Side oil districts and surrounding communities have been frequent, evidencing the general desire for this more rapid method of transportation, from the standpoint of business or pleasure, easier financial conditions that permit the expenditures made, and determination to keep pace with the progress of the times. One of the more noticeable developments along these lines is the growing use of machines in the matter of stage lines, enabling patrons to reach their respective destinations with little delay and at a reasonable cost, as compared with long journeys by team and which necessitated much time and greater expense in many instances. The same conditions applied to the transportation of material for the petroleum fields, where extended distances were traversed, and the hauling of the products of the ranches to points from which they were to be shipped.

The use of the auto in the West Side fields has made it possible for business men and others to transact business at various points quickly and satisfactorily, in hours, where, under old conditions, days would be required. Material for oil companies is now conveyed with little delay, a fact of much importance from the viewpoint of the operator, whose interests are of more or less importance when considered from the point of time. Ranchers throughout this part of the valley, as is the case everywhere, find the employment of the truck of great value when rushing crops to market in order to reap the benefit of rising prices means substantial additions to the revenues derived from the farms.

With stage lines covering the fields reaching from Maricopa on the south to Lost Hills and Wasco on the north, transportation facilities for passengers constitute a notable departure from the old order of things, such as prevailed as late as two years ago. This is likewise true as regards the hauling of rig and other material in every portion of the Sunset, Midway, McKittrick, Belridge and Lost Hills oil districts. The business is now handled in quick time, although, necessarily, many teams are, and will always be, used to considerable advantage.

A most important feature, and one in which all classes are interested, is the increasing development of the good roads movement. The sentiment expressed by the public and fostered through the operations of the authorities in charge, has transformed, within a comparatively brief period, rough thoroughfares, filled with ruts and in wet weather often almost impassable, into smooth roads, easy of negotiation and saving both time and expense to the traveler. It is now possible to cover long distances in and near the oil fields, from Bakersfield to the coast, and many other points in both Kern and San Luis Obispo counties, in easy and comfortable journeys, thanks to the interest and the energy displayed in the efforts to provide good roads wherever possible.

This summer has witnessed the passing through McKittrick of more auto parties, en route from Fresno, Bakersfield, Taft, Shale, Fellows, Belridge, Lost Hills, Wasco and other places, to Pismo Beach, Morro, Santa Margarita and neighboring resorts on the Pacific coast than ever before, the state of the roads between these points and the ocean, the pleasures of the trip, and the delights of a stay in this much favored region, making the trip across the Coast Range, the Carisa Plains and the dash over the splendid State highway connecting these resorts, constituting an outing that will long linger in memory.

Taft.

Lierly and Son, having secured the local agency for the Maxwell, have begun a vigorous campaign with the coming of the latest designed car. Among the purchasers last week was Charles del Bondio, City Attorney of Taft.

While at Los Angeles last week Clint Campbell of Taft purchased a new, latest Overland and drove it to Taft. The Taft Garage, which is the agent for the Overland, is giving a demonstration of the Silent Knight engine and is attracting much attention from auto drivers and owners.

No less than fifty Ford owners from Taft are in Los Angeles today. They made the journey for the purpose of listening to the big Ford Band.

A new feature has been inducted into the automobile service between Taft and Bakersfield, which will, no doubt, cut into the railroad service greater than heretofore. The new invasion is placing in the service a nineteen-passenger car, which makes the run of forty miles on an average time of forty-five minutes, and has cut the price from $2 one way to $1, $1.50 for the round trip. The new nineteen-passenger car will carry trunks and other heavy baggage, which the smaller ones cannot, thereby naturally increasing their volume of business. On account of the opposition which began a year ago and which obtained much of the railroad traffic and still continues to do so because of the easier and speedier mode of travel, the railroad company was compelled to take off one of its passenger trains, leaving Taft but one train daily, while the autos have been making a morning and evening trip.

Glendale.

The Brand Boulevard Garage, which was recently sold by its former owner, Mr. Van Ness, to R. A. Siple, has placed R. Lossing in charge of all sales for the Studebaker car, for which it has the Glendale agency. Another important change in the business of this agency will occur when L. H. Morehouse, formerly conducting the Cypress Park Garage on San Fernando boulevard, will become an active partner with Mr. Siple. AUTO HISTORY IS PUBLISHED.

The Master Carburetor Company of Detroit and Los Angeles has published a booklet, which has been pronounced by garage men of Southern California as one of the most handy ever issued. It gives a complete list of motor cars built in the United States, and several of the more popular foreign cars, together with the horse-power rating, bore and stroke, number of cylinders, model number, date of manufacture, factory rating, sizes of carburetors, flanges and fittings.

The booklet goes back as far as 1907 and 1908 with some of the older cars and includes practically every car built in the United States in the last five years.

With the aid of this booklet, the garageman can instantly obtain information regarding the horse power, bore and stroke, piston sizes, sizes of fittings, and necessary instructions for installing the Master carburetors. The booklet is sent on request by the Master company, either from the factory or the Los Angeles offices

STOVE SALESMAN HAS DISPLAY CABINET ON AUTO.

At Half Cost of Railroad Fare Michigan Man Travels Thousands of Miles Doing More Business than He Could Have Done on Trains. On Fifth Transcontinental Trip.

William H. Noland, representing the A. B. Stove Company of Battle Creek, Mich., drove into the local Winton factory branch Thursday with his 1909 Winton six roadster, on which he has a cabinet built and in which he carries one of the stoves for demonstrating purposes. He gave Harry L. Sweeney, manager of the local Winton branch, a synopsis of the 108,000 miles that he has driven this car since he purchased it new in 1909.

"I have been representing the stove company for a good many years, and in 1909 I realized the possibilities of the motor car and decided to purchase one so that it would be possible for me to reach all of the small dealers throughout the country, as well as taking care of the trade in large cities. I therefore took off the deck on the roadster and built a cabinet in which I put a stove for demonstrating purposes.

"To date, I have run my car approximately 108,000 miles, have made four transcontinental trips, also visited every large city and State in this country. The cost to me running the Winton six all over the country transacting my business has been not quite half the amount that I would have paid the railroad companies for transportation.

"Practically all of my expense has been for gasoline, oil and tires, as during the six years' service I have had so little repair expense that it is hardly worth while mentioning. It has been instrumental in securing for me more business than I could have possibly secured if I depended upon railroads and other means of transportation to get me around seeing my customers.

"I am starting out today to take in Riverside, San Bernardino, and then go through to San Diego, and will be in Lower California for the next few weeks, after which I will start north again, working my way through the north and then toward the east, starting on my fifth transcontinental trip."

STORM STOPS MOTOR TOUR.

LOST CAR AT GALVESTON, THEN BUYS NEW MACHINE IN LOS ANGELES.

Early reports of the hurricane that devastated a part of Galveston and entirely obliterated a number of small Texas towns in the vicinity were overdrawn but no more than was to be expected. The city authorities arose to the emergency in splendid style and the work of reclamation was under way when he left there a few days ago, reports G. R. Thurston, of Cincinnati, O., who arrived in Los Angeles Wednesday, accompanied by his wife and two children.

The Thurstons were en route to the Pacific Coast in their Enger touring car. They were touring by the southern route and business interests of Mr. Thurston at Houston had taken them to that city. As a sidetrip, they continued on to Galveston and were located in one of the hotels when the hurricane began its work of destruction.

While here, Mr. Thurston purchased a new Enger car from the Irving Motor Car Company and resumed the interrupted tour as they had come to Los Angeles by train. The Enger they had driven from Cincinnati was destroyed in a fire that consumed the garage in which it was stored at the time of the storm. The insurance company settled promptly and the check he received in settlement was applied on the purchase of a new one.

Automobile touring in all but Northern Texas will be fraught with many difficulties, Mr. Thurston reported, until the populace has had time and opportunity to repair the roads. The storm that raged inland after striking Galveston and the other coast cities was accompanied by a downpour that resulted in flood conditions. Nearly all roads and bridges were washed out. In continuing to Los Angeles by train, travel was very slow and the railroad had watchmen and track walkers on duty day and night to safeguard the right of way.

"The Texans are a courageous lot," said Mr. Thurston, "and they are going right into the work of clearing up after the storm. The business men are showing a fine spirit. Money is being advanced to those whose property was destroyed. There will not be the exodus from the city that followed the hurricane of several years ago."

RAPID GROWTH.

The steady increase in the demand for their product has outgrown the capacity of the Ensign carburetor factory and the concern will soon move to larger quarters on West Pico street. While in business less than two years, the success of the Ensign carburetor has become almost world

THE USED TRUCK PROBLEM.

BY WATT L. MORELAND,
Manager Moreland Motor Truck Company.

THE most serious problem that confronts both the motor truck manufacturer and the user today is the disposition of the used truck. This important branch of the industry has been handled in a most unscrupulous manner. Measures have been resorted to that have served to disgust many large concerns with the motor truck as a means of transportation.

Let us start from the beginning and take, for example, the man or concern that invests approximately $3000 in what he is led to believe is a high-grade motor truck. Let us then concede that this truck renders efficient service for a period of twelve months. Does experience lead us to believe that at this time the truck is given a complete overhauling and again placed in service practically as good as new?

To the contrary this is seldom the case. Invariably some inexperienced and overenthusiastic salesman calls on the owner and tries to persuade him to trade the truck in on a new one. This is a great mistake and its practice has wrought havoc with the entire industry.

STRONG ARM.

The salesman often resorts to drastic measures in his efforts to convince the owner that his truck can no longer be made to render efficient service. He puts up a one-sided argument and in a majority of instances secures the order, thereby causing the owner to suffer an absolutely unnecessary heavy depreciation loss.

There are many angles to this method of selling trucks, and they should be given deliberate and serious consideration by all truck owners. In the first place, in order to handle a trade proposition the price of the new truck must be greatly inflated. In order to sell the old truck it must be repaired and equipped with new tires; this is all taken into consideration by the salesman before he makes the deal, and indirectly the owner of the old truck has to pay.

There is only one reasonable solution to this problem, and it is a simple one. The high-grade motor truck of today is not a twelve months' proposition. Annually overhauled and properly operated, it can be run efficiently for a period of from five to eight years. This policy must be adopted to make the motor truck a paying investment. The high-grade motor truck of today is a standardized piece of machinery, parts are interchangeable, and always obtainable at the factory. These parts can be purchased at a nominal cost and the old truck can easily be kept at the highest degree of efficiency.

GREAT MISTAKE.

If the truck buyer will stop to consider the fact that on his initial purchase the salesman instructed him to figure depreciation on a basis of 20 per cent. he will readily see that the builders estimated efficiency of the truck as five years, and this is certainly conservative.

Trading in the used truck is a great mistake; it is an expensive proposition for the owner.

In a great many instances I have been asked by prospective purchasers why the price of motor trucks did not reduce in accordance with that of the touring car. To this question I have but one answer: Abolish trading the used truck, keep your truck in repair, keep it in operation until the limit of its efficiency has been reached; then and then only will the price of motor trucks assume the right proportions.

Permanent business was never established by misleading a purchaser, and every time an old truck is taken in trade the owner must be misled.

ONE OF FIRST TO MOTOR INTO YELLOWSTONE HERE.

WITH THE opening of the Yelstone Park to motor vehicles the last barrier against automobiles in our great national playgrounds has been removed. When the gates were thrown open to autos twenty-five cars were in line at Gardiner awaiting the word which would admit them to "geyser land."

Second in line, led only by the official car, was Howard Wiley of Bozeman, Mont., in his King "Eight." With him were Mrs. Wiley and their two sons. The first stage included only a short jaunt of five miles to the Mammoth Hot Springs Hotel. The road winds through rugged Gardiner Canyon past Eagle Nest Rock with Electra Peak high in the park and Sepulcher Mountain in the near distance.

"Climbing constantly," said Mr. Wiley, "we passed Silver Gate and the Hoodoos at an altitude of 7000 feet, through Golden Gate and into a rugged canyon across a fine concrete viaduct.

"Fifteen and a half miles from the Hot Springs, we passed Roaring Mountain. Fifteen years ago, when I went through the park via wagon, this mountain was covered with timber, but two years later a small steam fissure appeared and has since spread over almost the entire mountainside.

"A brief stop was made at Norris Hotel in the Norris geyser basin, but we were soon under way again. Passing across Elk Park and Gibbon meadow, we drove to Fountain Hotel, the Mammoth Paint Pots, Fire Hole and on to the Upper Geyser Basin."

After a short stay in Southern California Mr. Wiley will return to Montana via Yosemite and Lake Tahoe. While here Mr. Wiley is the guest of Clarence English of the English Motor Car Company, Southern California distributor for the King "Eight."

NEW STUFF.

The striking feature of the 1916 line of closed models just announced by the Cole Motor Car Company is the luxurious Cole Eight Berline limousine, with its three disappearing auxiliary seats which, when in position, allow a comfortable seating capacity for six adults in the spacious rear compartment of the car. The back seat is roomy and deeply upholstered, and accommodates three persons easily. The three disappearing auxiliary seats face forward when raised. When folded down they rest in separate compartments completely hidden from view by broadcloth upholstering. The seats are arranged so that any or all of them may be placed in position at will.

ROLLERS ARE LATEST SOX.

Show Girls Show Big League Stockings Here.

Motor Through City Before the Rehearsal.

Los Angeles Gets First See on Fashion's Tip.

Fashion's newest fancy has been initiated into the automobile world through the agency of the latest model White four forty-five seven-passenger car aided and abetted by O. R. Fuller and five pretty girls of the "So Long Letty" company playing at the Morosco.

The girls, with their eyes on Dame Fashion, were the first group in Los Angeles to take up the style of stockings which are becoming the vogue—the short stockings, or rather socks, with the roll top, the roll coming where the top of an ordinary shoe comes, leaving the pretty shank from there up as Mother Nature at the time of Adam and Eve decreed what it should be.

Mr. Fuller, with an eye to the novel, was also quick to realize that the all-powerful automobile game must pay attention to Dame Fashion's fads and fancies. So it was soon fixed up with the "So Long Letty" girls to introduce the roll-top stocking to Los Angeles.

Just before rehearsal last Friday afternoon, Mr. Fuller drove up to the stage door of the Morosco with a White machine. The girls were ready, they having had their new socks mailed to them by special delivery from New York City.

First they went through the city streets, making numerous calls upon well-known personages who were delighted to greet the novel and beautiful sight which appeared before them.

So thus was Los Angeles, introduced to what Dame Fashion had just decreed the feminine world should garb its lower extremities with until such time as she shall see fit to do otherwise.

DIFFERENCE IN WATER COOLING.

There is a great deal of difference between the thermo-syphon and the centrifugal pump methods of cooling the water in an automobile engine, according to Froman Speers of the local Bekins-Speers Company, distributor for the Haynes light six.

In both systems the water in the water jackets takes up the heat from the engine cylinders. The hot water then passes into the radiator at the front of the car, where it is cooled and subsequently passes again to the water jackets of the engine. It there absorbs more of the heat from the cylinders and again returns to the radiator for cooling.

If this circulation is rapid and constant there will never be trouble from overheating of the motor. But if the circulation is sluggish and slow the water will not cool rapidly, which will result in an overheated motor and consequent motor troubles.

The thermo-syphon depends entirely upon the relative weights of hot and cold water for circulation. The cold water, being slightly heavier, will displace the hot water in the cylinder jackets, pushing it up into the top of the radiator. When it, in turn, has become heated by the engine, it will slowly pass up into the top of the system, being displaced by the cold water from the bottom of the radiator.

This natural circulation necessitates a radiator of very large capacity and also large water jackets and pipes, so that the rather uncertain flow of water will not be impeded by small water spaces. This means heavier construction of the parts and heavier weight of water to be carried.

When the motor is working hard and efficient cooling is absolutely necessary, the hot water does not move rapidly enough to cool the engine. This is because the more uniformly hot the water becomes, the slower the circulation, due to the smaller difference in weight.

When a pump is employed to facilitate the movement of the water, the entire cooling system may be made lighter because less water is needed, so that the pipes, radiator and jackets around the cylinders may be made smaller. The pump is driven by mechanical connection with the engine crankshaft, so that as the speed, and consequent heating, of the motor increases, the circulation of the water becomes more energetic and the cooling more efficient.

The Boston Braves received $2,708.86 each for defeating the Athletics in four straight games in the world's series baseball contests last fall.

SETTING PACE.

A carload a week is the pace that G. M. Flint, sales manager of the Moline Automobile Company, is setting, and the way he is disposing of these Knight-motored cars makes it look as if he might be able to keep it up, especially as he is now making deliveries on the new Moline Knight 40's. It was this model 40 Moline Knight that Mr. Ezra Hobgood and party of Boston drove overland in, and who has just recently arrived in Los Angeles after thirty-five days of as fine touring as he had ever experienced, saying that he had made the entire trip without making an adjustment of any kind to the car.

Seeing Southern California.

MOTORISTS ARRIVE FROM EAST IN GREAT NUMBERS.

INTO Southern California at a rate of approximately 300 motoring parties a week, over three transcontinental highways, the day of the long trek has dawned in America with the coming of 1915 motor travel.

Europe's long tours are being supplanted by the "seeing-America-first" movement, which has come unexpectedly and pointedly to the motor-car owner. With the necessity of "going somewhere," American touring parties are moving westward to California, and through the efforts of the Automobile Club of Southern California, the majority of them are "seeing Southern California first."

It is estimated by auto club officials that more motorists have ventured to the Pacific Coast over the three transcontinental highways since January 1, 1915, than have ever undertaken the trip before that date, and the season has only just begun.

While trains and steamers are delivering their heavy loads of passengers at Southern California's door, the transcontinental highway is also delivering thousands of touring parties. What is also significant, according to Secretary Standish L. Mitchell of the automobile club, these motoring visitors are seeing this part of the State in the most thorough manner possible.

Where they only originally planned to spend two or three days in Los Angeles, they are spending two weeks, and in this way Los Angeles has become the distributing hub for 1915 automobile travel. These visitors are coming in over the sign-posted National Old Trails Highway, over the Lincoln Highway and the Ocean-to-Ocean Highway.

Geographically speaking, they are coming directly to Southern California from the north, the east and the south—from the north over the sign-posted section of the Lincoln Highway, from the east over the National Old Trails, and from the south over the Ocean-to-Ocean. In its preparation for the unprecedented influx the Automobile Club of Southern California sign-posted both the N.O.T. and the southern extension of the Lincoln Highway.

A new factor in national transportation has thus come into being. According to advices received at the auto club, special tours are being arranged by eastern automobile clubs to bring added numbers of visitors to Southern California, and September and October are predicted as becoming the heaviest months of motor travel.

This is accounted for largely by the fact that the fear of a long journey over roads heretofore practically unknown is rapidly being eliminated as word passes east that California is now the motoring Mecca of the world.

With approximately 4800 motorists arriving each month, Southern California will have entertained more than 50,000 enthusiastic automobilists in 1915, according to auto club estimates. Each of these will tell eastern friends of the excellent roads on the west coast. All visiting motorists will receive maps and information on routes free of charge at the club headquarters or at any of the branch offices.

MOTOR TRUCKS FIGURE IN PHONE EFFICIENCY.

TO THE man who has lived in the East and suffered annoyances and delays in his telephone service, the speed and dispatch with which repairs are made and trouble found on Pacific Coast telephone work has proven a constant source of amazement.

According to experts who have made a careful study of conditions, we are much farther advanced on the Coast than in any other part of the country.

Transportation methods are the answer, according to A. E. Irish, division superintendent of construction for the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Company, stationed in Los Angeles. In the service of this company are sixteen Autocar trucks, used in light and heavy repair and construction work. In the Los Angeles division are five Autocars, an emergency cable wagon, used for handling cable repairs and transporting cable splicers; a car for hauling lumber and tools for subway construction; a car for men who install telephones; a car to handle freight shipments and the long line emergency truck.

With this equipment the Los Angeles offices are able to handle repair work in the shortest possible time, according to Mr. Irish. In the heavy construction work, where long stops are necessary and the actual hauling forms only a small part of the day's work, horses are sometimes used, but much of the heavy construction work is done by trucks, whose motors are called into play in hauling cables through conduits, lifting telephone poles into place and other strenuous labor.

GREER TOURING.

P. H. Greer of Greer-Robbins Company is spending two weeks touring Northern California. On the northern run he will follow the coast route in the Chalmers which he is driving and on the return will visit the Yosemite with his family.

TRACTORS MAKE GOOD BEFORE MANY FARMERS

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

OXNARD, Aug. 21.—The completion of the State highway through the county, and the million-dollar bond issue to be voted on this month for paved roads, which will probably carry by a large majority, have increased the interest in farm tractors, both for farm work and for hauling. Fifteen Bull tractors were sold during a two-day demonstration by M. J. O'Brien, special representative of the Bull Tractor Company. The demonstrations, held in the beet fields, were attended by about 500 ranchers. This tractor is a light machine, intended for doing ordinary six to ten-horse-team work, which is the number usually used on the ranches in this district; therefore its installation necessitates no change in loads.

Thomas Luke, general sales manager; Albert Tesch, secretary, and A. J. Stephens, Los Angeles branch manager of the Holt Manufacturing Company, spent some time this week with H. H. Eastwood, local agent for the Holt caterpillars. A seventy-five-horsepower caterpillar has just been sold to Gill Brothers, and a [illegible]-horsepower one to James A. TIRE SALES ARE BETTER.

One of the best indications that Southern California will have a prosperous season during the coming twelve months is found in the condition of trade in the farming and orange-growing districts, according to Manager Tom Wilkenson of the United States Rubber Company's Los Angeles branch.

Mr. Wilkenson has just returned from a visit to his Southern California distributors, and says the tone of business throughout the south is very optimistic. The tour occupied several days, for Mr. Wilkenson was intent on making a close study of present conditions in the tire market, in preparation for planning his winter campaign.

Practically every business man he talked with during the trip was of the opinion that the coming year would be one of the best the south has ever known.

Tire sales for the last six months are far ahead of last year's in every distributing point of the south. Particularly is this true with nonskid types.

Several arguments are advanced in their favor. Many buy them because of the added mileage they give. Under the United States process of construction, the nonskid feature is added to the regular tire, giving an additional layer of rubber to take road wear. Others prefer the nonskid types the year around, because they offer protection against wet and slippery pavements at all times. For city driving, where one often finds a freshly-sprinkled pavement, they prove a big factor in safe driving.

At the Exposition.

GREAT DAY GOES DOWN IN MOTOR CAR HISTORY.

THE first special day ever set aside for a certain make of motor car was celebrated a week ago at the Panama-Pacific International Exposition.

Cadillac day has won a place in motor car history. Never in the history of the automobile industry has a new model been so graciously received; never have so many thousands of people given up an entire day to honor a motor car.

Seven thousand persons gathered in the Court of Abundance, the most beautiful court of the exposition, to witness the unveiling of the 1916 eight-cylinder Cadillac. Side attractions had been provided, but they were not needed. The people came with one intention: of doing honor to the Cadillac.

More than 300 Cadillac owners came from as far as 500 miles to join the celebration. The most elaborate decorations marked the day. Never has San Francisco seen such a gay turnout of motor cars. They came in such numbers that they practically overwhelmed the Committee on Arrangements. A large force of police turned out to assist forming the parade, but with every street for blocks around the ferry blocked with Cadillacs the task was almost impossible.

The Court of Abundance at the exposition proved far too small to accommodate the thousands who wanted to witness the ceremony. Thousands stood up during the unveiling.

More Cadillac cars took part in the parade than have ever been gathered at one time in the West. The longest tour was from Los Angeles, but cars from as far away as Honolulu, Denver, Milwaukee, Yuma and Phoenix were in line.

Sixty cars crossed the bay from Oakland and large delegations came from Fresno, Sacramento, San Jose and Stockton. Don Lee was highly elated with the wonderful turnout, and has asked the newspapers to thank the many Cadillac owners who assisted in making Cadillac day such an overwhelming success.

growers of roses, chrysanthe- dahlias and other flowers are their preparations to exhibit choicest Southland blooms. Cups be offered in various classes for kind of flower. There will be cups for roses, dahlias chrysanthemums and special cups for single blooms, exhibits of single varieties and novelties.

In addition to flowers comparatively well known there will be many new, unique and beautiful varieties. Roses not now known to the public and introducing new and beautiful colorings, will be shown. Water lilies of vivid and splendid hues will be artistically displayed. Some of them come from the tropic regions of Africa, India and South America.

Adding to the effectiveness of the flower show proper, which will occupy the entire third floor, will be novel and beautiful floral decorations throughout the building, especially on the stairway landings and in connection with the exhibits of automobiles and accessories.

A stringed orchestra and bands of troubadours in costume will provide the musical features. The show will open Saturday, October 22 and close the following Saturday night, October 30. Because of the many attractions, the interest which is being taken by out-of-town people and the convenient location, it is believed the attendance will be far in excess of any such show ever held in the West. Manager J. S. Conwell says that while the attendance will be enormous he believes there will be no uncomfortable crush as the building is large and special arrangements will be made to take care of the people.

STANFORD DOESN'T FEAR ANY LACK OF COMPETITION.

As the St. Mary's teams have never figured in the Cardinal schedules, the change brings only a passing remark here.

On the Stanford schedule appear such names as Santa Clara, the Olympic Club, the Barbarian Club, the Titans, and the Palo Alto Athletic Club. The big game of the season will be played with Santa Clara on a San Francisco field. Ybarrando will teach the Missionites their tricks this year. The Olympics will for the first time send out both a first and a second team.

The Palo Alto Athletic Club is a new aggregation of Ruggers, which will probably rival in strength the Olympics. It is to be composed of former Stanford and Palo Alto High School players. On its lists appear such names as Cy Davidson, Jimmy Thoburn, Risling and Huttman.

The Titans are a team of ex-California Rugby players and old Berkeley High men.

A post-season game with the Los Angeles Athletic Club is now in process of arrangement.

The Stanford varsity schedule follows:

TIPS TO DEER HUNTERS.

IN DISTRICT NO. 4," this season promises to be a fair year for deer. What may be regarded as a disappointment by many hunters is the closing of the shooting on spiked bucks. Parties deer hunting during the season of 1915-16 should be particularly careful that they are shooting at bucks that have two or more points. The California game laws are as liberal as the most exacting could ask for, however, as two bucks are allowed each hunter during the season.

The new feature of the deer hunting season of 1915 is the closing of sections in the San Gabriel and San Bernardino mountains, known as Districts Nos. 28 and 29. Also the Cleveland Forest Reserve, known as District No. 24, located in the mountains near Lake Elsinore. These districts are closed to all protected game, though predatory animals can be hunted with written permission from the Fish and Game Commissioner.

If you wish to build fires in the Angeles Forest Reserve, first secure a permit from the Forestry Service in the Federal Building, Los Angeles, or from any forest ranger in the mountains.

The Santa Monica Mountains will accommodate the majority of deer hunters from Los Angeles county. Though many will go to Acton, located near the Mojave desert. From this point hunters start for Mt. Gleason, where shooting is permitted on the north side, as the other side is in the game refuge. Southeast of Los Angeles, in the neighborhood of the San Jacinto Mountains, is a favored spot with deer hunters.

As usual, the weapon carried will be a high-velocity, small bore rifle. This is now the favorite rifle with Southern California hunters, as one can fire rapidly with these guns at any range without adjustment of sights.

Do not forget your hunting license! You will be greatly inconvenienced if caught without one.

Experience has taught the seasoned hunter what is necessary to take on a hunting trip, but a few suggestions may be welcome to the man going out after his first deer. Go as light as possible; this applies to clothing as well as equipment. Nothing is as serviceable and light as scout cloth. It will withstand buckthorns and heavy brush.

"Safety First" should be uppermost in the mind of the man starting on a deer hunt. Red flannel shirts and red-topped hats are now the most important feature of the up-to-date hunter's clothing. Don't forget to take an Anti-Venom outfit. This is the time of year when snakes are plentiful and dangerous.

A canteen is one of the most necessary articles of your equipment.

Following the custom established by the Cline-Cline Co., a fine rifle will be given for the first deer killed the opening day of the season and brought to their store at 214 West Third street. Last year a fine young buck was brought down by R. A. Marhofer, driver of the Mt. Wilson stage. He was quickly followed by three other hunters, each bearing what they believed to be the prize winning deer.

LONG BEACH TEAM REGISTERS KICK.

THEY DEFEATED VENICE ONCE AND THEY CAN DO IT AGAIN.

The Long Beach water polo team is terribly excited by the report that the Venice-Long Beach game was a tie. This, they declare, is not the case. They beat Venice, 2 to 1. And they are quite willing to beat Venice a hundred times more if anybody questions the decision.

The last conflict was reported a tie, due to a misunderstanding near the end of the game. There was some kind of a squabble towards the close of the conflict and matters became somewhat twisted.

"Now then," says Louis Rueb, captain of the Long Beach squad, "if Venice feels like playing another game with Long Beach, we would be glad to meet them in eight-minute halves, two suits to be worn at one time, no change of suits allowed during the game, and no more than seven men to be used during the battle. We will play them or any other team at any time at any place."

This sounds fair enough.

LOST AUTO.

After scrimping for seven years, putting away a dollar at a time, until $400 had been accumulated, the object of the hoard being to accumulate enough to purchase a motor car, Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Fletcher of Elgin, Ill., lost it within a few hours after closing a deal to buy the car. Afraid to trust banks, the money was hidden in a mattress. During the absence of the couple while selecting the car, the mattress caught fire and was consumed. The police think that thieves learned of the hoard and, after securing it, set fire to the mattress to cover their trail. Not a trace of the money, which was in $10 and $30 bills, could be found.

Motor Reserve Men.

As an adjunct to the National Guard of this country a motor reserve corps should prove of the greatest value. The spirit that moves those behind the plan to provide their own automobiles is commendable in the extreme, and properly directed that innovation not only should arouse increased interest in National Guard affairs in this State, but, if carried out to its logical conclusion, should become a valuable feature of National Guard work.

"The value of a reserve motor corps will depend to a considerable extent on the highway facilities over which said corps has to operate, and, of course, the fine roads of Europe have gone far toward contributing to the efficiency that the motor has shown in the present war there. For the most part, the roads in this State are such that motors can be operated to advantage, and the operation of this corps should prove an interesting feature of the next maneuvers of the Guard.

"While I have no fear that this country will become involved in war, in my opinion nothing that will add to the efficiency of the military of the country should be overlooked, and, as I have said before, there is no questioning the value of the automobile in warfare. News of the intention to organize in Southern California this automobile corps comes to me as a pleasant surprise, and I shall watch with great interest the development of the plan and the progress of the maneuvers in which this corps takes part. It is unnecessary to elaborate on the vital part such a corps should take in military movements, either simply as practice maneuvers or in actual warfare; this has been proved, and the thing in connection with the movement in this State is that interest that is caused by an innovation in its military arrangements and a desire to see such movement prove its ability to come up to the rigid requirements consequent upon actual warfare."

"We are very glad to hear of anything that shows an increase of interest in the national defense," said Albert S. Jones, secretary of the National Rifle Association, when he was told of the organization of the automobile reserve corps of Los Angeles.

"We want to see people taking more interest in rifle shooting, and the present war has demonstrated how valuable motor cars can be in military operations. Perhaps they should be armored, but there are many ways in which the members of such an organization could be exceedingly useful.

"The government allows one rifle to each five men and 125 rounds of ammunition to each man of a national rifle club. I shall be glad to learn further details about the Los Angeles reserve automobile rifle corps and I hope that its example may be followed elsewhere."

LONG RUN.

Much interest is being shown in the plan of the Texas State Automobile Association, which is promoting the Texas-to-the-sea reliability run that is to end at Galveston during the seventh annual cotton carnival and exposition July 22 to August 1. As features of the event there probably will be a contest between the various motor clubs of the State and a contest between individual machines on points of merit. A large number of dealers have made requests for space for exhibits at the exposition hall during carnival week.

DIVIDEND PAID.

Following the increase in capitalization from $250,000 to $1,000,000, directors of the Paige-Detroit Motor Car Company authorized the distribution of $250,000 par value of the new stock pro rata among the company's stockholders in the form of a 100 per cent. stock dividend. They also ordered the transfer of $250,000 from surplus account to capital stock as part of the operation. The remaining $500,000 of new stock, it was decided, is to be retained for the present in the treasury of the company.

Seals Defeat Tigers.

men on bases scored, thanks to some great pegging by Spencer.

The Ceals broke through for their first run in the third, when Jones doubled, took third on a sacrifice and was sqeezed across by Fitzgerald. onJes was fairly looney with the bat, getting a single, a double and a triple, and scoring three runs. Fitzgerald also was a great power for evil. He swiped three bases. In fact, there were a total of five steals against Spencer. As a rule, Tub does not allow much more than an average of one steal a week. Therefore, it is suspected that the runners were not being held close to their bases.

FREQUENT HITS.

San Francisco tore off two in the fifth on singles by oJnes and Fitzgerald, a brace of steals and errors by Purtell and Spencer.

Jones tripled in the seventh and came in on a wild pitch. In the second half of the seventh, the Tigers began to sit up and take notice for the first time. Baum had allowed but one hit, a scratch by Doane in the fourth. It was in the seventh, while fanning Tub, that C. Honkus tore his rib loose from its fastenings. In the seventh, Doane, Wilhoit and Risberg took advantage of his frail condition to tap him for infield singles, scoring a run.

Johnson walked three in the eighth, and his condition became so acute that he was taken out. Decanniere took hold with the bases full and two gone. Jones was retired without anv one scoring.

Chach worked the ninth-inning shift, when singles by Fitzgerald and Schaller, and Bodie's sacrifice fly yielded one run.

TO THE HESCUE.

Hook 'em Smith, the relief expedition, got through the eighth all right, but came near fermenting in the ninth. The first three up, Bayless, Wilhoit and Purtell, bunched singles, filling the bases. Risberg then pelted the pill into a fast double play, Corhan to Downs to Meloan, Bayless scoring. Risberg appeared to have the play beaten at first, and many of the gentlemen present bellowed their disapproval. Berger popped to Corhan, and it was all over but the next eleven eleven innings.

SECOND GAME.

Cack Henley and Pug Cavet, who had started unsuccessfully earlier in the week, appeared on the pitching horizon at the witching hour of 3:50 p.m. The bricklayer collapsed in the fifth, after he had been peppered for nine hits and three runs. Decanniere, who is always ready to pitch any part or fragment of a game, went in and turned the enemy back with two on and none out. He unfurled shutout ball until the seventh, when taken away for a pinch-hitter.

CENTER CAVET

Cavet got along all right until the seventh, not falling down or otherwise losing his balance. In this round, Purtell and Risberg singled with two down, and Mitze doubled off a leg belonging to Bobby Jones. This scored one, and put the Swede on third. Doc sent Mitchell up to bat for Decanniere, but changed his mind when Wolverton crooked his finger at Cavet and sent Smith in. Doc then sent Bayless up to bat for Mitchell, and Dick was purposely passed. Rader fouled to Sepulveda, crabbing the rally.

Smith was sent to cover in the ninth. Purtell singled, and scored on Risberg's double. Fanning then went in to see what he could do. Berger sacrificed Risberg to third, and he came in with the tieing run when Mitze knocked a long fly to Schaller. The crowd went wild, something which it had been wanting to do for almost four hours. Chech walked, and Rader flied to Bodie, leaving the score on a dead center.

GREAT STUFF.

Chech went alone fine, fanning batters right and left. Berger's muff of a hard fly by Downs in the tenth put him in danger, but he got out by his own unaided efforts. Leard, running for Downs, swiped second. Corhan fanned. Meloan drove to Chech. Charley whirled, and running over tagged Leard out on the line between second and third. He then whipped to Risberg, doubling Meloan, who had taken a big lead off first.

BIG SMASH.

The big bust came in the eleventh. Jones reached first on a ground ball toward right that Purtell could only knock down. A Texas Leaguer by Sepulveda dropped safe back of third. Fanning fouled to Mitze. Fitzgerald flied to right, Jones taking third after the catch. Schaller, peering through the gloaming, ferretted out a mud ball and slammed it to center for a single, scoring Jones with what proved to be the deciding ace. The famous Ping Bodie fanned. The Tigers were one-two-threed in the dark and gloomy last half.

SALT LAKE IS BEATEN IN SECOND INNING—THE SCORE WAS 8-1.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 28.—So far as the result was concerned, Oakland's 8 to 1 victory over Salt Lake today was accomplished in the second inning when five bingles sent three runs across the plate. Gregory was paroled by Manager Blankenship. Peterson, who succeeded him, allowing but three hits and as many runs. Salt Lake made its lone tally when two hits were grouped in the fifth inning. The series now stands three to two in favor of the Bees: Score:

GARTZMANN, TOO.

Manager Reeve Gartzmann, of the motor vehicle department of Hawley, King & Co., is at Pontiac, Mich., in an effort to induce the Oakland Motor Car Company to increase the shipment of Oakland cars to Los Angeles. The local demand has so far exceeded the supply of cars that Mr. Gartzmann decided it was expedient that he visit the factory and try to stir things up. He also will visit the National Motor Vehicle Company's plant at Indianapolis while in the East.

GREAT BATTLE AT PORTLAND

Prettiest Game of Baseball Ever Staged.

Angels Give Exhibition of Errorless Ball.

Double-header Scheduled for Tomorrow.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

PORTLAND, Aug. 28.—One of the prettiest baseball games ever played at Recreation Park went to Los Angeles today, 3 to 2.

The Angels put up a beautiful game, giving Portland fans a touch of errorless ball. The visitors secured nine hits off two Beaver pitchers, and the home team could get only six hits off as many Angel twirlers. One could not have asked for better ball, though it was played with the mercury in the nineties.

TWO GAMES.

Tomorrow there will be a double-header. The first game will start at 1:30 p.m. and will be followed by the second. McCredie says that he will take all of his players South with him tomorrow night. He has hopes of the team keeping up their winning pace in the league race and winning while on the road. But to get back to the game.

MUD BALLS.

"Mud balls" were again much in evidence. Jack Ryan, who had been pet so rudely jostled about the lot Tuesday last, reappeared on the hill for the visitors and once again started out in grand fashion only to have to give way later in the contest. He came near duplicating his feat of Tuesday, as far as hits were concerned, by starting out and holding the Beavers down to no bingles in the first three frames.

Gus Fisher was again injected into the lineup in the seventh, but failed to get a homer this time. Instead he put over a single that was good for two runs.

SPREADING.

That the disease of the "mud ball" is fast spreading was in evidence. "Rube" Evans, who started the twirling for the Beavers, was using it. "Rube" was not as handy with it as was Ryan, however. The groundkeeper complained to McCredie that unless the "mudder" went out of fashion it would keep him busy carting back part of the pitchers' box from behind the plate after each contest.

CARRIES HIS.

Jack Ryan carried his dust, which he sprinkles on the balls, in his hip pocket, but every time "Rube" used the new delivery he scooped up a handful out of the pitcher's box to the great agony of Ed, the diamond manicurist.

Four singles in a row in the seventh frame gave the Beavers their two tallies.

BAD INNING.

Here's the inning: Lober, first up, whiffed; Bates, Stumpf, Carisch singled; Fisher, batting for Gooch, singled. Fisher's hit drove in Bates and Stumpf. Derrick followed Fisher with two out and for a minute or two it looked like the seventh again would be the deciding inning of the game in favor of the locals. No such luck, however. Derrick flied out, and Davis fanned.

This inning saw the exit of Ryan and his "mudder" in favor of "Red" Love and his whizzers. The lanky one held the Beavers to one hit in the last two innings.

BONERS.

Two boneheads on the part of Lober and Derrick helped the Angels to two of their tallies in the sixth frame. The first misplay was pulled by Derrick when Buemiller dropped a slow grounder between first and the pitcher's box, nearer the line than the box. Derrick grabbed the ball and hurled it to third without touching Buemiller who would have been an easy out, in an effort to catch Maggert off the sack. Maggert was placed on his own single, stole second and was sacrificed to third. He scored a few minutes later on an infield out. The next tally came over when Davis hurled wild to the plate in returning Ellis's single from center to catch Buemiller at the platter. The ball was too far away from the plate for Carisch to get his man.

The first tally was rung up for the visitors in the first inning. Hard Maggert, the first man up, hit the first ball Evans pitched, which was a "mudder," by the way, for two bases, took third on a bad peg to second by Derrick trying to catch him napping and romped across the pan on a fly by Buemiller.

The game was a good one from a general standpoint, although rather slow on account of the time taken by Ryan and Evans in lubricating the spheres with mud. The score:

BILL JAMES TO JOIN BRAVES.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

OROVILLE (Cal.) Aug. 28.—"Bill" James, the pitcher from California who played so important a part last year in the fight of the Boston National League baseball club for the championship, will leave here tomorrow to rejoin the Braves.

James has been troubled with a sore arm all season and several weeks ago was suspended at his own request, without pay, to give him an opportunity to rest and get his arm into shape again. He has been spending the time at his home here and says he believes he is now in condition to give the Braves efficient help in their fight for the pennant.

BROOKLYN (N. Y.) Aug. 28.—Brooklyn beat Pittsburgh twice today and moved closer to Philadelphia in the race for the National League pennant. Both games were pitchers' battles and in both the Brooklyn box men figured prominently with the bat.

Rucker made two hits off Harmon in the first game, which the Superbas won by 2 to 1 in a ninth-inning finish. With the score tied in the last half of the ninth Harmon walked Stengel, who came home when Hinchman let Wheat's single roll to the right-field wall.

One of Pfeffer's two hits helped his team-mates win the second, 3 to 0. With the count 1 to 0 in the eighth Mamaux went into the box. Two hits, a pass and a sacrifice put Pittsburgh out of the running. The scores:

RALPH DE PALMA WINS RECREATION PARK RACE.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

KALAMAZOO (Mich.) Aug. 28.—Driving the entire distance without a mishap, Ralph de Palma, in a Stutz, this afternoon won the 100-mile race at Recreation Park track in 93:31 2-5 before the largest crowd that ever witnessed a race in this city. Bob Burman, in a Peugeot, finished two laps behind the winner. He lost distance as a result of tire trouble. The two-mile lead gained by De Palma was maintained to the finish.

Kline, driving a Cornelian, went through the fence in the 45th lap but escaped injury. The accident happened on a turn when a tire blew up. This was the only accident of the day.

Chandler was third and Patrick finished fourth, Ball being in fifth place at the finish. Soon after De Palma and Burman had finished the race, it was necessary to end the event without letting all of the drivers go the 100 miles, because of the immense crowd which began running across the track. Over 15,000 people witnessed the race and the police were powerless to handle the crowd.

Secretary William P. Engleman announced that next year's race would be for 200 miles for a $5000 purse.

Great Stuff.

EDUARD FABRE WINS THE OLYMPIC CLUB MARATHON.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 28.—Eduard Fabre, the French Canadian entrant of the Richmond Athletic Club of Montreal, won the Olympic Club Marathon today over the full course of twenty-six miles and 385 yards and after he crossed the tape in the exposition stadium inquired what his dinner was to be.

Mike Honohan of the New York Athletic Club was second and Oliver Millard of the Olympic Club was third.

Fabre's time for the race was 2h. and 56m. and 41 4-5s. Honohan negotiated the course in 3h. 1m. and 22 2-5s., and Millard's time was 3h. 11m. and 36 3-5 s.

LAST MAN.

Manuel Cooper of the Chicago Hebrew Institute was the fourth man to the tape and the last of the fourteen starters to finish. His time was 3h. 17m. and 57 1-5s.

Fabre took the lead near the west portal of the Twin Peaks tunnel after the runners had made twenty miles and gradually drew away from his competitors. Previous to that he had been running easily with the five leaders. From the start in the exposition stadium to the nineteen-mile flag, Millard, Horne of Boston, Honohan, Nick Gianakopulos of New York led the other contestants and demonstrated they constituted the class of the race.

Millard, Horne and Honohan alternated in setting the pace.

Those who started in the race were:

ENTRIES.

Charles Pores and Nick Gianakopulos of the Millrose Athletic Club, New York City; Eduard Fabre, Richmond Athletic Club, Montreal; Clifton Horne, Dorchester Athletic Club, Boston; H. G. Dobler, Mystic Athletic Club, Chicago; Mike Honohan, New York Athletic Club; Pat Coyne, Holy Cross Lyceum, New York; O. J. Millard, Olympic Club, San Francisco; William O. Johnson (unattached,) San Francisco; Sidney Hatch, Illinois Athletic Club; A. Monteverde (unattached,) Carmel; William J. Heavind, Farallone City; F. S. McWilliams, Olympic Club; Manuel Cooper, Chicago Hebrew Institute.

A more difficult Marathon course could not have been chosen. It was over long hills and in dusty places and rocky roads.

THE START.

The runners circled the one-mile cinder path at the race track, then circled the exposition grounds and back to the track. Thence the course led over the Presidio grounds and through Golden Gate Park to the Great Highway. Down the Great Highway and Sloat boulevard and then back to Market and Van Ness avenue by way of the Corbett road to the Zone entrance of the exposition was the route of the Marathoners.

The finish was on the cinder path in the exposition track.

Fabre did not seem fatigued to any extent when he finished. His breathing was perfect and as he came down the final fifty yards he sprinted to show the assembled crowds that he still had plenty of endurance left.

THIRD VICTORY.

Fabre's victory marked his third Marathon winning within a short period. He jumped into fame as a long-distance runner when he won the Boston Marathon last month. Before that he won the Montreal race. Horne, who finished second in that race, dropped out today when he reached Van Ness avenue and Market street. Hatch, who took third place in the Boston event, quit at the end of the sixteenth mile today.

QALIFIES IN THE NATIONAL AMATEUR GOLF TOURNEY.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

DETROIT (Mich.) Aug. 28.—Seventy-three contestants, almost evenly divided between the East and West, survived today the preliminary qualification round of 18 holes medal play, first test of skill in the national amateur golf tournament. David Herron of Pittsburgh and D. E. Sawyer of Wheaton, Ill., each turned in low cards of 73. Sixty golfers had scores of 84 or better and the thirteen who tied with 85 also were permitted to enter the second preliminary round of medal play Monday.

The gallery split into four sections. "Chick" Evans, amateur champion; National Amateur Champion Francis Ouimet; Jerome Travers, national open title-holder, and James D. Standish, Jr., a local youth. Evans stopped his noted rivals with a score of 76. Travers took 79 strokes, Standish, 81, and Ouimet, 82.

The official programme called for 64 survivors to compete in the Monday round, but the tie enabled several clever players to compete for the right to enter match play, which begins Tuesday forenoon. Among those who qualified was R. E. Hunter, of Pasadena, Cal., with a total of 81.

FINE ANGLING FOR CHAUFFEUR.

HOOKS SHARK AND HAS A TERRIBLE TIME TRYING TO LAND IT.

Laguna Beach reports excellent fishing both from boats and shore. A terrific battle between a five-foot shark and a very startled chauffeur was the main source of excitement at the beach yesterday. This fishing chauffeur was peacably angling for surf fish down along the beach. Suddenly he felt a jerk that was so strong it nearly pulled him into the water. He began to pull in and soon discovered that it was something more than a fish on the end of the line.

A hundred willing assistants rushed to his aid and a great many more gathered to see the fight. There was altogether too much help.

The climax came when the shark broke the line and made the crowd scatter while he flopped back into the ocean.

TONY AJAX WILL DEFEND TITLE.

TWO CHAMPION WRESTLERS WILL STAGE SPEEDY AFFAIR.

Tony Ajax, the Pacific Coast wrestling champion will defend his title against Tony Ball of Chicago at the newly formed Knickerbocker Athletic Club on Wednesday evening, September 8, if the two wrestlers can agree to accept the terms offered by President and Matchmaker Eliason of the organization.

Some time ago Ball issued a defi to Ajax to meet him for the Coast championship before the club which offered the best inducements. Several clubs have been making bids for the card, but the Knickerbocker seems to have put up the most favorable proposition, and it is believed that Ajax and Ball will appear before its members and their friends.

Ball wrestles at 158 pounds. Francis X. Bushman with whom Ball came West as trainer has offered a side bet of $500 or $1000 on his man.

B. H. Dyas and his buck,

Which he shot in the Honey Bee Mountains in Kern county a couple of weeks ago. It weighed 118 pounds and was shot at 200 yards with a .280 Ross. The horns were in the velvet. The party consisted of Mr. and Mrs. B. H. Dyas and Mr. and Mrs. Bab Demens.

FIGHTING NEWSBOY LEAVES FOR NORTH.

WILL TAKE ON BEST SCRAPPER IN EXPOSITION REGION. MAY GO EAST.

Johnny Arrouzay, the fighting newsboy, will leave today for San Francisco, where he will take on the best 122-pounders in the north. Johnny received a telegram from Promoter Foley, paying his expenses for himself and trainer.

Arrouzay has signed to fight any four bantamweights which Foley may choose in the next two months. If Johnny makes good he says he is going to leave for the East, where ten-round bouts are permitted, and where there is a little kale in it. He says this fighting for love is all right for a fellow that ain't married, but you can't live on love.

Arrouzay is a boy that is well liked by all the fight fans and has a large following. He has whipped most all the good boys in his class in these parts and now he wants to go out after bigger game. With the proper management this boy ought to be a comer.

VENTURA, Aug. 28.—An exciting event occurred today at the races being pulled off at the County Fair here. In the mile-and-repeat derby for a purse of $250, Dazzle, a swift little horse owned by W. E. Kelley of Oxnard, fell dead after winning the first heat handsomely. Dazzle finished in good shape and was being led away to the paddock when he fell dead from a ruptured blood vessel.

The race was finished and was taken by Holcomb's Loma, Merry-go-Round second. There was a big crowd present at the races on this the last day of the County Fair. The first race was a free-for-all pace, three heats to win, for a purse of $500. The race was won by Vera Hal, San Jacinto second and Sunshine third; time, 2:17, 2:19, 2:13¾. The 2:20 trot for $250 purse was won by Petty McKinney, Zolock Zar second and Mattewan third; time, 2:17, 2:17¾, 2:17.

The racing concluded with a mule race ridden by owners for the Rice stake of $20. Jo Donlon won on Fly, and C. R. Arnold on Black Maud was second.

NEW SIX GIVEN SEVERE TESTS.

OFFERING CONSIDERED GREAT IMPROVEMENT OVER CARS OF LAST YEAR.

The new Overland six, which arrived at the local salesrooms of the J. W. Leavitt Company last week, has been given a severe tryout. No matter what the test, the new six performed in wonderful fashion.

The motor is more flexible than that of last seson. The new six is a roomy, seven-pasenger car. Its riding qualities are remarkable, and there is plenty of room in the tonneau for five persons.

The body lines are in keeping with the most modern streamline practice. The car is finished in Overland blue, with gray running gear. Concealed door hinges assist in preserving the streamline contour of the body and make a most handsome appearing tonneau. The upholstering is in the best grade of hand-buffed leather.

The motor is of forty-five horse power, normal capacity, and is a highly-developed single block design, the upper half of the crank case, which carries the crankshaft, being cast integrally with the cylinders, while the head is detachable. The cylinder dimensions are 3½x5 1-4 inches, affording a piston displacement of 303 cubic inches. The stroke-bore ratio of 1.5 easily puts the design in the long-stroke class, as commonly viewed by American designers.

The lubricating system is a constant-level splash arrangement, in which oil is forced to the main bearings under pressure. A gauge installed on the cowl affords indication of the circulation. Ignition is by straight high-tension magneto, and is entirely independent of the other electrical equipment of the car. Obviously no batteries are required. The units of the lighting and starting equipment are mounted on opposite sides of the engine.

LONG RUN IN SHORT TIME.

W. J. Burt, Auburn distributor, made a run over the San Bernardino Mountain "Crest Route" last Sunday in one of the new Auburn 6-47 models. He left this city at 7 a.m. and, after having lunch at Pine Knot Lodge, was back in Los Angeles, eating his dinner at 8:45 o'clock that evening.

CLOVER LEAF POPULAR CAR.

One of the newest styles in bodies is the three-passenger "Club" or "Clover Leaf" roadster. This design has been placed on the market by several makers and presents a very attractive proposition to the man who wants a roadster, but is not fully satisfied with the seating capacity of only two. The "Club" type of three-passenger roadster has the seating arrangement as the name suggests, and divided front seats makes access for the third passenger very easy, and since all the seats are covered by the top the three people are comfortably placed and close together.

The question arises as to who should buy such a type of body, and it is interesting to note that physicians feel that this is a car which will especially meet their needs.

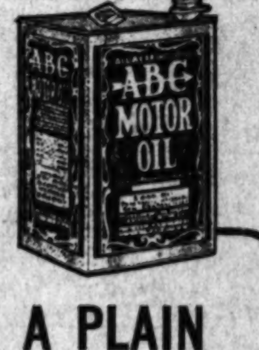
"We have had many inquiries concerning the three-passenger roadster from doctors," said F. E. Moskovics, commercial manager of Nordyke & Marmon Company, "and these were not idle inquiries either for a good per cent. of the sales of his car have been to professional men."

OF LITTLE VALUE.

"It is an old theory that was never founded on solid facts that a high-flash point is a necessity in a motor oil or the oil will burn up without giving any lubrication," says Lieut. G. S. Bryan in the Journal of American Society of Naval Engineers. "The point was overlooked that, when we have a maximum temperature of the gases in the cylinder of 2700 deg. Fahr. and an average temperature of 950 deg. Fahr., an oil with a flash point of 450 deg. Fahr. will offer but little more resistance to burning than one would of 350 deg. Fahr.

"Either oil will burn if kept for any length of time in contact with the hot gas; lubricating oil does not burn very easily or very fast, however, and the time given for it to burn in a motor cylinder is very short. A thin film of oil smeared on a hot (300-deg.) piece of iron or steel will burn for several seconds if ignited. Few motors ever run at less than 120 revolutions per minute, and at this rate the average point of lubricated surface on the cylinder wall would be exposed to the action of the flame for only one-quarter of a second. It is easily seen that there is no danger of all the oil film being burned in that short time, though there is no doubt that some of it is burned, whether the flash point is 300 deg. Fahr. or 500 deg. Fahr. At high speeds the time allowed the oil to burn is so small a fraction of a second that we need not worry on this score."

Automobilists operating their horns within 500 feet of any of the churches at Red Bank, N. J., during Sunday morning service will be arrested.



A PLAIN STATEMENT

We Do Not Believe in Subsidizing—

If your chauffeur or mechanic advises, urges or suggests your using A. B. C. oils, you may be sure that he is not being paid for doing it, but simply because he honestly believes it the best lubricating oil for motors.

This company never did nor never will subsidize employees to use or recommend A. B. C. products.

We want your business, but will use only legitimate business methods to get it.

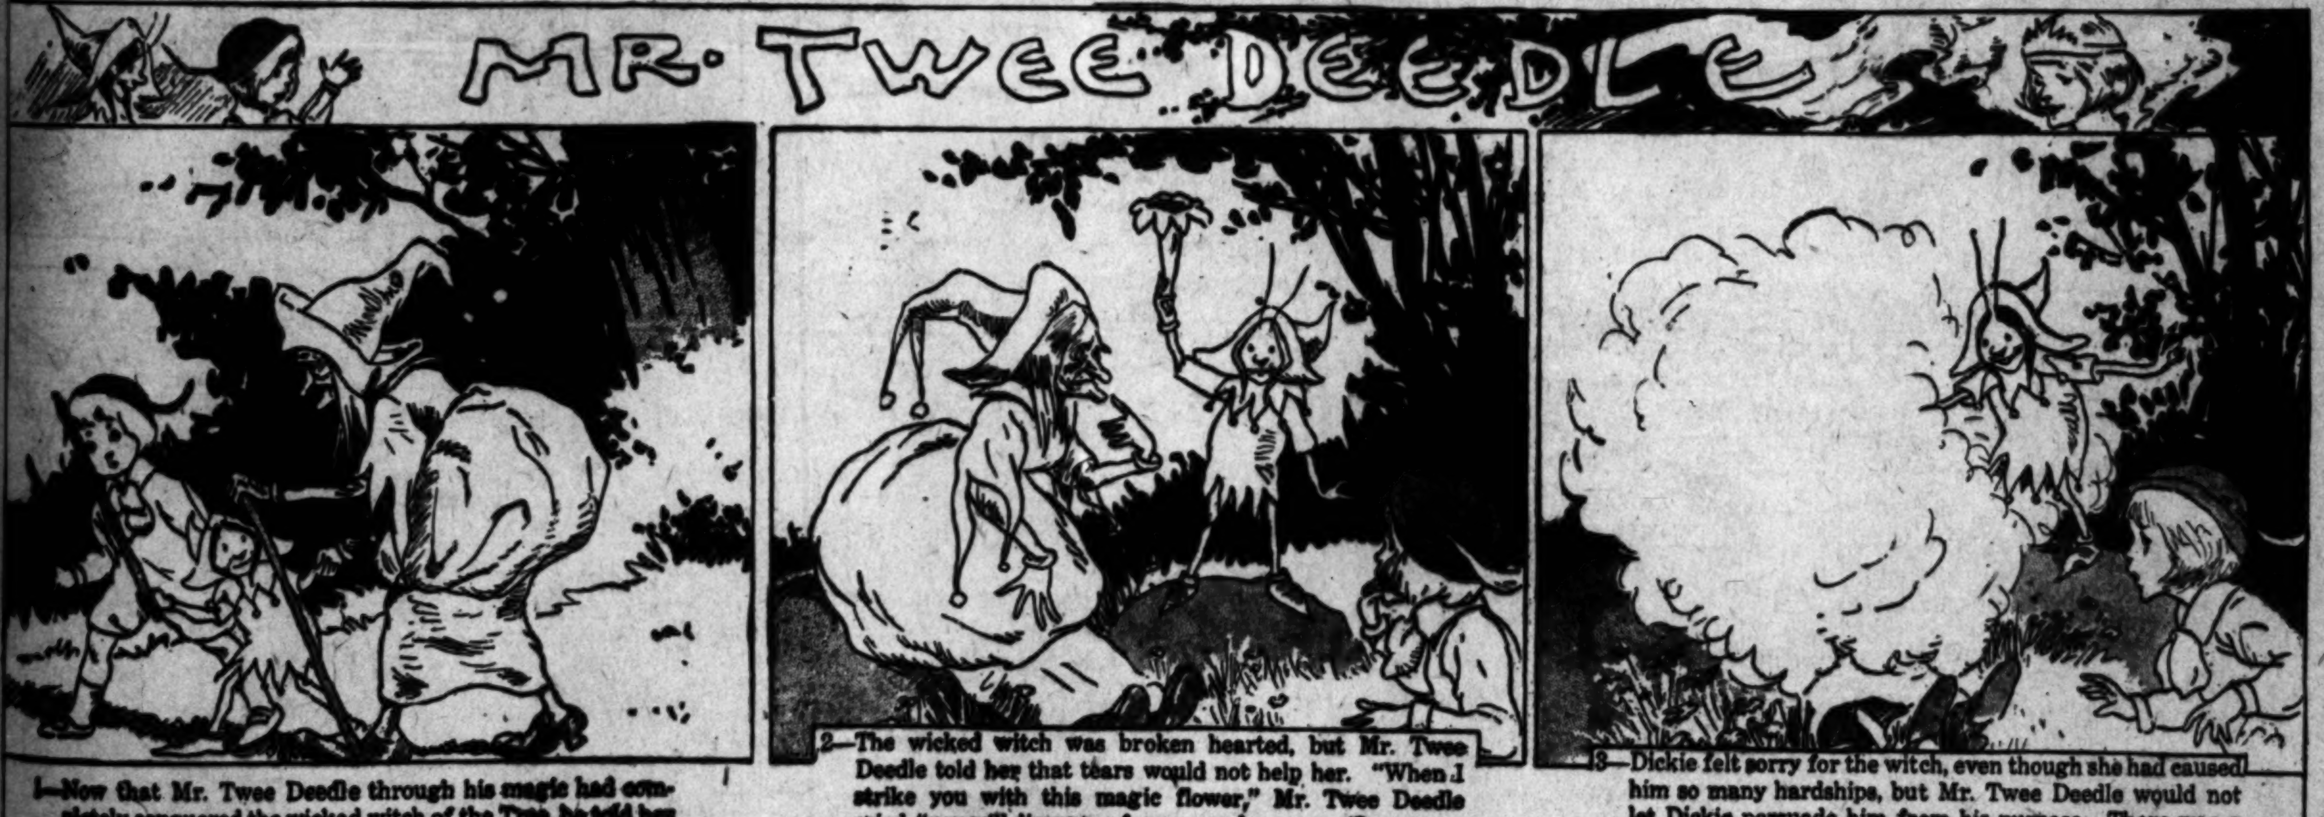
MR. TWEE DEEDLE



1—Now that Mr. Twee Deedle through his magic had completely conquered the wicked witch of the Tree, he told her that he would make her disappear forever.

2—The wicked witch was broken hearted, but Mr. Twee Deedle told her that tears would not help her. "When I strike you with this magic flower," Mr. Twee Deedle cried, "you will disappear forever and no one will see your wicked face again!"

3—Dickie felt sorry for the witch, even though she had caused him so many hardships, but Mr. Twee Deedle would not let Dickie persuade him from his purpose. There was a great puff of smoke and a loud cry from the witch as Mr. Twee Deedle struck her with the magic flower.

4—"See!" cried Mr. Twee Deedle as he sprang up in the air and clicked his heels together. "Didn't I tell you that the wicked witch would disappear forever?" Dickie was delighted to find that the wicked witch had turned into a pretty girl. "You surely have returned good for evil, Mr. Twee Deedle!" Dickie cried.

5—Then the newly made fairy girl, who had been the witch, said, "When I was a very little girl I never listened to my mother when she corrected me. One wicked deed lead to another, for after you have done one thing wicked the other wicked deeds are just that much easier to do!"

6—"But I feel different now and will do good in place of the cruel things. I did so many wicked things my face turned old and wrinkled and ugly!" "Now that you intend to do only kindly deeds," said Mr. Twee Deedle as he caught her hand and they flew away together, "you are sure to grow prettier every day!"

COMMON SENSE in the HOME
EDITED by MARION HARLAND

PICKLES FOR FAMILY USE.

CHEAP materials cannot be used in making pickles if you desire satisfactory results. The vinegar and spices must be of the best; the vegetables or fruits must be firm and sound. All of these must be picked over carefully in the search for decayed portions and soft or specked spots must be cut out or the product rejected.

The same rule which should prevail in all cookery must be observed in putting up pickles. All ingredients should be in the house and assembled in the kitchen or pantry before the work is begun. The jars or glasses must be inspected to see that tops and rubbers are in good condition, and all must be well rinsed in clean scalding water.

Prepare yourself for the task by dressing to fit the part. Put on old clothes which will not be injured by the splashed juice of fruits or vegetables, or by a dash of vinegar. Place your chair in a cool corner while you are peeling or cutting up materials and try in every way to make yourself as comfortable as possible. Pickling is always more or less hard work, and it is only the part of wisdom to take from it every disadvantage you can. Don't undertake too much at a time, but plan to do a smaller amount at once and to do it with a minimum of fatigue and nerve wear.

The best preserving kettle I know is porcelain lined, although I have had successful results with one of copper. If you use the latter, take care that it is thoroughly scoured before using it, and be sure there is no suspicion of verdigris about the inside. With almost any kettle it is safe to take the precaution of laying an inverted plate in the bottom. This saves the likelihood of a scorch, which would spoil the entire batch of pickles.

CUCUMBER PICKLES.

If you have your own garden it may seem best to gather the cucumbers a few at a time, as they attain the right size. In this case keep a crock of brine in a cellar or cool pantry and drop the cucumbers into the brine as they are gathered, looking over the stock every two or three days to see that none is softening. On the other hand, if you buy the vegetables or are able to gather a large quantity at once, you are spared this care. The cucumbers should be about the length of the little finger. When they are small and of uniform size they make a better and more attractive pickle than when of varying porportions.

The first stage in pickling the cucumbers is to make a brine so strong that it will bear up an egg; put the cucumbers in this and leave them there for three days. At the end of this time pour off the brine, take out the pickles and lay them on a clean cloth to dry, rinse out the crock, and put the pickles back in it, covering them with fresh, cool water. Leave them in this for twenty-four hours.

Prepare the vinegar for the pickles by allowing to each quart of sharp cider vinegar one tablespoon of brown sugar, one dozen black peppers, one dozen whole cloves, three allspice, and three blades of mace. Put all in a preserving kettle, bring to a boil and cook for ten minutes. Take the cucumbers from the water, drain, and wipe dry, turn them into the boiling vinegar and leave them in just long enough to become hot. Do not permit them to boil. Scald out a stone crock, set it on a wet cloth that it may not crack, and put pickles and vinegar into it. Cover closely, set away for three days, drain off the vinegar and heat it to scalding, and pour it back on the pickles. Repeat this process every week for a month and at the final scalding add another teaspoon of sugar for each quart of vinegar. Put the pickles away to ripen for six weeks or two months before using them.

PICKLED PEPPER HASH.

Select five large green peppers and one red one, cut them open and remove the seeds with a stick. If you handle them they will burn your fingers. Chop the peppers fine. Chop also one good head of white cabbage which you have examined carefully for slugs and from which you have removed all withered or decayed leaves. Put minced cabbage and peppers together and mix well. Stir into them three tablespoons of salt and one of sugar, two tablespoons of brown mustard seed, and enough good cider vinegar to cover all. Stir well together, put into jars, screw down the tops, and put aside. It will be ready to use in a few days.

CHOW-CHOW.

For chow-chow prepare equal proportions of small cucumbers, string beans, little white onions, a cauliflower, and green tomatoes. Slice the tomatoes, divide the cauliflower into clusters, peel the onions, stem and string the beans. With these put four small red peppers of the long variety and place the vegetables in a stoneware crock, alternating each layer of these with one of salt. Pour in cold water to cover all and lay on top of the vegetables a board with a weight on it to keep them from floating. In this brine leave them for three days, then drain, rinse with fresh water, and leave them for one day in a jar, covered with unsalted water. Pick over the vegetables carefully to make sure there are no decayed ones among them before you put them into vinegar.

To prepare this measure out a gallon of vinegar, put it into a kettle with one and a half cups of brown sugar, three tablespoons of ground mustard, and two of turmeric, one teaspoon of ground horseradish, and one each of whole cloves, whole black peppers, whole mace, celery seed, and white mustard seed. Bring all to a boil, cook for five minutes, drop in the pickles, and let them simmer for five minutes after the boil is regained.

Take the pickles out with a skimmer and put into a stone crock and pour the vinegar over them, leaving them in this, the jar covered, for two days. Drain off the vinegar then and return it to the fire with a tablespoon of curry powder and let it boil up once. Pour it again over the pickles and when these are cool pack them into small jars and screw down the tops. They will be ready for use by the end of a month, but are even better after longer keeping.

STUFFED PEPPER PICKLE.

Select firm green peppers of uniform size, cut a slit in each near the top and remove the seeds with a stick or a small knife. Fill the peppers with salt, lay them in a jar, and cover them with cold water, leaving them in this for two days. Drain them and lay them in fresh water for a day longer. Make a stuffing for them in the following proportions: Two tablespoons each of grated horseradish and of finely chopped cabbage; one teaspoon each of ground mustard, whole black peppers, celery seed, and minced onion; half a teaspoon each of ground ginger, mace, and nutmeg; one tablespoon of salad oil and a teaspoon of white sugar. Mix all well together.

Fill the peppers with this stuffing, sew them up with white thread, pack in an earthen jar, and fill this with boiling vinegar. Leave them for a week, drain off the vinegar, heat it to scalding again, and pour it back on the peppers. Cover and leave them to simmer for at least three months before using.

I have given the directions as they were employed in my own home and were given me by the notable housekeepers whom I have seen prepare them in years gone by. Recently I have seen housekeepers cut off the tops of the peppers, remove the seeds and stuff the peppers, after their preliminary soaking in salt and fresh water, replace the tops and tie them on with soft twine. The product may be less symmetrical than those turned out by the housewives of old Virginia, but the taste is as good and the labor is much less.

PICKLED ONIONS.

For this the small white button onions must be used. After they have lain in a strong brine for five days new brine should be made, heated to boiling, the onions drained into this, and cooked for five minutes after the return of the boil. Drain and turn into clear cold water, leave them in this for twenty-four hours, drain again, and put into pint jars. Prepare a spiced vinegar by the recipe given for cucumber pickles, pour it on the onions, and do not use them until they have become tender.

GREEN TOMATO PICKLE.

Slice a gallon of unpeeled green tomatoes; peel and chop six large white onions. Put a layer of the tomatoes into the preserving kettle, sprinkle them with the onion and half of a mixture consisting of two cups of sugar, one tablespoon each of salt, black pepper, and ground mustard and two teaspoons each of ground allspice and cloves. Repeat the layer of tomatoes, onions, and seasoning; pour in one quart of cider vinegar, heat the material slowly, and stew for three-quarters of an hour. Put up in small jars and seal. Keep three months before using.

PICKLED PEACHES.

Peel firm white freestone peaches, dropping each into cold water as it is peeled. Take the fruit from the water, weigh it; allow three pounds of sugar and two cups of vinegar to six pounds of fruit. Stick a whole clove in each peach, arrange the fruit and sugar in layers in a preserving kettle, and put the vinegar on to boil in another vessel with two tablespoons each of cloves, cinnamon, and mace to the six pounds of fruit. The spices may be tied up in a muslin bag and left in the vinegar for five minutes after it comes to a boil. When the sugar and peaches have stewed together for five minutes the boiling vinegar may be added to them and all boiled gently until the peaches are tender, but not broken. Take them out with a skimmer, spread on flat plates, and boil the sirup until thick. This will require about fifteen minutes. Put the peaches in jars, turn in the sirup, and seal while boiling hot.

PICKLED PEARS.

Use small firm pears, peel them, but do not remove the stems, and follow the same course as for pickled peaches.

MARION HARLAND'S HELPING HAND.

Portieres of Chenille.

"WILL you please tell me how to make rope portieres from chenille? And have you a formula for a permanent stove polish? If so, will it burn off if the fire is hot? Is alum harmful when put into pickle, and in what respect. I would also like to have a recipe for bisque ice cream. I hope I am not asking too much at one time, but the Corner is a wonder. It seems to me that it can give anything one asks. Here is a recipe for eggless gingerbread: One cup of molasses, one cup of sugar, half a cup of shortening, one teaspoon of cinnamon, one of ginger, and one of salt; quarter teaspoon of cloves, one teaspoon of baking soda dissolved in a quarter cup of hot water, three cups of flour. As flour varies in the way it thickens it is better to try a little of the gingerbread when mixed in a patty pan, and if it seems too thin you can add more flour. I know this gingerbread to be excellent.

"MRS. R. L. S."

I shall have to refer your question about the chenille rope portieres to some of our fancywork experts. I am sorry to say I cannot tell you how to make them. As to the permanent stove polish, I have never heard of such a thing. I have excellent directions for making stove polishes, but they all wear off or burn off in time, and I would be glad, for my own sake, to learn of any that do not. Can some of our housekeepers supply a formula for such a preparation? A little alum is put into some pickles when the fruits or vegetables used for them are being prepared for the vinegar, but it is usually well washed or soaked out afterwards. Like any other such material, it would be harmful to the system if taken freely. We are glad to have the recipe you send and the following is the one for bisque ice cream: Dry a half pound of macaroons, using those that are a little stale, by placing them in cool oven until they will crush readily with a rolling pin. They should be fine crumbs. Make a custard of two eggs and a pint of rich milk, heating the milk first with one cup of sugar and when this is dissolved adding the eggs carefully. Cook until the mixture looks creamy—about three minutes in a double boiler—take from the fire and put aside to cool, putting with it a pint of cream. When cold pour it into the freezer and turn until about half frozen, add the crushed macaroons, freeze hard, and let it stand for a couple of hours before serving.

Offers Air Cushion and Truss.

"If you will kindly send me the name and address of the woman with the four children who asked for an air cushion for her invalid husband who is suffering from tuberculosis, I will see that she gets it. You may also send me the name and address of a person desiring a truss. It is for a person with a waist measure of about twenty-five inches. The truss is new and complete, with leg straps and a small pad.

L. R."

The sufferer from tuberculosis has already been supplied with the needed air cushion, but I have no doubt the offer of this kindly Cornerite will be eagerly accepted somewhere else. So will her proffer of the truss be welcomed, and I am personally grateful to her for the generosity she displays.

Value of Old Coin.

"Will you please advise me through your Corner of the value that is placed on silver dollars dated 1799? This coin is wonderfully preserved and I am of the opinion that a liberal payment would be offered for it.

N. A. S."

I cannot tell the value of such a coin, but I am happy to lay the question before our numismatists in the hope that some of them may be able to answer this query. Unfortunately this correspondent was another of those who omitted to give her address, but I will print any replies that may come in the Corner.

Calico Pieces Great Help.

"I saw in the Corner that Mrs. E. M. had calico and percale pieces to give away. I would be glad to receive some. As I have a family of small children, it would be a great help to me and I would be much obliged to her and to you.

"MRS. E. E. D."

Again I must say with regret that the pieces had been given away before the arrival of this letter. Has any one else similar pieces she would like to present to this correspondent?

Making Portieres of Acorns.

"Will you ask Mrs. W. E. H. if she will not be so good as to send me some acorns? I am trying to make a pair of portières, and if the acorns could be mailed to me by parcel post I would be most grateful. Perhaps there is something I could do in return. I can sew anything, and do stitching and all sorts of crocheting. I have to work for my living, but I would always take time to answer her letters, and would be glad of post cards or anything else like that. I am anxious to have a pair of portières, and as I cannot buy the expensive ones I thought I would write and ask for the acorns if I could get enough of them to make the pair.

MRS. M. G."

This correspondent lives in a large city, which in a measure explains her inability to collect acorns for portières. Remembering the letter of Mrs. W. E. H., I do not question her willingness to do anything she can to cheer the lives of others, but I wonder if the Cornerite who makes this appeal has any idea of how many acorns it would take to make a pair of portières, or of the labor which would be involved in the task. More than that, the nuts would be a constant temptation to mice and rats, and she might find that she had done an inconvenient thing for herself when she brought a collection of nuts into her house. I do not wish to appear discouraging, but I think there might be some other and easier way of securing the hangings she desires. Can some one else give a suggestion which may help her a little?

Has a Poor Eye.

"I read the Corner and know the good it has done. I would like to ask the kind readers to help by prayer a baby that has a poor eye. The mother prays to God that many blessings may fall upon those who will help her in this prayer.

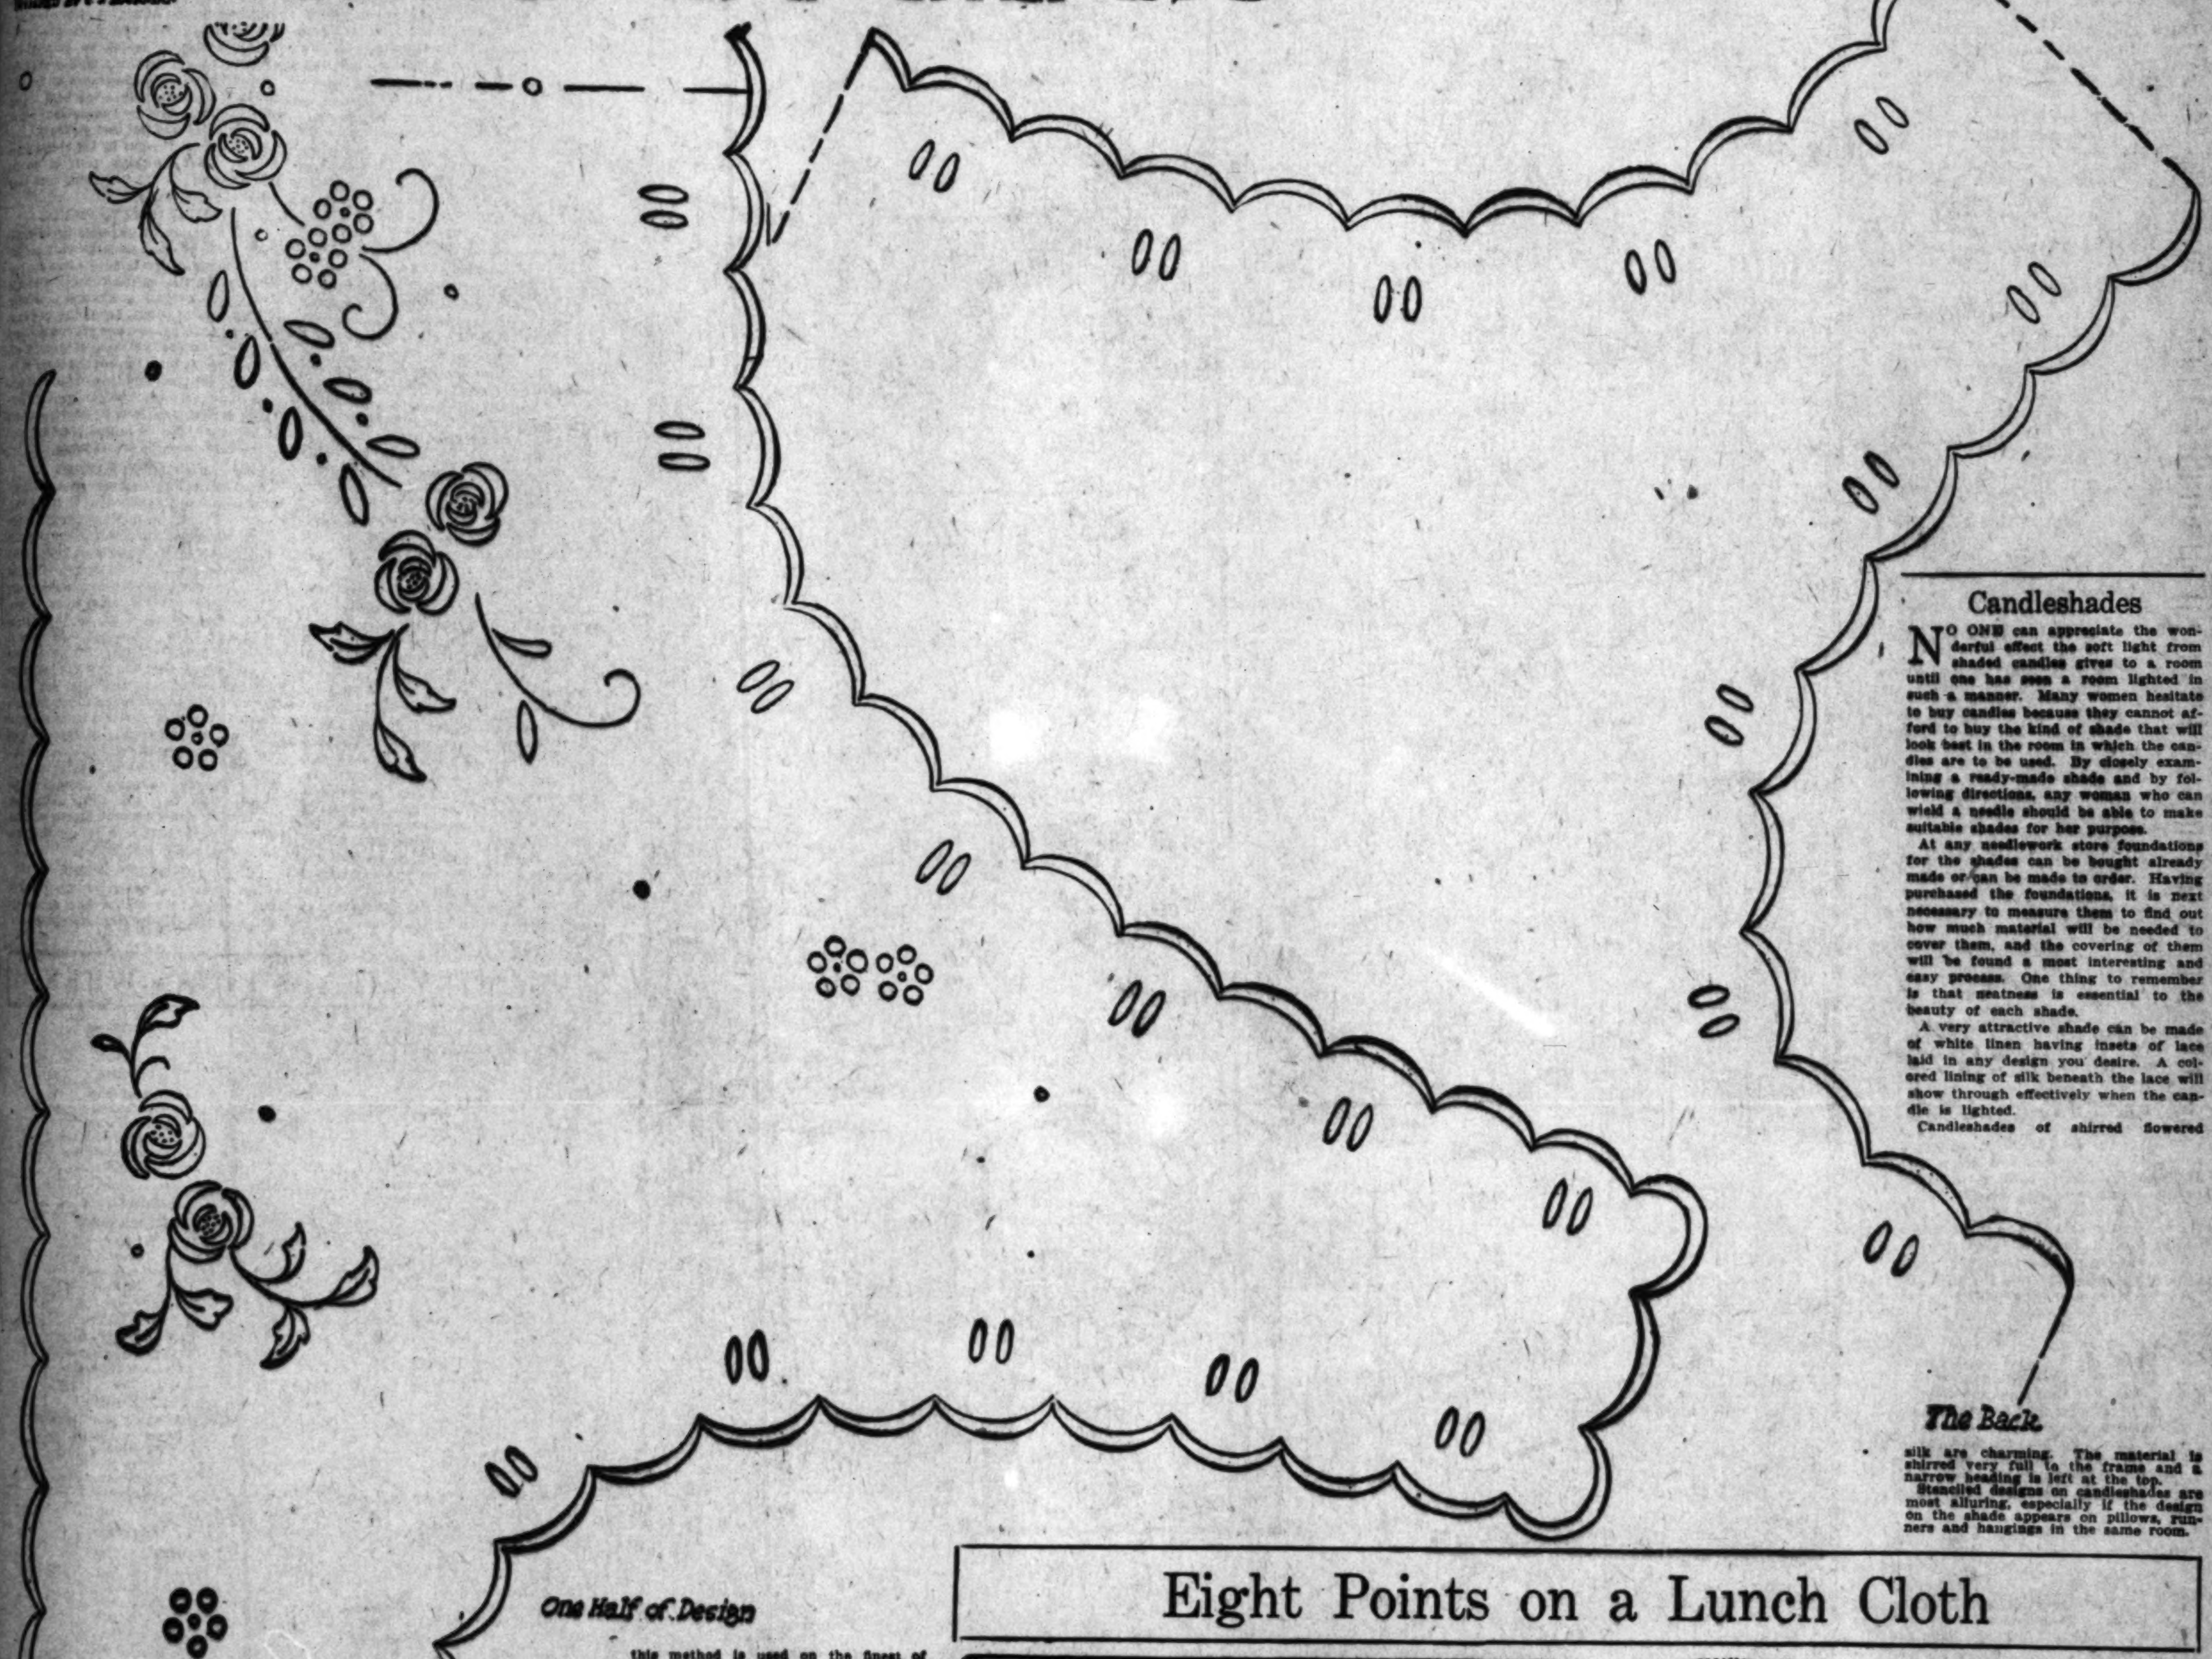
"MRS. V. R."

I am sure that all of us who are interested in babies—and who is not?—will pray for this mother and child in their distress and will do for them all that our prayers and helpful wishes sent toward them can possibly accomplish.

FOR THE INDUSTRIOUS NEEDLEWOMAN

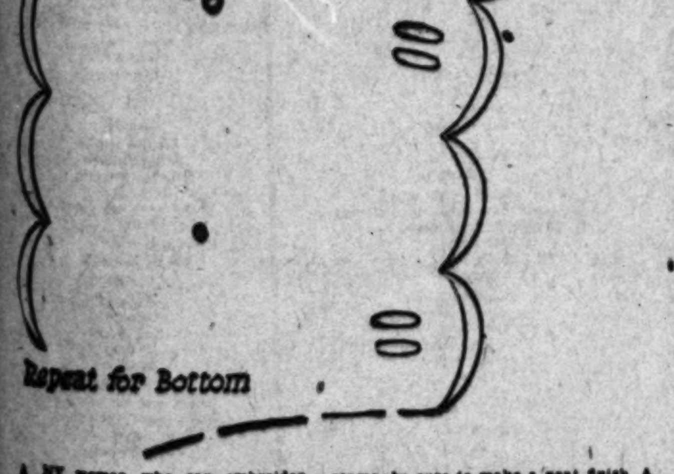
BY ADELAIDE BYRD

ROSE DESIGN for a CHEMISE



One Half of Design

The Back



Repeat for Bottom

ANY woman who can embroider with any amount of skill can make for herself articles of underwear that will rival the most expensive lingerie a bride-to-be ever stored in her hope chest. On the page today is half a design for a chemise. In fact, a little more than half is shown for the front of the garment, so that no difficulty will be experienced when tracing the design.

Fine nainsook, handkerchief linen and barred muslin are suitable materials on which to embroider the design, but the former is the one used most.

Work the crescents forming the petals of the little roses in the solid stitch. Treat the leaves in like manner and outline the stems.

The little circles and the ovals scattered throughout the design should be made into eyelets, working them in regular eyelet stitch.

French knots come to the rescue of the little dots in the center of each flower.

The ovals near the top of the chemise, back and front, are to be made into eyelets too. Through the eyelets run white ribbon, which is always in good taste, or ribbon of a delicate pink or blue shade might be used.

I have included a repeat of the design for the bottom of the chemise if one wishes to use it in such a manner. The repeat can also be used on the ruffles of drawers or on the bottom of a petticoat.

In joining the side seams and the back seams be sure to make a neat finish. A French seam is probably the best for this purpose. This is made by sewing the sections together so that the seam is on the right side of the garment. Then trim off the seam as close to the line of stitching as possible. Turn the garment wrong side out and stitch the seams. Beading can be used with very good effect to join the seams. In fact, this method is used on the finest of French lingerie. Tatting is also being employed a great deal for seams.

I nearly neglected to say anything about the scallops. These, of course, should be done with the greatest of care, for they will be quite visible beneath sheer blouses. Pad them first with strands of darning cotton and then work over the cotton with buttonhole stitches. To prevent the material from fraying, I suggest that you go over the scalloped edge, after the buttonholing is completed and the material has been cut away, making a little edge all along the way by first forming a loop with your thread and buttonholing each loop until a lacy effect is gained. This will not only prove practical, but will also give a very pretty finish to the garment. It is well, if you would make a firmer edge to your scalloping, to baste a piece of heavier material beneath the stamping and to embroider the scallops through the two thicknesses, cutting away the superfluous material afterward. This method will prevent splitting between the scallops.

If you are considering making a gift for a fall bride, stamp this design on fine nainsook, or if you care to spend the money, silk would be most acceptable I am sure. And then embroider away patiently and neatly until you are able to hold the finished garment up to admiring eyes.

A Bathroom "Shower"

"WHAT kind of a shower shall we give Helen?" asked one of the group. "She has had so many showers that we should try to think of something original."

"How about a bathroom shower?" ventured one of the group. The suggestion brought forth bursts of laughter from every one. As soon as quietness was restored, the clever one went on to explain just what she meant. Her plan proved to be a successful one, and is worth passing along.

Among the many articles that made up the shower was a blue-and-white bath rug. The giver of this had embroidered in extremely large size the bride-elect's initial.

Bath towels and face towels there were galore, some monogrammed, some initialed and some bound with crocheted edges.

Wash cloths treated in similar manner were also present.

One girl contributed a hot-water bottle concealed in a most attractive bag made of Turkish toweling, the toweling having been embellished with hand embroidery.

Knowing what kind of a window the bathroom would have, one girl sent the loveliest scrim curtain stenciled in blue and white to carry out the color scheme which she knew the bride-to-be was planning.

How to Transfer

PLACE a sheet of impression carbon paper between your fabric and the newspaper design, the latter on top. With a sharp pencil or a glass-pointed pen go over the outline. The design will be transferred to the material and will last until worked.

Candleshades

NO ONE can appreciate the wonderful effect the soft light from shaded candles gives to a room until one has seen a room lighted in such a manner. Many women hesitate to buy candles because they cannot afford to buy the kind of shade that will look best in the room in which the candles are to be used. By closely examining a ready-made shade and by following directions, any woman who can wield a needle should be able to make suitable shades for her purpose.

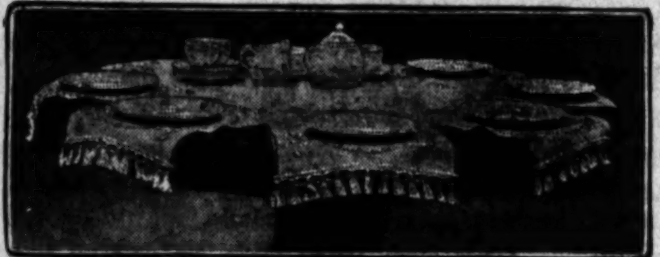
At any needlework store foundations for the shades can be bought already made or can be made to order. Having purchased the foundations, it is next necessary to measure them to find out how much material will be needed to cover them, and the covering of them will be found a most interesting and easy process. One thing to remember is that neatness is essential to the beauty of each shade.

A very attractive shade can be made of white linen having insets of lace laid in any design you desire. A colored lining of silk beneath the lace will show through effectively when the candle is lighted.

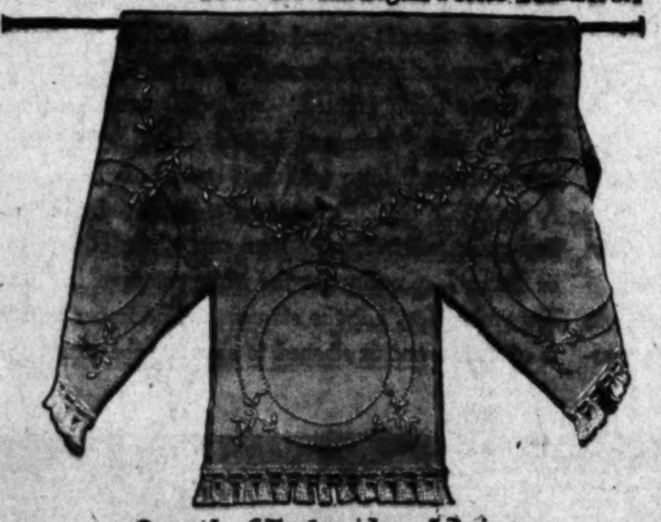
Candleshades of shirred flowered silk are charming. The material is shirred very full to the frame and a narrow heading is left at the top.

Stenciled designs on candleshades are most alluring, especially if the design on the shade appears on pillows, runners and hangings in the same room.

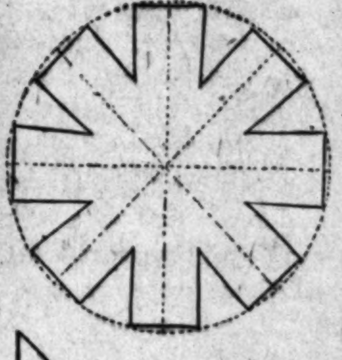
Eight Points on a Lunch Cloth



Laid for an Eight Plate Luncheon



Detail of Embroidered Point



How the Cloth Looks When Cut Out

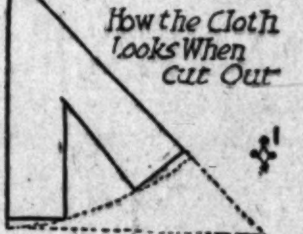


Diagram of Folded Linen

SURELY the angels of inspiration were working overtime when they whispered the idea for this development of the stole luncheon cloth into some designer's ear! For it is a development of the four-pointed cloth, which so closely resembled, and was, in turn, an evolution of, the two crossed runners on the luncheon table. The two runners, or the four-pointed luncheon cloth, allowed for but four covers, unless one wished to fill in the bare table between with a square doily to match the cloth; but the eight-pointed or six-pointed cloth—there is such a thing—solves the table-setting problem very nicely.

Probably the easiest way to make such a cloth would be to first measure your table—a round one necessarily, or there will be no use for the eight-pointed cover. Then, from a piece of wide linen, cut a circle about six inches wider in the diameter than your table, to allow for a slight overhanging of the points all around. This circle can be cut by folding, say, a two-yard square of linen first in half, then in half again, and then once again diagonally, which will make eight thicknesses. Pin your tape measure to the central point of the folded linen, and after measuring the shorter of the two sides, proceed to swing the tape as a radius across the linen, keeping it pinned securely at the point and marking the arc of the circle which it measures either with a pencil or pins. One cutting of the scissors around this arc will give you a perfect circle of linen. While the linen is still folded in eight, it is time to cut the points. This is done by cutting, through the folded V of linen from the raw edge, a smaller V, not quite half as deep as the radius of the linen and one-third as wide as the circular edge. When the V has been cut it will be necessary to straighten the edges of the folded points, if you want your cloth to look like the one pictured, or you can leave each point rounded, if you so desire. The linen, when unfolded, will be found to be an eight-pointed cloth and is all ready to be hemmed around the rough edges, and afterward embroidered. It might be well to experiment first with a small folded piece of paper, like the diagram, following these directions until you can see just exactly how to proceed with cutting the linen.

The embroidery is a simple matter. If you cannot draw yourself, ask some artistic friend to sketch a few wreaths and vines for you on a piece of manila paper, being sure to measure first the size of the circles which you want embroidered on each point. You will see that they are but slightly smaller than the space of linen allowed for each point. This cloth has been worked entirely in blue and white. The leaves and stems of the vines are white, with an outline of the blue around the leaves. The dots forming the circles are blue and the buttonholing which covers the hems at the sides of each point is blue. A cotton braid of blue and white, with a fringe edge, has been used to finish each end. One could also buttonhole these ends or use a fine cluny or torchon lace for the purpose. Crochet might also be employed for a finish, using blue cotton and a picoted edge.

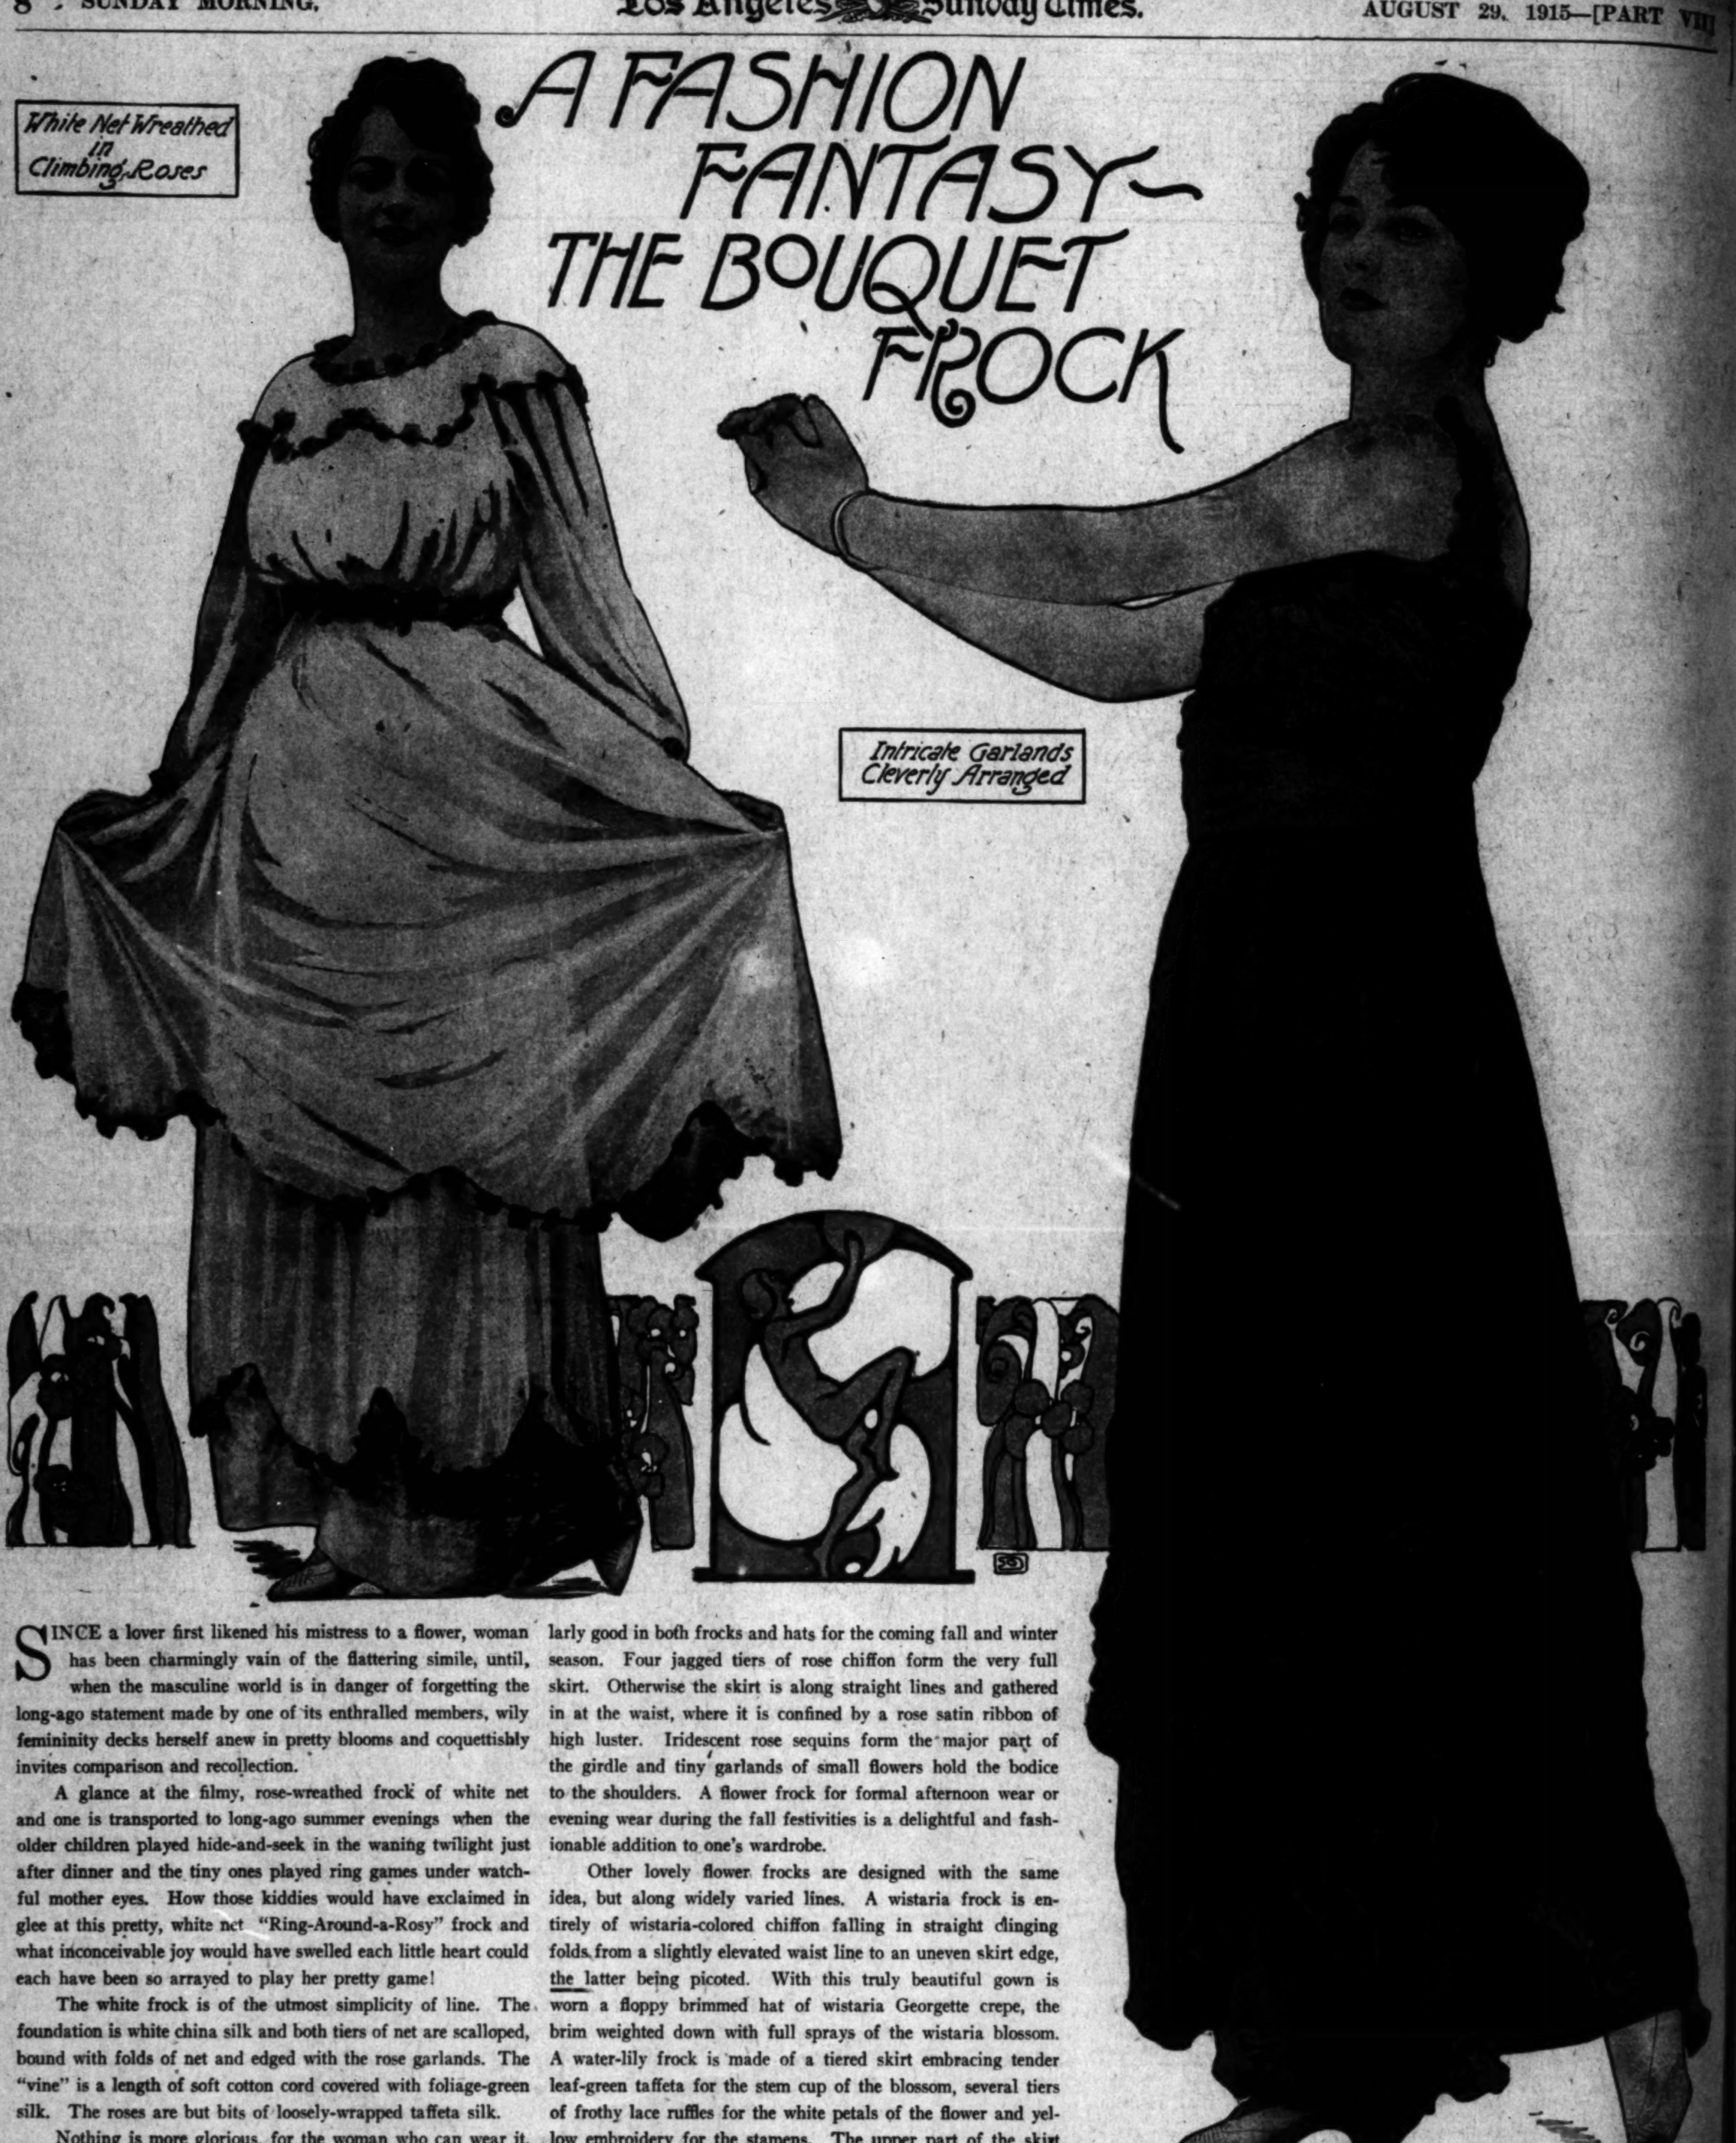
Lovely Aprons

ONE can never have too many suggestions for making aprons. The dainty affairs make such practical, acceptable gifts that it is always well to have several on hand for what might be called emergency gifts.

A very attractive apron can be made of fine handkerchief linen or fine lawn. Long points at the bottom of the apron add a pretty note, particularly if the points are finished with fine lace edging. It is an easy matter to sew an unusual-looking pocket or two on aprons, since pockets of all sizes and designs are adorning frocks, skirts, coats, etc. A separate patch pocket tacked to the belt of the apron and allowed to hang free would be a little different from the closely stitched pocket of former years.

Hand embroidery is usually associated with aprons. A very pretty idea is to select a floral design to grace the apron and let the petals of the flower form the uneven edge of the apron. A wild rose is a splendid flower to select for such treatment.

A FASHION FANTASY—THE BOUQUET FROCK



White Net Wreathed in Climbing Roses

Intricate Garlands Cleverly Arranged

SINCE a lover first likened his mistress to a flower, woman has been charmingly vain of the flattering simile, until, when the masculine world is in danger of forgetting the long-ago statement made by one of its enthralled members, wily femininity decks herself anew in pretty blooms and coquettishly invites comparison and recollection.

A glance at the filmy, rose-wreathed frock of white net and one is transported to long-ago summer evenings when the older children played hide-and-seek in the waning twilight just after dinner and the tiny ones played ring games under watchful mother eyes. How those kiddies would have exclaimed in glee at this pretty, white net "Ring-Around-a-Rosy" frock and what inconceivable joy would have swelled each little heart could each have been so arrayed to play her pretty game!

The white frock is of the utmost simplicity of line. The foundation is white china silk and both tiers of net are scalloped, bound with folds of net and edged with the rose garlands. The "vine" is a length of soft cotton cord covered with foliage-green silk. The roses are but bits of loosely-wrapped taffeta silk.

Nothing is more glorious, for the woman who can wear it, than a rose-lined evening frock. Rose hues are to be particularly good in both frocks and hats for the coming fall and winter season. Four jagged tiers of rose chiffon form the very full skirt. Otherwise the skirt is along straight lines and gathered in at the waist, where it is confined by a rose satin ribbon of high luster. Iridescent rose sequins form the major part of the girdle and tiny garlands of small flowers hold the bodice to the shoulders. A flower frock for formal afternoon wear or evening wear during the fall festivities is a delightful and fashionable addition to one's wardrobe.

Other lovely flower frocks are designed with the same idea, but along widely varied lines. A wistaria frock is entirely of wistaria-colored chiffon falling in straight clinging folds from a slightly elevated waist line to an uneven skirt edge, the latter being picoted. With this truly beautiful gown is worn a floppy brimmed hat of wistaria Georgette crepe, the brim weighted down with full sprays of the wistaria blossom. A water-lily frock is made of a tiered skirt embracing tender leaf-green taffeta for the stem cup of the blossom, several tiers of frothy lace ruffles for the white petals of the flower and yellow embroidery for the stamens. The upper part of the skirt is of taffeta and is slashed to simulate the stem cup of the lily.
